An unoccupied log house belonging to William Damon, about half a mile from Groveton village, Lancaster, was discovered to be on fire at four o'clock Saturday morning. THE WASTING DISEASES OF INFANTS and children are by no means confined to an insufficient supply of food. The trouble is that the food is injudiciously selected, and the limited digestive power of the child is unable to assimilate it. Mellin's Food, when prepared according to the directions, forms the best substitute for mothers' milk that has ever been produced.

Eighteen or twenty bakers in New York have been arrested on a charge of conspiracy, for boycotting a poor woman who ran a small bakery, and ruining her business. It seem that in some way she gained the hostility of the "union," and was boycotted; and when, after being harassed to the verge of insanity, and utterly ruined financially, she begged for mercy from the union, the aggregated tyranny informed her that she would be let off on payment of a large sum of money. It is to be hoped the boycotters will get ten years each in Sing Sing.

To most children, the bare suggestion of a dose of castor oil is nauseating. When physic is necessary for the little ones, use Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take. Try them.

The striking Chicago switchmen who avow their intention to keep up their illegal and destructive operations against the Lake Shore road have marked out a course for themselves which has the penitentiary at the end of it. Derailing trains and endangering life and property, whatever the motive may be, is simply war against society, and until that is put an end to the community will not take the trouble to pass on the question at issue between the road and the employes. Peristence in lawlessness compels irresistible means to combat it.

Ministers, lawyers, teachers, and others whose occupation gives but little exercise, should use Carter's Little Liver Pills for torpid liver and billiousness. One is a dose.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

This is the anniversary when the people of this great and glorious country burn quantities of gun powder, and imbibe measureless lemonade, more or less stiffened, in honor of the day which gave us liberty. The prophetic suggestions of Mr. Adams that annual noise should be made with such pyrotechnic displays as should be in keeping with the exuberance of the occasion, have steadily been observed, so that some citizens even like to steal awhile away for a quiet ante-independence-night's repose beside the still waters of Appledore, or to lie down for the night in or near the green pastures of some country hostelry. The era of pomp and show, of patriotic oratory and defiant declamation, seems to have been succeeded by a practice which permits every one to celebrate in the manner which seemeth to him or her more appropriate and satisfactory. We of the Chronicle shall duly observe the day we celebrate, by abstaining from all unnecessary labor, and omit in consequence our appearance on Tuesday morning, trusting that our readers on that day will be so filled with their annual appreciation of the benefits of the blessings of liberty handed down to us by our forefathers that the omission will, as in the past, be readily and patriotically pardoned.

Boycotters Sentenced.

Five members of the Carl Sahm musical society of New York city, convicted of boycotting one Treiss, the proprietor of a concert garden, were arraigned in court last Friday for sentence. Judge Barrett made some strong remarks to them on the lawlessness of the crime of which they were convicted. He said that this was a violation of peace to a country that welcomed foreign-born citizens, to a country that offered freedom and the privilege of political rights. They had violated public rights and opinions, and their offence was not short of blackmail. The distribution of circulars before places of business was conspiracy, and punishable as such. Their conduct, if unpunished, would lead to savagery. They may have been misled by bad advice, but their counsel should have rebuked them. They did not use the money for their own advantage, and this palliated their offence. We are told that it had been the custom to rob in that manner. He would not impose the full penalty of the law, as they were workingmen.

The judge then sentenced Paul Wittzig and Henry Holdorf to two years and ten months at hard labor; Michael Stoband and Julius Rosenburg to one year and six months imprisonment. Daniel Dannhauser, the most violent of any of the boycotters, got three years and eight months in the state prison.

Shocking Accident.

The Portland express train due in Boston at nine o'clock Friday evening, struck a carriage containing a man, woman and two little girls, at Wakefield, Mass., killing all four. The parties proved to be Mr. John Measures of Stockton, his sister-in-law, who lives in Wakefield, and her two children. The little girls were horribly mangled, one having its arms and legs severed from the body, while the other's skull was crushed into a jelly. The mother and one little girl were thrown to the left of the track, about ten or twelve rods from where they struck, and the man and the other little girl were carried a distance of 500 yards or more. The man lived fifteen minutes after being hit. The bodies were picked up and left by the side of the track until the arrival of the medical examiner. Mr. John Measures was a shoemaker by trade, about thirty-three years of age, and lived with his father in Stoneham. The woman was about thirty-five years of age, and the two little girls seven and eight years respectively. It appears the man drove over from Stoneham to take his sister-in-law and her two little girls home to spend a few weeks. The horse was going at such speed when the train was first seen that Mr. Measures was unable to stop him.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

Four new cars, of eight contracted for by the Bradley Car Co. of Worcester, Mass., have been received by the Boston & Maine railroad. They are 57 1-2 feet long, not including the platform, with monitor roof the entire length; the inside finish is mahogany, and the ceiling of mahogany, with birch panels. Each car is provided with the Baker heater, and the Westinghouse and Eames brakes; this double equipment is put on so that they can be used on all divisions of the road. The company are having eight new locomotives built at the Mason Locomotive Works at Taunton, Mass. Four of them are nearly ready for delivery, namely, the Gen. Hancock and Gen. Lander, two very powerful machines, which will run on express trains between Boston and Portland over the Eastern division, and the Washington and Wellington, which will haul the fast trains on the Western division between the Hub and the Forest City. The other four locomotives are shifters.

There was a narrow escape from a serious accident on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, at the junction of the Saugus branch with the main line, last Friday morning. A train on the Saugus branch was approaching the main line, and at the same time the Marblehead train on the main line came along at full speed. A collision seemed inevitable, but the trains fortunately were brought to a standstill just in time to avoid a crash, only thirty feet intervening between them. The signal tender is thought to be to blame by having the signal set for the branch train, and then suddenly changing it for the Marblehead train.

THE EASTERN RAILROAD.

The Boston Post's financial article for Friday, the 2d inst., contained the following:

Eastern was fairly active to-day, some 700 shares changing hands at 80 1-8 to eighty-one. The closing quotation was 80 3-4 bid, against eighty-one bid last night. The action of the leading State street banking house yesterday in gunning for the short interest in Eastern succeeded in frightening a small boy of shorts into covering to-day—for it is believed that to-day's buying was for the customers of a well-known Devonshire street house which was short a few hundred shares. When the small short interest is eliminated from the market, Eastern must sagg off unless its friends continue to support it. Whether or not, in view of the fact that the tremendous dividends promised by the counsel of the late funding bill have been indefinitely postponed until the net earnings show more than $84,000 (as it was for the year ending Sept. 30th, 1885)—or more than is now estimated for the year ending Sept. 30th, 1886,—their courage will sustain them until the net earnings are sufficient to pay respectable dividends, time alone will determine.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

TO-DAY'S CELEBRATION.

The glorious Fourth will be fairly celebrated in this city. Besides the earnest and noisy celebration of the small boy, the city will have the church bells rung for half an hour at sunrise, noon and sunset, and the North Berwick band will give concerts on Market square from 2:30 to 4:30 and from 6:30 to 8:30 P. M.

The annual meeting of the permanent committee on the return of the sons and daughters of Portsmouth will be held at 10:30 A. M., at the counting-rooms of the president, Colonel William H. Sise.

The New Hampshire Division, League of American Wheelmen, will form a line at the Concord & Portsmouth railroad station at 10:15 A. M., and wheel through some of the principal streets to the landing of the steamer Mystic, on which they will take a trip down the harbor, on their return wheeling to the Hotel Wentworth at Newcastle for dinner, after which they will wheel back to the city and around by Gravelly Ridge to Hon. F. Jones' residence, returning to town in time for the evening train.

But the principal celebrations will be at the cricket field at the Creek, where a series of sports will be carried out, as follows: Game of cricket between the International club of Lowell, Mass., and the Portsmouth club; match game of base ball between the Portsmouth and Rochester clubs; tug-of-war between the men of the Jones and Eldredge breweries, for $25 a side; 100-yard dash, open to all, prize $5; high jump, prize $5; wheelbarrow race, for $5; fat man's race, for $5; sack race, for $2; heavy and light throwing. The South Berwick Cadet band has been engaged for the entire day, and the sports will commence in the forenoon.

SUICIDE.

Mr. John J. Odiorne, living near Wallis' sands, Rye, was found dead in an upper room of his house Friday afternoon, by his brother. The deceased had been mentally unsettled since the death of his wife about a year ago, she never having fully recovered from the effects of a fall on Market street in this city several winters previous, for which the city paid in the neighborhood of $1000 as damages. His two daughters, aged ten and twelve years respectively, being apprehensive of personal harm were brought to this city last Thursday, which possibly prevented a more terrible tragedy. It is supposed he hung himself Thursday night, as a lamp was found burning on the kitchen table Friday afternoon. He was a member of Osgood Lodge, I. O. O. F., of this city, and the funeral took place Sunday under the management of that lodge.

DROWNED.

As Mr. Chas. Frank Staples was on his way home from this city to Eliot in his boat, about ten o'clock Saturday night, he fouled a schooner lying at the Eastern railroad wharf, and the boat was capsized, leaving Mr. Staples in the water. His cries for help were heard, and his brother, Melvin Staples, put out in a boat and found the body floating off Fernald's shipyard at Freeman's point. Mr. Staples was a ship carpenter, and was working for Warren Keen; he was thoroughly conversant with boats.

FOREPAUGH'S COLOSSAL SHOW.

There needed only the present brilliant tour of the immense Forepaugh show through New England, to prove beyond doubt that he has the most comprehensive, elaborate and startling exhibition in the world. He will be here next Thursday, July 8th, when our own people will have an opportunity to judge for themselves as to its merits. The Boston papers have made such warm endorsements of the great show, as we do not remember to have seen heretofore of any other exhibition performing there. The Daily Post of June 16th makes the following comment:

The magnificent arenic performances which are given every afternoon and evening in the mammoth pavilion on the Union grounds are attracting large crowds. Such a rare combination of talent seldom visits the city, and no one should fail to witness the entertainment. The features are far too numerous to describe in detail, for all are excellent, and each performer shows that skill and ability which characterizes all of Mr. Forepaugh's artists. Daisy Belmont, a dainty little lady of pleasing face and supple figure, gives some remarkably fine performances on the revolving globe. The riding of Miss Annie Carroll is graceful and daring, and the trapeze acts of the Fisher brothers and the Belmonts excite the greatest wonder. The Elliotts, the champion bicycle riders of the world, are very entertaining, and their performances on the wheel are exceedingly graceful. The marvelous feat of riding astride one wheel is successfully accomplished by one of the performers. Captain Bogardus and his four sons, all crack shots, give an exhibition of rifle shooting in connection with the realistic and thrilling stage coach robbery and attack by Indians. These are but a few of the many features which have made Forepaugh's circus famous, and he will miss much who fails to attend the performances this week.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

On a Sunday morning several weeks ago, at a very early hour, there was a prize fight. We are not alluding to anything that may have at any time occurred on any of the islands in this harbor; the Sunday morning prize fight to which we refer took place in the vicinity of Greenfield, Mass., and one of the principals, Mr. James Carroll, seems to have had a hard time of it, according to the report published at the time, to the effect that his antagonist "landed on his bugle," "tapped his claret," "raised a mouse under his dexter eye," "put his peepers in mourning," etc., besides "fibbing him," "fighting him down," causing him to "come up groggy," and otherwise making him uncomfortable and dissatisfied. As a sequel, a despatch of the 2d inst. from Greenfield says:

James Carroll, one of the principals in the Sunday morning prize fight of a few weeks ago, was bound over to the grand jury to-day in $300. A number of prominent people who saw the fight were brought in as witnesses. They were very reluctant to admit that they aided by the purchase of tickets. All had bad memories when particulars were wanted.

It is passing strange what a deleterious effect the Sabbath morning air of New England has on the memories of persons who rise at unseemly hours on that day.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

There will be a union Sunday school convention at the Epping camp ground, commencing Tuesday, August 3d, and continuing through Friday, the 6th, in which the Baptists, Freewill Baptists, Congregationalists and Methodists will unite. Each denomination will assume control of the proceedings for one day, and representative lecturers and instructors from each denomination are to be present. Plans are in progress for a helpful and instructive season of Bible study, and all the privileges of the camp-meeting will be thrown open to the public, without charge. A full programme will be issued at an early date.

INSTALLATION.

At a regular meeting of Osgood Lodge, No. 48, I. O. O. F., held on Thursday evening last, the following officers were installed for the ensuing term:

F. H. Marden, N. G; Willard M. Gray, V. G; D. D. Waldron, warden; Chas. E. Hodsdon, conductor; Chas. H. Clough, R. S; E. B. Prime, treasurer; O. W. Ham, I. G; Orin Griffin, O. G; A. E. Rand, R. S. N. G; H. W. Seavey, L. S. N. G; G. W. Dobbins, R. S. V. G; J. T. Bean, L. S. V. G; C. F. Wells, R. S. S; F. P. Downing, L. S. S; Moses Plumer, chaplain; S. R. Marston, marshal.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, July 3d.

James Ryan, for drunkenness, was fined $3, costs $6.90; paid.

The first number of The Sea Shore, an eight-page weekly paper devoted to the interests of the summer resorts in this vicinity, was issued Saturday by Mr. John D. Randall, the editorial department being in charge of Mr. E. A. Tilton. It is well arranged and well printed, and the initial number is bright and readable; it should meet with good success. The price is five cents a copy; fifty cents for the season.

There came near being a grand conflagration on Penhallow street, Friday, cause by little boys who ought to be at school—but there are no schools at present. In anticipation of the 4th they made a bonfire between two wooden buildings there. The neighbors soon discovered the fire and extinguished it, else there might have been a fire alarm under the new dispensation.

The fire alarm telegraph poles about the city have been painted. These poles now present a comparatively neat appearance.

The electric lights were started up on Saturday evening, and the post-office vestibule, French's and Fay's stores, and several street corners, shone resplendent, making the other stores and ordinary street lights appear sickliled o'er with the pale cast of kerosene and gas.

Capt. James Fitzgerald, wife and family, formerly of this city but now of Florida, arrived in town on Wednesday of last week, and left on Thursday for a few days' stop among the White mountains.

Mr. John W. Berry, of Foss' beach, Rye, on Saturday placed on our desk a very handsome potato weighing fifteen ounces, raised on his place. Mr. Berry evidently knew how to put that potato where it would do the most good; we ate it on Sunday at dinner.

The sewer tunnel was on Saturday evening through all but eight feet of rock, and that was all drilled ready for blasting out on the glorious 4th.

A dock-master has been appointed at the navy yard. Some visitors looking at the dry dock found an official dressed in the uniform of a United States marine, and armed with a bayonet, who said he had been appointed to the position at a salary of $13 per month and rations.

The pond known as the Almshouse pond was on Saturday being pumped out by one of the steam fire engines, into the new pond near the junction of the two roads, and then pumped across the road into the low land near the Johnson house.

The Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, opened Saturday, dinner being served at six o'clock to about forty guests. The Pierce family of St. Louis, Mo., had been at the Rockingham since June 24th, waiting for the Wenworth to open. W. S. Carroll and family, of Baltimore, arrived Saturday and have taken rooms at the Wentworth. The electric lights were tried Friday evening, and worked well.

C. E. Myers & Co., at the old stand, corner of Market and Bow streets, are offering a full line of men's and boys' nice merino underwear at thirty-five cents, well worth fifty. Ready made clothing as cheap as goods of equal quality can be sold by any one in the city.

The great success of the grand reduction sale of Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s proves that people really do appreciate good goods at low prices, notwithstanding the assertions of some dealers to the contrary.

The fault that has been found with Insect Powder is because of the inferior advertised articles in the market. "Preston's Insect Powder" has attained an enviable reputation, and its quality is guaranteed.

Children's elegant corduroy velvet suits marked down to $5.00 at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s, 32 Congress street.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, July 3d, 1886.

Frequent complaints having been brought to my notice that men and boys are in the habit of bathing in the waters exposed to the streets, highways and other public places, especially in Sagamore Creek near Lafayette road and Sagamore road, in violation of the city ordinances; notice is hereby given that all persons found offending in this particular will be prosecuted to the extent of the law.

The City Marshal and Police Officers are hereby directed to see that the laws in this regard are strictly enforced.

(From the Cincinnati (Ohio) Sun.)

Probably the largest concern of its kind that has grown up amongst us in the past decade is the Duffy Malt Whiskey Company of Baltimore, Md. The other day the writer met a representative of this house and among other of the interesting questions that came up, was one as to how this Company could afford to expend such large sums of money in advertising such an excellent brand of whiskey, and on which the margin of profit is necessarily small.

"Well, sir," replied the gentleman, "it is done entirely on the strength of a good article, in the merit and purity of which we have the utmost confidence. This is probably the first instance of the kind in the business of the country where it has paid a business like ours to extensively advertise its whiskey.

"Heretofore large newspaper advertising has been confined almost exclusively to patent medicines and other proprietary preparations, in which there is usually a profit of from 200 to 300 per cent (never less) as in the case of so-called bitters, for instance, which frequently consist, as analysis has shown, of the cheapest of poisonous kinds of alcohol for a base (the government allows 30 per cent) the rest of the compound being a few inexpensive, flavoring extracts to make it palatable. It was with the idea that people would sooner or later come to realize this fact, that we determined to put our whiskey on the market under its true name, merit and medicinal uses, and although we have received numerous propositions from prominent religious papers, and clergyman, we have steadily held out against any change of title or any disguise of its character, and yet despite the natural prejudice which exists against the use of liquor in any form, we have received in the past three months over 3,000 unsolicited testimonials from persons who have been cured or benefitted by our whiskey, and who out of a pure sense of gratitude are willing that their names be published. You see our whiskey is distilled by a secret process whereby every trace of fusel oil is eliminated, and to-day we are the discoverers and only manufacturers in the country of an absolutely pure article."

The remains were taken to Whitefield, where services were held on the 2d inst., and the remains interred.

Hay Fever.

I have been a great sufferer from hay fever for fifteen years and have tried various things without doing any good. I read of the many wondrous cures of Ely's Cream Balm and thought I would try once more. In fifteen minutes after one application I was wonderfully helped. Two weeks ago I commenced using it and now I feel entirely cured. It is the greatest discovery ever known or heard of.—Duhamel Clark, farmer, Lee, Mass.

For a family medicine Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills are unrivalled. They root out disease, as if by magic.

Twenty lasters employed at Gales Brothers' shoe factory in Haverhill, Mass., quit work July 2d by order of the committee of the Lasters' Protective Union. They were receiving union prices, but as it was claimed that the lasters at Gale Brothers' factory at Exeter, N. H., were not, the lasters in Haverhill were ordered out to sustain the striking lasters at the Exeter factory. This firm employs some 300 hands. S. H. Gale, junior member of the Haverhill firm, asserts that the Exeter factory is not connected with the factory in Haverhill. A long contest may result from the trouble.

Fortify the system, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, against the diseases peculiar to hot weather. This medicine induces a healthy action of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, causing them to prevent the accumulation of the poisons which produce disease.

BENTON'S HAIR GROWER.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp; should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHT PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow Hair in 80 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.

Unlike other preparations, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.

It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.

The Hair Grower is a hair food, and its composition is almost exactly like the oil which supplies the hair with its vitality.

Mrs. Betsey Moody died on the 5th at Cape Elizabeth, Me., aged 104 years.

THE WASTING DISEASES OF INFANTS and children are by no means confined to an insufficient supply of food. The trouble is that the food is injudiciously selected, and the limited digestive power of the child is unable to assimilate it. Mellin's food, when prepared according to the directions, forms the best substitute for mothers' milk that has ever been produced.

After many years of fruitless experiment a process for casting wrought iron has been at length perfected. The invention was brought to this country a few months ago by Peter Oestberg, of Stockholm, Sweden, and at once attracted the attention of a number of capitalists, who have organized a company for the prosecution of business under the patents.

There is no remedy for pains, aches and soreness so prompt in action as a Hop Plaster. 25c.

Francis McCabe, thirteen years old, of Providence, R. I., died on the 3d from lock-jaw, having slightly wounded his left hand with a toy pistol.

Every nervous person should try Carter's Little Nerve pills. They are made specially for nervous and dyspeptic men women, and are just the medicine needed by all persons who, from any cause, do not sleep well, or who fail to get proper strength from their food. Cases of weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous and sick headache, etc., readily yield to the use of the Little Nerve Pills, particularly if combined with Carter's Little Liver Pills. In vials at 25 cents.

It is now known that the Institute fire in Boston, in which a number of men perished, was not incendiary, but was due to a neglected glue pot, the person responsible having confessed the matter.

To most children, the bare suggestion of a dose of castor oil is nauseating. When physic is necessary for the little ones, use Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take. Try them.

—Young lady—"Oh, Clara, I've had such a delightful time; and conquests! You wouldn't believe me if I were to tell you of the number I have made." Clara—"Oh, yes, I would, but some other time, dear. I have just been hearing your brother Jack tell of his success at fishing, and am a trifle tired."

Ministers, lawyers, teachers, and others whose occupation gives but little exercise, should use Carter's Little Liver Pills for torpid liver and billiousness. One is a dose.

—"Well, how did you like the sermon Sunday?" one lady asked another recently. "I didn't hear any sermon. I belong to the choir," was the self-satisfied rejoinder.

My Head was Fairly Rotten,
And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. I paid hundreds of dollars, for which I received no benefit. I got more good from two bottles of Sulphur Bitters than from all the money I paid to doctors. I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

Mr. William Hunt of Vineton, Autauga Co., Ala., came to town to forward his ticket, which drew one-fifth of the capital prize of $75,000, amounting to $15,000, in The Louisiana State Lottery at New Orleans. In twenty years he has paid out $435, and received (including the last prize) $15,935. He is satisfied that the drawing is straight and fair.—Selma (Ala.) Times, May 18th.

She Knew Her Man.

Prof. X., an excellent educator and profound student, who does not spurn a reasonable share of homely household duties that falls to the lot of every head of a New England family of moderate circumstances, was in his den deeply absorbed in the contemplation of an abstruse subject, when his wife opened the door and called softly to him:

"My dear, could you help us in our house-cleaning by beating just three rugs that you'll find out under the south window of the parlor? If you will please take them out into the back yard and beat them out and hang them on the line, and I'll be so much obliged."

The Professor arose, seized the most serviceable walking-stick, and went out into the yard, and deeply absorbed in the learned meditations that had occupied him in the house. He took one of the three rugs from under the parlor window, transferred it to the back yard, beat it long and manfully, and hung it on the line. When he came back for another rug he was still too much absorbed to notice that there was still three rugs under the window, and, when he had beaten another, and had hung that out, and had come back again, and there were still three rugs under the window, his meditations never switched off from the subject of their concentration to the regular and mysterious renewal of the third rug.

And so he kept on beating those three rugs and meditating until the morning wore into midday, and the professor began to grow hungry; and when the yearnings of appetite actually brought his contemplation down to ordinary things, it occurred to him to look at the clothes line, and there he counted no less than sixteen rugs, all beautifully beaten.

Newspaper Opinions.

Any person who pleases may become the possessor of a newspaper, so that his means allow him to buy presses, ink and paper. If the newspaper is ably conducted in the matter of news, and if it gains such a circulation that advertisers use it as a medium, it is a remunerative undertaking. But the opinions that it professes are those of its editor or of its proprietor, and are of no more importance than those which a vender of pills might see fit to air in the papers in which he wraps his pill-boxes. My own conviction is that there is nothing which so much puts the back up of those vast numbers who are neither editors nor proprietors of newspapers as for journalists to attempt to frame opinion for them. At the general election of 1880 the London journals, almost without exception, ordered the electors to vote in favor of the Beaconsfield candidates. They prophesied the success of those candidates, and so confident were they that this dictation would secure to Lord Beaconsfield a majority that they sneered and scoffed at Mr. Gladstone. Yet what was the result.—London Truth.

Flies on the Window Pane.

Holman Hunt, in an autobiographical article in the Contemporary Review, tells the following: My father was from the first strongly opposed to my becoming an artist; he had had reason to see the ill effects of a loafing, idle life, and he believed, in accordance with the general opinion of those days, that artists were necessarily of a reckless, frivolous character, and led a useless, unstable life. So, finding that at school I scribbled more designs than exercises in my copybooks, he removed me from school when I was 12½ years old, with the intention of placing me in some city office. Owing to a fortunate accident I was placed with an auctioneer and estate agent as a sort of probationary clerk, and one day my master, coming into the office hurriedly, caught me putting away something in my desk, and, insisting upon seeing it, discovered that I could draw. This led to inquiries on his part as to whether I had painted, and it turned out that he was himself fond of art, and, whenever he could get a chance, practiced painting. "One day," he said to me, "when there's nothing much to be done, you and I will shut ourselves in here and have a day's painting together;" and so it happened. Here were the tables turned upon my father with a vengeance! I was getting artistic encouragement from the very employer who should have been distilling into me commercial principles. This lasted about a year and a half, when, owing to my employer's retirement from business, I obtained another situation in the city at a Manchester warehouse, in Cateaton street, managed by a London agent of Richard Cobden. Here I sat by myself in a little room looking out on three blank walls and made entries in a ledger, and seemed further than ever from my desire of becoming an artist. But here, too, curiously enough, another artistic friend turned up, in the person of an occasional clerk whose business it was to design patterns for the firm's calicos, etc. Surreptitiously I also used to try my hand at designing, and attained sufficient proficiency to enable my friend to make use of my designs on various occasions. I remember an amusing incident of this period, which gave me great delight at the time. The window of my room was made of ground glass, and, having but little to do, I passed my time drawing with both pen and pencil flies upon its roughened surface. A good blot of ink sufficed for the body and some delicate strokes with a hard pencil for the wings, and at a short distance the deception was perfect. Day by day the number of flies in that room increased, till one day my employer, coming in, stopped suddenly in front of the window and said: "I can't make out how it is; every day I come into this room there seems to be more flies in it," and he took out his handkerchief to brush them away.

An Important Function Stimulated.
The kidneys exercise most important functions, which are so wearisome that they tax to the utmost the strength and endurance of these busy little organs. Every breath, every pulsation of the heart, every movement of a limb, every thought, makes waste and necessitates the development of new atoms. The used up particles in the blood are sifted from it and dissolved in a watery fluid by the kidneys, which then discharge this fluid into the bladder. A train of disasters to the system would follow if these "ashes," so to speak, were not thoroughly strained off and discharged. This is the case when the kidneys become inactive. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by restoring their activity, not only keeps open a most important outlet for impurities, but prevents diseases of the kidneys themselves, which when inert become liable to fall a prey to diabetes, Bright's disease, mephitis, albumenuria, and other maladies specially incident to them, which, although not specially rapid in their progression, are particularly obstinate and fatal.

At Fraunsdale, Ala., W. G. Garret, the manager of a plantation, censured a negro tenant for neglect of duty. The tenant and his wife called on Garret that night, and after some words the woman shot Garret dead with a revolver.

Mrs. A. W. Brockaw, of Groton, Brown Co., Dakota, used Allcock's Plasters for fifteen years—completely cured of irregularity by using two plasters across the small of the back for seven days each month—also found them very efficacious in kidney trouble—cured of a dull, heavy pain and pressure at the base of the brain by wearing an Allcock's Porous Plaster at the back of the neck.

That Terrible Drain

Which scrofula has upon the system must be arrested, and the blood must be purified, or serious consequences will ensue. For purifying and vitalizing effects, Hood's Sarsaparilla has been found superior to any other preparation. It expels every trace of impurity from the blood, and bestows new life and vigor upon every function of the body, enabling it to entirely overcome disease.

Will Not Reciprocate.

Capt. Lyle, who was for some years engaged in important experiments at the armory in Springfield, Mass., has recently returned from Europe, whither he was sent to examine the process of manufacturing big guns and armor plate. He complains of very discourteous treatment. He was allowed to look at the outside of the manufactories, but not to investigate. He says that European officers who have visited this country for similar purposes have always had carte blanche to go where they wished and see all they could, but the compliment is not returned. In England especially Capt. Lyle appears to have been utterly snubbed.

AROUND HOME.

The ladies of the Domestic Missionary Society will have a lawn party at Lincoln hill this afternoon, by invitation of Mrs. F. W. Miller.

R. Hamilton Perkins, Esq., superintendent of schools in Chicopee, Mass., is with his wife and child paying a visit to Mrs. Perkins' parents in this city.

Hon. Christopher E. Rymes of Somerville, Mass., passed through this city on Sunday, bound to the Isles of Shoals.

A game of base ball between the Clippers of Exeter and the Dovers, at Pinkham's grove, Dover point, on the 5th, was won by the Clippers, eighteen to thirteen.

William D. Perkips of this city died in the hospital at Brentwood on Tuesday, after a long illness.

Winslow Ayers, a young man who has been employed in one of the livery stables of the city, wandered away last Saturday and was found in Exeter on Monday and brought back. His mind is disordered.

Lewis Bruce, Esq., now a resident of Boston, but formerly extensively engaged in the house and ship painting business in this city when ship building was active here, is visiting his relative, Wm. A. Meloon, on High street.

Tuesday was much the hottest day of the year, so far—one hundred in the shade in various parts of the city, and holding at that temperature several hours.

Robeck, the Congress street confectioner, opens a branch store at York beach, near the Marshall house, this week. His fame as a cake baker and caterer for nice dainties has preceded him.

Among the Concord people enjoying their summer outing in this vicinity are Hon. James F. Norris, Capt. W. F. Thayer and family, the family of W. G. C. Kimball, D. E. Willard, and W. H. MARITIME NOTES.

The steam yacht Firefly, of Boston, owned by Mr. J. W. Abbott, S. M. Eaton sailing master, left Portland on the 5th inst. for Essex, Mass., and meeting a thick fog off the Nubble, put into Portsmouth lower harbor about three o'clock in the afternoon. She started again again at 5:30 A. M. on the 6th, and when off Hampton beach, running at half speed, the end of the shaft broke off, and with the propeller went to the bottom. The disabled steamer returned to the lower harbor under sail, and the master telegraphed to the owner for instructions.

The schooner yacht Ambassadress, of New York, the largest sailing yacht in this country; the schooner Adrienne, of Boston, which has as sailing master one of that noted family of skippers, the Frisbees of Kittery Point; and nine other yachts, sailed from the lower harbor Monday forenoon, and bore away to the eastward.

The schooner Emily A. Staples, which was recently taken on the marine railway at Kittery for the third time this year, to endeavor to discover a bad leak, has come off, the leak having been found in the stem, which was split. She was also thoroughly recaulked while on the ways. The schooner Grace Choate has gone on the railway to be painted.

Five hundred mackerel were taken in the weir on the Kittery side of the harbor on the morning of the 5th inst. Bait is also plentiful now.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., July 5th.

Mr. C. F. Huidekoper of Worcester, Mass., a man of plenty of cash, and who enjoys sport, has recently had built a New York sharpie clipper, for the purpose of challenging the York people. He issued his challenge, and the race took place Saturday afternoon. Eight boats started. Two "Old York" boats owned by Leander Donnell made the best time, and the New York clipper brought up the rear! The prize, a silk pennant, was won by the old York boat Golden Eagle. Old York still ahead! The Golden Eagle will challenge the Puritan.

A long-felt want, that of a shoe maker and repairer at York Corner, is now supplied. Mr. R. Doucette has taken the store for many years occupied by Francis Plaisted, and is now ready to do a good job of repairing, or to build new boots and shoes. His charges are very moderate, and he is a first-class workman. We bespeak for him a liberal patronage.

Mr. Lowell S. Grant, one of our best farmers, has recently purchased from his brother Joseph L. Grant the undivided one-half of the homestead farm of their father, thus giving Lowell a good farm. Joseph owns and resides on a good farm on the banks of York river, near Rice's bridge. They are both (in to-day's language) "well hitched," and are reliable men. F.

Our readers will remember that last year the marines were sent from the navy yard at this station and from other yards to Panama, by order of Secretary Whitney. The necessity of the expedition was universally acknowledged. But the house of representatives committee on appropriations, under democratic orders, refused in spite of the secretary's earnest appeals to recommend the payment of their expenses. In committee of the whole last week the singular action of the appropriations committee was overruled, and the secretary has to thank the republicans for their efforts in enabling him to pay a part of the expenses of what the president facetiously designated as "Whitney's war."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 123 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Increasing cloudiness, light local rains, variable winds, slight changes in temperature.

Clear.

THE CELEBRATION.

The boys made a kind of double-barrelled holiday of the 4th this year, commencing in very good earnest early Saturday evening, and keeping up a tremendous clatter with tin horns, fire crackers, cannon crackers, torpedoes and fire arms until about half-past eleven o'clock, when silence like a poultice came, etc. Sunday was fairly quiet, and Sunday night also up to midnight, though patriotism would occasionally get the better of some urchin's reverence for the day, and impel him to let off a cracker in the back yard.

As the clock sounded twelve, Sunday night, the uproar of Saturday evening was resumed, with variations and on an enlarged scale. Bonfires were started on Market square, Powderhouse hill, at Christian Shore, South street, "the dump," and other places; the Christian Shore bell rope was captured, and also that of the south ward building; and some persons,—quite a number of them it would seem, from the amount of work they accomplished,—sought to effect an esthetic change by removing window blinds from many houses on Islington, State, Court, Middle and other central streets, in some cases substituting others of different color, but usually stacking them on somebody's front steps.

The impromptu show boards, three or four feet square, which were put up around town by the hundreds by the rival circuses, nearly all disappeared between midnight on Sunday and daylight Monday morning, and left no sign of their whereabouts, unless in the shape of ashes on the bonfire sites.

The bells of the city were rung morning, noon and evening; and Uncle Sam's men fired a national salute from the navy yard battery at noon.

The principal feature of the forenoon was the bicyclers' parade, which took place between ten and eleven o'clock, there being 100 in the procession. According to the programme they stacked their wheels at the foot of Daniel street and took a trip down the harbor on the Mystic, on returning from which most of them wheeled to the Wentworth for dinner, returning in season for a run to Gravelly Ridge before the visitors took the evening trains for home.

The North Berwick band arrived in the city about noon, and from that time until they marched to the depot at 8:30 P. M. to take the train, discoursed music on the Parade in liberal quantity and of good quality.

At the cricket field, near Frenchman's lane, there was a series of sports, and a large company of spectators to witness them in the afternoon. A cricket match between the International club of Lowell, Mass., and the Portsmouth club, was won by the visitors, who made a total of 213 to 62 for the home club. A match game of base ball announced to take place between the Rochester and Portsmouth clubs did not come off, the Rochesters not putting in an appearance; but a game was had between two picked nines, the score being twelve to ten. The Portsmouth and South Newmarket clubs afterward played four innings, the score at the close standing six to two in favor of the Portsmouths; for the latter club Newton and Trefethen, as pitcher and catcher, did some fine work. A tug-of-war between teams from the Eldredge and Jones breweries was won by the latter. Putting the heavy stone was won by a man from the Eldredge brewery, who sent a thirty-pound stone thirty feet. Some proposed jumping matches were given up.

The harbor steamers were largely patronized, and the letting boats were about all in use through the day. Picnic parties were numerous along the banks of the river, both up and down.

There was the usual private burning of fireworks during the day and evening, but no public display except by individuals. The number of people on the streets was less than usual on the 4th, and the city was silent some time before midnight.

Fire caught on the roof of a shed on Mt. Vernon street, owned by George Perkins, on the morning of the 5th, it is supposed from a fire cracker thrown there by a boy. The neighbors mustered and put it out.

A small boy and a fire cracker started a fire on the roof of George Cox's store at Christian Shore on the 5th, but instead of giving an alarm the fire department of "the Shore" organized under the leadership of Engineer George A. Jackson, with George Mills as first assistant, and soon checked the rioting of the conflagration. The building is owned by Hon. Frank Jones, and the shingles were damaged to the amount of fifty cents.

The boys at Newcastle commenced their celebration of the 4th on Saturday evening, and were more boisterous over it than ever before, ringing the schoolhouse bell, shouting, burning gunpowder and playing drums and fifes until one o'clock Sunday morning.

SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

HALL OF KEARSARGE S. F. E., No. 3.
PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 3d.

C. M. GIGNOUX, Esq. — Dear Sir: The members of this company being desirous of aiding in the noble work of erecting a monument to the memory of the brave defenders of their country, have voted to contribute the sum of $100 (one hundred dollars) for that purpose. Yours Respectfully.

WILLARD J. SAMPSON, Foreman.
C. H. BESSELIEVRE, Clerk.

FOREPAUGH'S COLOSSAL SHOW.

This immense aggregation of menagerie and circus attractions will exhibit in this city to-morrow, (Thursday,) afternoon and evening. That it is a colossal exhibition there can be no question, the Boston papers speaking of it in the highest terms. The staid old Advertiser of June 16th said:

The numerous features—so numerous as almost to bewilder the spectators by their rapid changes—were presented in the most satisfactory manner, and received the emphatic approval of the thousands present. The marvellous shooting of Captain Bogardus and his four son pupils, and the pictures of lawless frontier life as presented by the Indians and cow-boys, are among the most popular entertainments in the show.

The exhibition of animals was very large and interesting. The two rings, supplemented by the raised platform, were kept constantly in requisition. Among the most striking features were the rifle shooting by the Bogardus family, performing ponies, boxing elephant, and the high-wire bicycle. Perhaps the most remarkable instance of training, combined with animal instinct, was seen in the performance of the Blondin horse on a tight-rope. As a whole this circus will be voted one of the best that ever came. —Boston Journal.

The show, as a whole, surpasses the best ever seen here. The menagerie is large and well stocked, and is of itself a feature that will repay careful inspection. There are several cages of lions, lionesses and cubs, tigers, tigresses and cubs, a fine specimen of the hippopotamus, a giraffe, and hyenas, bears, sea lions, and other animals, and costly birds in great variety and of rare beauty. The circus contains enough in any one of its three departments to keep the eye riveted upon it throughout the whole performance, and where there is so much that is excellent the spectator cannot but find some act of the three that are simultaneously performed that will gratify his taste. The show has a quartet of splendid riders in Daisy Belmont and Annie Carroll, and Sam Watson and William Showles. Miss Belmont deserves especial mention for her grace and finish in riding.—Herald.

It was a bewildering entertainment, and those who came away from it had confused memories of daring riders, performing elephants, trick ponies, aerial performers who seemed to think flying through the air from one trapeze to another a pleasant kind of exercise, agile bicycle riders, a Samson who seemed happy only in tossing weights of enormous size, a flash of flying wheels in the chariot race, jockeys contending for the mastery on blooded steeds, tumblers who appeared to be endowed with rubber joints, Indians, cow boys, the Deadwood coach, and animals of all kinds.—Traveller.

The mayor deserves thanks for his endeavor to put a stop to the practice of boys bathing in waters exposed to the highways. This practice has too long been permitted. The vicinity of the bridge on Lafayette road has long been on Sundays a place of resort of these bathers. An officer stationed at this exposed place on Sunday might be able to stop this violation of the law, and of decency.

Master Josiah Lovell had a portion of the palm of his right hand shot off on Friday by the explosion of a blank cartridge in a toy pistol with which he was playing.

The Oceanic, at Star island, under the management of Mr. O. L. Frisbee is booming as it never boomed before so early in the season, from the time the first Oceanic was built by Mr. Poor down to the present year. There were forty arrivals on the opening day, (last Thursday,) and the number on Sunday had reached seventy-five; several families were also due the first of this week, having engaged rooms for the season. A large fleet of yachts arrived in Star island roads on Sunday, and anchored. The schooner yacht Adrienne, of Boston, anchored off the Appledore house Sunday afternoon.

The bath houses, twenty or thirty in number, at the westerly end of Jenness' beach, Rye, were destroyed on the 5th inst. by a fire-cracker conflagration.

Mr. Carter, who many years ago was messenger for Cheney & Co.'s express between this city and Concord, and afterward was engaged in the Concord office up to a recent period, is now running as messenger over his old route during a temporary absence of Mr. French of Concord.

There were a hundred guests at the Farragut house, Rye, on Monday.

The tug Storm King, of Boston, arrived at the Isles of Shoals on Tuesday with 200 members of the Watermelon club of Swampscott, Mass., on board. The party dined at the Oceanic, and after an hour's stroll about the island embarked on their return.

The east-bound Pullman train, Saturday evening, was half an hour late in arriving from Boston, and had seventeen cars loaded with passengers.

The Bangor Express arrived here about two hours late, Tuesday morning, having been nearly two and a half hours late in arriving at Portland; the delay occurred on the Maine Central, somewhere down toward Bangor.

C. E. Myers & Co., at the old stand, corner of Market and Bow streets, are offering a full line of men's and boys' nice merino underwear at thirty-five cents, well worth fifty. Ready made clothing as cheap as goods of equal quality can be sold by any one in the city.

The great success of the grand reduction sale of Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s proves that people really do appreciate good goods at low prices, notwithstanding the assertions of some dealers to the contrary.

The fault that has been found with Insect Powder is because of the inferior advertised articles in the market. "Preston's Insect Powder" has attained an enviable reputation, and its quality is guaranteed.

Children's elegant corduroy velvet suits marked down to $5.60 at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s, 32 Congress street.

I call myself cured, in gratitude for which I make this public statement

MRS. CLARA A. FREDERICK.

Constitutional Catarrh.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastening the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind,—one or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored, because but little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won the hearty approval of thousands. It is instantaneous in affording relief in all head colds, sneezing, snuffing and obstructed breathing, and rapidly removes the most oppressive symptoms, clearing the head, sweetening the breath, restoring the sense of smell, taste and hearing, and neutralizing the constitutional tendency of the disease towards the lungs, liver and kidneys.

George Westinghouse.

George Westinghouse owes his great and rapidly increasing wealth to his inventive genius. Twenty years ago he was a poor young man, but he struck it rich in his air brake for railroads, and money has since flowed into his coffers in a golden stream. He is one of the most prolific inventors of the age, and has enough good mechanical ideas to furnish every manufacturing establishment in Pittsburg with successful specialties. He is not only highly skilled in theoretical and practical mechanics, but is also a thorough electrician. He expends an ordinary fortune every year in experiments necessary to the perfection of his inventions. By warrant of the King of Belgium he is entitled to the title of Sir George Westinghouse, having been knighted by that monarch as a recognition of his services to the world as an inventor. He is a native of New York State, and is about 40 years old.—N. Y. Sun.

There have been fought in France since 1870 847 duels, besides many between officers and between private soldiers, which are scarcely ever mentioned in the papers. INSOMNIA.

Are the American People Becoming a Nation of Lunatics?

The Frightful Increase of Insanity Caused by Nervousness and Sleeplessness.

The increase of insanity in America during the last ten years has been more than forty per cent. The largest and finest public buildings recently erected have had to be given over to the care of lunatics, and they are all filled to their fullest capacity. These facts are appalling. They show that something must be done speedily to prevent this increase or we shall become a nation of lunatics. One of the greatest causes of insanity is loss of sleep. Physicians say that some persons fail to sleep for four nights they are on the verge of insanity. And yet narcotics are dangerous. It is only when the body is vitalized that perfect sleep can be secured. A committee of physicians, that recently investigated this subject, found the lack of albumen in the system to be responsible for nervousness, insomnia, and insanity than any other known agency. Prof. Rose, the celebrated chemist, says: "Hoptonic, a combination of peptonized beef, hops and malt, contains all the albuminous substances required by the human, and is therefore the ideal, as it is in fact a perfect fleas food."

Since the introduction of Hoptonic a marked effect has been found, by practical observers, upon those persons who have used it, and it is absolutely contributing more to check nervousness, debility, insomnia and insanity than any other known agency. As such its value is inestimable.

The warm weather often has a depressing and debilitating effect. Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes all languor and lassitude.

The Canadian cruiser Terror on the 2d inst. seized the American fishing schooners George W. Cushing and C. B. Harrington, both of Portland, Me., at Shelburne harbor, Nova Scotia, for alleged violation of the customs regulations in allowing their men to go on shore before the vessels were reported at the custom house.

Women suffering from aching sides and back apply a Hop Plaster, it has soothing properties.

Advices from Shelburne, N. S., state that the collector has received orders from Ottawa to impose a fine of $400 upon each of the three Portland vessels seized there by the Dominion cruiser Terror—the City Point, George W. Cushing and C. B. Harrington. The fine is imposed for violation of the customs laws, and not for infraction of the fishery regulations.

Hay Fever.

I have been a great sufferer from hay fever for fifteen years and have tried various things without doing any good. I read of the many wondrous cures of Ely's Cream Balm and thought I would try once more. In fifteen minutes after one application I was wonderfully helped. Two weeks ago I commenced using it and now I feel entirely cured. It is the greatest discovery ever known or heard of.—Duhamel Clark, farmer, Lee, Mass.

A compulsory education bill has been introduced into the Louisiana legislature.

Prompt relief in sick headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, pain in the side, etc., guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One pill a dose. Twenty-five cents.

Tom F. Collins, a Lake Shore switchman at Chicago, was sentenced to thirty days in jail for violating the injunction granted the road, enjoining any interference or acts of violence. Palliating circumstances saved him from a heavier sentence.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are free from all crude and irritating matter. Concentrated medicine only; very small; very easy to take; no pain; no griping; no purging.

Charles Hart, twenty-four years old, was drowned while bathing in the river at Malden, Mass., July 3d.

For a family medicine Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills are unrivalled. They root out disease, as if by magic.

Major Timothy B. Crowley, a gallant soldier of the late war, died in Nashua on the 4th inst.

Fortify the system, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, against the diseases peculiar to hot weather. This medicine induces a healthy action of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, causing them to prevent the accumulation of the poisons which produce disease.

BENTON'S HAIR GROWER.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp, should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHTY PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow Hair in 40 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.

Unlike other preparations, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.

It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.

THE INTELLIGENCE OF DOGS.

Some Remarkable Examples of Canine Sagacity—A Conclusion.

Quite a remarkable paper on the dog's intelligence from the pen of a well-known French savant appears in The Popular Science Monthly. From its title: "What May Animals Be Taught," the writer's object, which is to show a radical difference between the human and animal intelligence. He combats the theory generally accepted at the present day, that the dog's intelligence, however much it may differ from man's in degree, is the same in kind. Thus he says:

"If, while sitting at my table, I say to my son: 'Will you be so good as to bring me my slippers?' he will understand me. If I say the same thing to my dog, in the same tone and without moving, he will not understand me. I shall have to express myself in a particular manner and a particular tone of voice. He will understand: 'Mouston, bring the slippers!' or 'Mouston, slippers!' or, 'Mouston, bring!' But he will not understand the cool, calm request that is sufficient direction to my boy. Provided I make the accustomed gesture, the dog will obey, though I use the wrong word; and he will not obey, though I use the right word, if I speak in an indifferent tone as if to some one behind the scenes."

Now with all respect to the sagacity of this very clever writer, we beg leave to differ with him on the point raised, and with others who hold to the same theory. Their contention is, that the action of the dog in the case cited and in all similar cases, is the action of an automaton or machine, made to run as it is directed without any discourse of reason.

That the dog will not understand as the boy does, the "cool, calm request," unless it is accompanied by some gesture or peculiar tone of voice to indicate what is wanted, we deny. Take for instance the historical case of the dog near Detroit, which was left on shore, while his master was on board a steamboat anchored in the middle of the river. The dog makes an effort to reach him by swimming toward the boat; but the current carries him down a considerable distance below where the steamer is anchored. As soon as the dog sees this, he immediately swims back again, and going higher up the shore, again strikes out for his master; the current carries him for the second time still below the boat, but not so far below as before. The third time he swims out, starting at a point still farther up the river than when he started the second time. Thus he repeats the experiment several times more, being careful each time to start out a little higher up the stream than before, thus making allowance for the rapidity of the current in carrying him down stream, until finally he comes abreast of the steamer, and is taken aboard.

If the mental processes which the dog went through in making these successive experiments were not those of reason, and of reason precisely like that which a human being employes, what in the name of reason were they? And how can they be explained on any pretense or principle of automatic action?

Again, take the movements of the noble St. Bernard, which, a few years ago, accompanied his master through the principal cities of the United States, selling some sort of patent medicine. Many a time we have seen his master issuing orders to the dog in a low tone of voice and with his head bent down, as if to avoid giving instructions by any peculiarity of tone or any movement of the body. The orders were like these: "I want you to go to that wagon across the street, where the driver sits with his whip in his hand, and take a seat beside him;" or: "Go to that post down the street, where they hitch horses, and see if you can stand on it."

Immediately in each of these cases, and in others like them, the dog would deliberately obey the instructions given him, without his master raising his eyes, or indicating by any peculiarity of tone or gesture what he wished. And nothing could be more comical than to see the huge animal mount the post, and after, perhaps, repeated efforts plant his four feet in an upright position on the top, with scarcely room enough for all four, without putting one on top of another.

No human servant, however well drilled, could have obeyed the commands more punctually or precisely; and none could have performed the dog's feat. There is then no difference between the kind of intelligence shown by the dog and his master, however great the difference is in degree.—American Field.

The Wife of Historian Bancroft.

A topic of conversation in American society, writes a Paris correspondent, is the lonely state of Mr. George Bancroft, the historian, who a short time ago was left a widower at the age of 86. I had a short and agreeable acquaintance with Mrs. Bancroft, when she and her husband represented the United States republic at Berlin. Had she lived another year she would have celebrated her golden wedding with Bancroft, who was her second husband. They were an interesting couple. She was ceremonious without being prim or starched. Her smile showed self-complacency, free, however, from conceit, and certainly a wish to be very gracious. She spoke with deliberation, and yet avoided drawling, and brought out every word with clear distinctness. Mr. Bancroft, a white-bearded, hale old gentleman, with a fine eye, that denoted sagacity and a quick perception, was, when she spoke of him, "the minister," or "my husband." He was as ceremonious and as free from starch as his

Of three anarchists convicted at Milwaukee on Saturday one had been in the country but a short time, and two were unable to speak a work of English. Yet these are the men who try to dictate to American workingmen where they shall work and what they shall get for it, and to employers whom they shall employ and what they shall pay them. They bring discredit upon us, although they are not of us. They are the scum and offscouring of Europe, and Americans who follow their leadership are making a grave mistake.—Boston Journal.

An Important Function Stimulated.

The kidneys exercise most important functions, which are so wearisome that they tax to the utmost the strength and endurance of these busy little organs. Every breath, every pulsation of the heart, every movement of a limb, every thought, makes waste and necessitates the development of new atoms. The used up particles in the blood are sifted from it and dissolved in a watery fluid by the kidneys, which then discharge this fluid into the bladder. A train of disasters to the system would follow if these "ashes," so to speak, were not thoroughly strained off and discharged. This is the case when the kidneys become inactive. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by restoring their activity, not only keeps open a most important outlet for impurities, but prevents diseases of the kidneys themselves, which when inert become liable to fall a prey to diabetes, Bright's disease, mephitis, albumenuria, and other maladies specially incident to them, which, although not specially rapid in their progression, are particularly obstinate and fatal.

The Pan-Electric Mess.

When Secretary of War Belknap was discovered to have prostituted his office by allowing a petty post tradership to be sold, the democrats were fierce to impeach him. General Grant, knowing that Belknap's error was not wholly his own, but that he assumed it partly to shield the character of another, allowed him to resign, but there never was any suggestion that he ought to be permitted to retain his office.

President Cleveland finds himself in a peculiar difficulty with the affair of his attorney general. Mr. Garland could not resign under fire, and now Chairman Boyle has committed the president and his party by reporting a resolution that expressly declares that neither Messrs. Garland, Harris, Lamar, Goode or the other men in the Pan-Electric scrape, did anything officially or otherwise which was dishonest, dishonorable or censurable."

This resolution commits the democrats in congress (including Speaker Carlisle and Messrs. Randall and Hewitt, who would not be caught in the toils,) to voting that Garland and the others did right. The consideration of the resolution will, of course, develope a discussion, and the country will soon see an airing of this affair which will not be creditable to the administration. It is an unfortunate dilemma for the president, and yet it is said that up at Albany Mr. D. B. Hill laughs in his sleve at the pickle in which his predecessor finds himself. The country is interested in this spectacle, and the calls received by every mail by Mr. Manney for copies of his Pan-Electric report are immense,—especially, as we have before remarked, as this is a reform administration.

The Veto of the Pension Bills.

Senator Blair, from the committee on pensions, has submitted a report recommending the passage of a bill giving a pension, over the president's veto. The report discusses the situation fairly. Among other bits of truth contained in the report is the following:

It is sufficient to observe that the jurisdiction of the legislative power of this government is larger than that of the commissioner of pensions, and that sooner or later, although it may cost the country a prolonged and steady effort, this truth will become apparent. But it should be remembered that in a very large number of these bills passed by Congress important original written evidence is filed with the committees or presented verbally, as in hearings before other committees upon all public questions which come before legislative bodies, and often the applicant is present with his statement and his palpable disability. This evidence is not available to the executive, at least without the asking, and never has been in possession of the pension office. Consequently, in nearly every case the congressional statement stands upon stronger proof than the finding of facts which the president sets up in disapproval of the bill.

Senator Blair is on the right tack. Most of these pension claims have been carefully examined by senators and representatives, and are fortified by various kinds of evidence which of course the president does not have the opportunity to examine. The indiscriminate use of the veto power in this respect is an abuse which some day the president and his party will rue, especially as the senators and representatives of the democracy are by no means responsible for the results they so much deplore.

AN ABUSED COMMUNITY.

The Unusual Stir Caused in Kingston, N. Y.

[Special Correspondence Boston Herald.]

The letter I recently wrote the Herald, describing a remarkable occurrence which took place here, has had the effect of thoroughly awakening the community. The facts, as described, were that Mr. Jere. Smith, son of Cornelius B. Smith, of the State Insurance Department, after passing through an agonizing ordeal, and having been abandoned by his friends, had been most wonderfully rescued. His experience was, in its beginning, at least, almost the same as that of hundreds of other men and women in every city and town. He had gone along thoughtlessly, noticing only occasional inconveniences, and had suddenly been awakened to the fact that death was staring him in the face. He had overlooked little, passing troubles without realizing that they are often "the beginning of the end." He had neglected interests that concerned his very life, just as thousands of others do, simply because they come in a quiet and often unnoticed way. And it is cause for gratitude that his experience is having so good and arousing an effect on others who were drifting in the same dangerous direction.

I was in the office of the Kingston Freeman, one of the best interior papers of the state, the other day, and had a talk with Mr. W. H. Winton, its popular manager. Quite naturally the conversation drifted to Mr. Smith's case, and the stimulating effect it was having on the people. Mr. Winton said:

"I can specially sympathize with Mr. Smith, for I have been through a much similar experience in my own family. My wife became troubled and weakened as so many women do, and from small symptoms and beginnings grew worse until she finally began to bloat terribly. She had been attended by physicians, sometimes with temporary success, usually without. We finally determined to try the same means which Mr. Smith employed so successfully, and my wife is not in her grave but in the enjoyment of health wholly because Hunt's Remedy rescued her. This is a grand medicine and a large suffering world lies behind it, too often ignorant or skeptical of its life-saving, health-giving qualities."

"It is certainly receiving wonderful endorsements," I remarked. "Do you think it merits them?"

"Every one of them. Why, when my wife began using the remedy she discovered the same medicine had been given her by a physician some time ago without her knowing the name of the medicine given at the time. I can also prove that bushel-basketsful of empty bottles of Hunt's Remedy were taken out of a doctor's office after his death. No one supposes for a moment that these bottles were used for desk ornaments or bric-a-brac, but the contents had undoubtedly been given to patients in small quantities at a high price. The medical profession evidently knows no better or more valuable remedy."

Mr. Cornelius B. Smith, the father of Jere Smith, confirmed all his son had said, and added, "I have not words strong enough to give Hunt's Remedy the praise it merits, and there are hundreds of others in this city who feel the same way."

Mr. Edwin H. Fasset said that the facts above given had been the "town talk" of Kingston, and his assertion was confirmed by Mr. Wm. D. Brenpier.

Messrs. Cooper and Winchell, who are popular druggists, declare that not only are all the facts above stated true, but the demand for the remedy is something remarkable. It has become a household necessity here, as it undoubtedly deserves to be everywhere.

WINTHROP.

The president on the 6th inst. vetoed twenty private pension bills. The tone of his messages is much improved, the insulting slurs and cad-man levity of his previous ones not appearing in these.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Godney, 150 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

A MOONLIGHT EXCURSION TO THE SHOALS.

An excursion to the Shoals, going by regular trips on the Oceanic and returning by an extra evening boat, the proceeds for the benefit of the Cottage Hospital, will be enjoyed on Tuesday, provided a sufficient number subscribe for tickets which are good for the round trip at seventy-five cents each. The beautiful moonlight excursion, and the peculiarly worthy object in view by the projectors of this pleasant excursion, will be alike appreciated. Tickets can be had on Monday at Grace's drug store, at the Rockingham house, or of Capt. Robinson on board the steamer Oceanic. The steamer will touch at the navy yard on her return trip.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., July 6th.

Lieut. Alexander Dennett, U. S. R. M., is at his home in West Kittery on a short visit.

Daniel W. Riley, Esq., has sold his house at the Foreside to his nephew, Everett Lewis, a son of Jefferson T. Lewis, Esq.

Dr. Geo. L. Peirce of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly of North Kittery, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Dennis M. Shapleigh.

Fred. A. Fernald has arrived home from Dartmouth college, for his summer vacation.

Edson K. Smith, teacher of the grammar school in district No. 9, will pass his vacation at his home in northern New Hampshire.

Mr. John Rogers and sons have a large display of flowers at their Orchard Grove greenhouses, and are making preparations for a larger one this fall.

Mr. L. A. Taylor, the Portsmouth laundryman, has got his new wagon on the road, and will soon be able to collect and deliver his work here. Orders left at J. O. Trefethen's will receive prompt attention, and satisfaction guaranteed.

Haying has begun in earnest, and most of the farmers report a light crop in this vicinity.

Mr. Richard Bryant of Amesbury, Mass., formerly of Kittery, has been appointed to a position on the police force of Amesbury.

The ferry steamer Mystic carried about thirty passengers to the Shoals on Sunday last, it being her first trip of the season.

PRETTY CLOTHES.

When it was intimated not long ago that the custom house inspectors were to be ordered to wear a uniform "when on duty," it was stated that they would be the first treasury officials, outside of the revenue marine, to be uniformed. This is an error, as the lightkeepers have been a uniformed force for a year or two. Their uniform consists of a blue cap with an L. H. E. (light house establishment) button on each side, and a gilt lighthouse, and whistling buoy and bell buoy crossed, on the front; a double-breasted sack coat of blue cloth, with five L. H. E. buttons on a side, and a single-breasted vest, blue, and with five buttons; in hot weather a brown linen helmet is substituted for the blue cloth cap. In addition, the chief keeper of a station wears on the right breast of his coat a letter "K," worked in metal inside of a wreath. The imagination can but faintly picture the imposing presence which would be presented by our friend Capt. Dave. Grogan of White island, or Bro. Leander White of the station at Whale's-back, were they to appear ashore in this rig; but they never do. When the order to lightkeepers to wear uniform was first issued, it is said to have directed it to be worn by them at all times; but this was soon modified, on account of a disaster which befell the keeper of a light at Cape Ann. The first time he wore his new uniform ashore he stood up so straight that he bent over backward, and his wife, proud woman, with a powerful glass watched him from the time he left the lighthouse until he landed on the wharf, where he was met by six young and enthusiastic salvation army cadets who all greeted him with the kiss of peace, under the impression that he was some kind of a generalissimo of their order. On his return to the lighthouse the kiss of peace did not materialize to any extent, and it was not until he had hypothecated his salary two years ahead for apocryphal silk dresses, kid gloves and red sunshades, that he was even allowed a chance to defend his damaged reputation. A pathetic report of the case was made to the lighthouse board, and orders were at once issued that keepers should thereafter wear their uniforms only when at their stations.

We take from the Herald of Buenos Ayres a notice of the marriage of Mr. Parry L. Randall, formerly of this city, with a lady of Quilmes, Buenos Ayres. Mr. Randall went from Portland to Buenos Ayres several years ago as second mate of a barque, which he left at that port, and is now an official on a railway there.

Daylight was on the 7th inst. put through the rock separating the two bores of the Deer street tunnel, and the headings found to match near enough for all practical purposes.

In Dover, on the 5th inst., George Hoitt put a big charge of powder in an old gun, then rammed down a lot of gravel, and fired it on Franklin square. The gun burst, tearing off two fingers of his left hand, and fragments of iron cutting his head and neck dangerously, though not fatally. Several panes of glass were broken, and a piece of the gun went clear across the square and into a restaurant on Third street, where it knocked to pieces a government license hanging on the wall. In the evening, when the city display of fireworks was being made, a bomb went off prematurely and a piece of it struck John Lancaster, a Dover alderman, on one cheek, cutting it open and injuring the bone.

Mr. George Marden of Kittery, son of Capt. Marden of the navy yard steamer Emerald, who left here a few months since with his mother to visit an uncle in San Francisco, has decided to remain in California, and is engaged in the meat business at 'Frisco. Mrs. Marden has arrived home.

No less than 70,000 barrels of ale have been shipped annually from this city to Providence, R. I., for a number of years past. The prohibitory law of that state, which has just gone into effect, closes that market to the brewers.

C. E. Boynton, the Bow street manufacturer and bottler of summer beverages, has placed on the road a fine new wagon entirely of Portsmouth manufacture.

Capt. R. F. Smith, of the schooner Lizzie Guptill, of Rockland, has visited this port so often and so long that he is almost considered a resident here. The schooner arrived at the Concord railroad wharf about a week since with 800 casks of lime. The lime generally goes along the line of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad.

Two laborers employed on the Sagamore road improvements were prostrated by the intense heat of Tuesday, the 6th inst., and a number of others left work at noon.

The Penny Post of the 7th inst. remarked that "The easterly breezes have been very refreshing to-day." No doubt of it; but they didn't do a great deal of refreshing in this city.

Eastern railroad stock was down to 78 1-2 at the brokers' board in Boston on the 7th inst.

Winslow Ayers was taken to the insane asylum at Concord on the 7th inst., by Ex-City Marshal Entwistle.

The members of the Sunday school of St. John's parish had a picnic at Rye beach on Wednesday.

A bay mare seized at Manchester on the 22d ult. for violation of the revenue laws, was sold at auction in this city on the 7th inst., Dr. A. W. Johnson of Kittery being the purchaser, at $170.

Two gentlemen who missed the steamer Oceanic on her forenoon trip to the Shoals on the 7th inst. chartered the Clara Batemen to take them out, rather than wait for the afternoon boat.

The gas company have reduced the price of gas fifty cents per thousand feet, to $2.25.

Mr. William P. Benedict, formerly of this city and now in a Colorado banking institution, is spending a short vacation in this city.

Hon. Frank Jones and wife left this city on the 7th inst. for Brunswick Springs, to remain there a short time.

The Pullman train due here from Boston at nine o'clock Tuesday evening, the 6th, did not arrive until after eleven, the delay being caused by the breaking down of a heavily loaded baggage car at Newburyport, necessitating the transfer of the baggage to another car.

In Biddeford, Me., July 5th, Walter Hendrie, the five-years-old son of the late Webster Hendrie, was drowned while playing on the river bank. The body was recovered.

A Boston man who has tried several type writing machines admits that "they can print well enough, but they can't spell worth a cent."

"The Country Week."

The "Country Week" conducted by the Boston Young Men's Christian Union, has given, since its inauguration in 1875, more than fifteen thousand of the poor children of the city the pleasure of a ten days' visit in the country in summer, a pleasure which they would not otherwise have enjoyed.

Aside from the benefit to health, of which there is abundant evidence, the visitors have gained much morally from the change in surroundings and influences; and this is especially true of those children who have been received in families as guests. The influence of home life thus received is the greatest benefit that can be derived from the visit, and often has an effect upon the whole future life of the visitor. Work for the present season has already commenced. The children are ready, the homes are wanted. If you are willing to invite one or more children to visit in your home during the summer, address Miss Ellen H. Bailey, Secretary, 18 Boylston street, Boston, who will furnish any further information desired. Fares will be paid by the committee.

C. E. Myers & Co., at the old stand, corner of Market and Bow streets, are offering a full line of men's and boys' nice merino underwear at thirty-five cents, well worth fifty. Ready made clothing as cheap as goods of equal quality can be sold by any one in the city.

The great success of the grand reduction sale of Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s proves that people really do appreciate good goods at low prices, notwithstanding the assertions of some dealers to the contrary.

The fault that has been found with Insect Powder is because of the inferior advertised articles in the market. "Preston's Insect Powder" has attained an enviable reputation, and its quality is guaranteed.

Children's elegant corduroy velvet suits marked down to $5.00 at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s, 32 Congress street.

INVESTMENTS.
I am prepared to furnish the most desirable investments in County Bonds and Guaranteed Farm Mortgages, paying 6 and 7 per cent semi-annually. On Farm Mortgages, only from 25 to 33 per cent of the actual cash value of the property is loaned, and the title, location, quality of land and future prospects of the property are personally looked up. Farm Loans are, when negotiated by experienced and responsible parties, the most profitable security offered, especially for those having small sums to invest from time to time. The Loans I offer are First-Class in every respect. Principal and interest when due, paid here without expense to the holder.
I have these Loans in sums from $300 to $5,000.

SKIN TORTURES —AND— BLOOD HUMORS

HUMILIATING Eruptions Itching and Burning Skin Tortures, Loathsome Sores, and every species of Itching, Burning, Scaly, Pimpled, Scrofulous and Contagious Diseases of the Blood, Skin and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, from infancy to old age, are positively proved by CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally.

COVERED WITH SORES.

I have been afflicted since last March with a skin disease the doctors called Eczema. My face was covered with scabs and sores, and the itching and burning were almost unbearable. Seeing your CUTICURA REMEDIES so highly recommended, concluded to give them a trial, being the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, and RESOLVENT internally, for four months. I call myself cured, in gratitude for which I make this public statement.

MRS. CLARA A. FREDERICK.

SCALP, FACE, EARS AND NECK.

I was afflicted with Eczema on the Scalp, Face, Ears and Neck, which the druggist, where I got your remedies, pronounced one of the worst cases that had come under his notice. He advised me to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after five days use my scalp and part of my face were entirely cured, and I hope in another week to have my ears, neck, and the other part of my face cured.

ITCHING DISEASES CURED.

CUTICURA stands at the head of its class, especially is this the case with the CUTICURA SOAP. Having had an unusually good sale this summer, owing to the prevalence of an epidemic form of Itch through some localities in the country, in which the CUTICURA REMEDIES proved satisfactory.

Constitutional Catarrh.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastening the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind,—one or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored, because but little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won the hearty approval of thousands. It is instantaneous in affording relief in all head colds, sneezing, snuffing and obstructed breathing, and rapidly removes the most oppressive symptoms, clearing the head, sweetening the breath, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing, and neutralizing the constitutional tendency of the disease towards the lungs, liver and kidneys.

wife. Their mental habits and mode of speech were cultivated before telegraphese was invented and the reaction toward blunt Anglo-Saxon phraseology had taken place.

Mrs. Bancroft's conversation savored of "elegant extracts." It was picturesquely and prettily old-fashioned. I only knew her when she was staying in a hotel; but I was told that she was a notable, although by no means a fussy, housekeeper, and that the German crown princess picked up many American culinary notions when dining at the table—such as cranberry preserves with roast mutton, oyster soup, pumpkin pie, and doughnuts. I one day had the pleasure of walking round a horticultural show with Mrs. Bancroft, who I found was an enthusiastic rose-fancier, and could teach most of the gardeners who exhibited improved methods of cultivating different species of roses. She was also a walking biographical encyclopædia. Who was there within the last sixty-six years in Europe or America that either he or she had not known or seen or heard about from mutual friends?

Mott Street's Chinese in Gotham.

Life begins in these strange caravanseries at 6, when the proprietor or clerk opens the front door and sends out for the breakfast materials. These comprise rice, fish, pork, bread, and vegetables. The lodgers next put in an appearance, crawling out of their bunks, still drowsy with sleep or sleep-giving drugs. A pail of water and a coarse rag in the kitchen soon restore the circulation of the body and fit one and all for the morning meal. This is made of the articles described, but cooked in ways very different from those employed in civilized circles. The rice is plain boiled, the fish boiled or stewed and served with an aromatic sauce in which ginger, cloves and red pepper are prominent factors; the pork and vegetables are chopped into thin pieces and stewed together. The drinks employed are hot and cold tea, and sometimes minute quantities of strong arrack or rice brandy. After breakfast many of the lodgers depart for their daily work. Among these early birds are cigar makers, clerks, peddlers, and shipping runners.

Those who remain are generally seamen, merchants, gamblers, and agents. These after their repast light a cigar or cigarette, opium or hasheesh, and take "solid comfort" for an hour or more. Those who have literary tastes lie down in their bunks and read, for, strange to say, most orientals assume a recumbent attitude when reading or studying; those who desire excitement resort to dominoes and other games of chance, while the majority simply smoke and "swap stories." At noon a second meal is served similar to breakfast, but including besides soups and stews, in which macaroni and vermicelli are chief features. At 5 o'clock dinner is given. It is like its predecessors in the articles served, only there is more of them and all are more highly spiced and seasoned.—New York Letter.

There is more undeveloped land in the state of Maine than in any western state.

Having spacious and good accommodations and long and large experience he solicits patronage in his line.

The Benton house in Chicago was burned on the 5th; two lodgers lost their lives, and four firemen were dangerously hurt.

A dory capsized off Ipswich, Mass., July 5th, and two lives were lost.

John Baptiste, nine years old, was shot dead by a playmate named George Moore at Haverhill, Mass., on the 5th.

At Lewiston, Me., on the 5th, a little boy named McManus had both eyes put out by the explosion of a package of powder in his hands.

Women suffering from aching sides and back apply a Hop Plaster, it has soothing properties.

Hay Fever.

I have been a great sufferer from hay fever for fifteen years and have tried various things without doing any good. I read of the many wondrous cures of Ely's Cream Balm and thought I would try once more. In fifteen minutes after one application I was wonderfully helped. Two weeks ago I commenced using it and now I feel entirely cured. It is the greatest discovery ever known or heard of.—Duhamel Clark, farmer, Lee, Mass.

At Mechanic Falls, Me., on the 3d, an anvil which was being charged with powder by J. Fuller exploded, and blew off both his hands.

Prompt relief in sick headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, pain in the side, etc., guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One pill a dose. Twenty-five cents.

At Peabody, Mass., an old wooden awning upon which fifteen people were congregated to witness the water works display by the fire company, fell upon the spectators beneath. Twenty men, women and children were injured, some fatally.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are free from all crude and irritating matter. Concentrated medicine only; very small; very easy to take; no pain; no griping; no purging.

In Salem, Mass., the barn of Peter Marren was set on fire by fire crackers, and Albert Toomey was accidentally shot through the shoulder by Peter Hennessey, on the 5th.

For a family medicine Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills are unrivalled. They root out disease, as if by magic.

In Springfield, Mass., a rocket fell into a window upon the roof of a block, causing a damage of $8000, July 5th.

Fortify the system, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, against the diseases peculiar to hot weather. This medicine induces a healthy action of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, causing them to prevent the accumulation of the poisons which produce disease.

In Waterville, Me., a five-years-old child put a big torpedo in its mouth, and it exploded, knocking out the child's teeth and lacerating its lips and tongue fearfully.

For washing clothing, and all laundry and cleansing purposes, James Pyle's Pearline is a favorite compound. Does not injure the fabrics, and saves a great deal of labor. Sold by grocers.

In New York a $200,000 fire was caused by a drunken man, July 5th.

Cure Yourself!

Don't pay large doctors' bills. The best medical book published, one hundred pages, elegant colored plates, will be sent you on receipt of three 2-cent stamps to pay the postage. Address A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass.

At Astoria, L. I., July 4th, during an altercation following his daughter's wedding, Fred Witenbecker was fatally shot.

A farmer named Wildman, at Unity township, Ill., killed his wife on the 4th, and then cut and probably fatally injured himself.

The warm weather often has a depressing and debilitating effect. Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes all languor and lassitude.

BENTON'S HAIR GROWER.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp; should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHTY PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow Hair in 80 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.

Unlike other preparations, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.

It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.

DOUBLE AND TRIPLE STRENGTH.

THE WASTING DISEASES OF INFANTS and children are by no means confined to an insufficient supply of food. The trouble is that the food is injudiciously selected, and the limited digestive power of the child is unable to assimilate it. The arrest of four men employed by the Singer Sewing Machine company, at Elizabeth, N. J., for stealing shuttles, has led to the discovery of quantities of dynamite and arms in the houses of two of the men. A large number of shuttles and a quantity of dynamite was found buried under the house of Otto Thal, an employe. Dynamite and guns were found in another house. The explosives, weapons, and stolen property were confiscated by the police. It is said that the names of a number of anarchists are on the pay rolls of the Singer company.

I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

Constitutional Catarrh.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastening the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind, one or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored, because but little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto buried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won the hearty approval of thousands. It is instantaneous in affording relief in all head colds, sneezing, snuffing and obstructed breathing, and rapidly removes the most oppressive symptoms, clearing the head, sweetening the breath, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing, and neutralizing the constitutional tendency of the disease towards the lungs, liver and kidneys.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and IMPROVED INHALER; price, $1.

A Chair for Eastern Languages.

The German government believes that linguists as well as geographers may be used for the advancement of the interests of the empire. Accordingly a bill has been submitted to the federal council for the establishment of a chair for eastern languages at the Berlin university. It is proposed that half of the expense should be borne by the empire and the other half by Prussia.—Berlin Letter.

Cutting Tunnels Through Mountains.

Remarkable accuracy is now attained by engineers in cutting tunnels through mountains, working from both ends. Thus at the Musconetcong tunnel, on the Lehigh Valley railroad, the alignment tested to .04 feet, or less than half an inch. In this case levels were run 5,000 feet long.—Chicago Times.

Size and Value of Pearls.

"According to their size," said a dealer the other day, "pearls receive various names. Those of extraordinary size are called 'paragon pearls;' when the size of a cherry, 'cherry pearls;' medium are called 'piece pearls;' smallest, 'dust pearls.' The oval and long are termed 'pear pearls,' while badly-formed specimens are known as 'baroques.'

"Is there any standard value?"

"Well, the 'piece,' 'seed,' and 'dust' grades have always a market price, which varies, of course, with the quality and general color. The 'cherry' and 'paragon' are sold on an entirely different basis. If many fine ones are on the market at a time they may be had at reasonable rates. Some years they bring almost any price. The last two years, especially, there has been a great scarcity of fine pearls, although there is no falling off in the supply of the small stuff. When a pearl exceeds one carat in weight it is sold separately. Under that weight they are sold in parcels and become less valuable as they become smaller. The smallest dust pearls collected average about 5,000 to the troy ounce and are at present rated at about $9 per ounce. If, on the contrary, one paragon weighing an ounce (or 150 carats) was on sale it would bring any amount from $30,000 to $200,000, according to quality.—Chicago News Interview.

Where Languages Are Best Spoken.

The best French is always spoken in Paris, where there is an inimitable accent which makes law. The best English is certainly spoken in Dublin. The best German is spoken in Vienna, although I always liked the Dresden articulation. In Florence they speak the best Italian, but the Romans pronounce it better—Lingua Toscana in bocca Romana. I never heard more musical English than from the lips of educated New York ladies, and there is a peculiar charm in the old French spoken by the pretty women of Quebec.—Montreal Gazette.

INSOMNIA.

Are the American People Becoming a Nation of Lunatics?

The Frightful Increase of Insanity Caused by Nervousness and Sleeplessness.

The increase of insanity in America during the last ten years has been more than forty per cent. The largest and finest public buildings recently erected have been for the care of lunatics, and they are all filled to their full capacity. These facts are appalling. They show that something must be done speedily to prevent this increase or we shall become a nation of lunatics. One of the greatest curses of insanity is loss of sleep. Physicians say that when persons fail to sleep for four nights they are on the verge of insanity. And yet narcotics are dangerous. It is only when the body is well that perfect sleep can be secured. A committee of physicians, that recently investigated this subject, found the lack of albumen in the system brought about more nervousness, more sleeplessness, and more madness than any other known cause. It has also been found that peptonized beef, which contains both bone and meat, produces more albumen, and tones the system better than any other known agency. The only manner in which this combination has ever been effected, however, has been in the form of Hoptonic, and this wonderful preparation is certain to do away with checking nervousness, insomnia and insanity than any other known agency. Prof. Rose, the celebrated chemist, says: "Hoptonic, a combination of peptonized beef, hops and malt, contains all the albuminous substances required by the system, and is therefore the ideal, as it is in fact a perfect flesh food."

Since the introduction of Hoptonic a marked effect has been found, by critical observers, upon those persons who have used it, and it is absolutely contributing more to check nervousness, debility, insomnia and insanity than any other known agency. As such its value is inestimable.

Having spacious and good accommodations and long and large experience he solicits patronage in his line.

New Hampshire prohibitionists will hold a state convention at Concord on the 14th inst.

The president on the 7th inst. vetoed the senate bill granting a right of way to a railroad through northern Montana.

Paul H. Hayne, the southern poet, died at his home near Augusta, Ga., July 7th.

Women suffering from aching sides and back apply a Hop Plaster, it has soothing properties.

Several dwellings were demolished by a cyclone at Harold, Texas, and vicinity, on the 6th inst. Two lives are known to have been lost, and farm property and growing crops in the surrounding country suffered great damage.

Hay Fever.

I have been a great sufferer from hay fever for fifteen years and have tried various things without doing any good. I read of the many wondrous cures of Ely's Cream Balm and thought I would try once more. In fifteen minutes after one application I was wonderfully helped. Two weeks ago I commenced using it and now I feel entirely cured. It is the greatest discovery ever known or heard of.—Duhamel Clark, farmer, Lee, Mass.

The Academy of Music at Denver, Col., has been destroyed by fire, and the Rocky Mountain News building badly damaged. Total loss $175,000. A man who was asleep in the academy was burned to death.

Prompt relief in sick headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, pain in the side, etc., guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One pill a dose. Twenty-five cents.

A terrible gale at Apalachicola, Fla., uprooted trees, unroofed houses, and caused a loss of $40,000. Six persons—four white and two colored—who were caught in the bay, were drowned.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are free from all crude and irritating matter. Concentrated medicine only; very small; very easy to take; no pain; no griping; no purging.

A meeting of the New Hampshire republican state committee will be held at Concord July 28th.

For a family medicine Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills are unrivalled. They root out disease, as if by magic.

William F. Upton has been nominated to be postmaster at Great Falls.

Fortify the system, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, against the diseases peculiar to hot weather. This medicine induces a healthy action of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, causing them, to prevent the accumulation of the poisons which produce disease.

The new Boston steamer Merrimac, on the trip from Boston to Halifax, Prince Edward island and return, on the night of the 6th inst. ran on Rifleman's rock, a flat ledge near Prince Edward island, and remained there six or eight hours, but got off unaided and it is said undamaged.

For washing clothing, and all laundry and cleansing purposes, James Pyle's Pearline is a favorite compound. Does not injure the fabrics, and saves a great deal of labor. Sold by grocers.

Joseph Danill, a Portuguese, employed on a farm in Middletown, Conn., has been missing since the fifth. His clothes were found in his sailboat, moored off shore, and it is supposed that he started to swim from the boat and was drowned.

BENTON'S HAIR GROWER.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp; should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHTY PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald or glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow Hair in 40 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.

Unlike other preparations, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.

It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.

The Hair Grower is a hair food, and its composition is almost exactly like the oil which supplies the hair with its vitality.

There are no vessels off here, and the weirs on the cape will undoubtedly make good hauls in the morning. The size is medium."

THE WASTING DISEASES OF INFANTS and children are by no means confined to an insufficient supply of food. The Influence of Religious Fasts.

A protracted fast when it is strictly observed, has a very different influence on the lives of the rich and the poor. It is much pleasanter to mortify the flesh by a course of dinners composed of choice fish and exotic fruit and vegetables than to sit down to an eternal round of porridge or polenta and potatoes, to which hunger supplies the only sauce and a cured pilchard the only condiment. Indeed such a diet, if continued for six weeks, would probably prove unendurable to even the strongest stomach, and so an inexorable fate compels the cooks of all classes in the countries where fasting is generally practiced to adapt themselves to the unfortunate position in which they are placed.

We all know to our cost that even in England it is not every one who can cook a mutton chop or a beefsteak, yet such a simple manipulation would seem to be within the reach of most persons of moderate intellect who bestowed the necessary care and pains upon it. To tickle the dainty palates of epicures with a series of dinners from which for five days in the week meat is rigorously excluded is a harder task; indeed it is one worthy of the highest culinary genius, and it increases our respect for the capabilities of human nature to know how often it is successfully performed.—English Magazine.

The Poisonous Scorpion of Mexico.

At a recent meeting of the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, Dr. Leidy read a communication from Dr. V. Gonzalez, giving an account of the scorpions of Durango, Mexico, and the deadly effects of their sting. They are found everywhere in the city, and every effort has been made to exterminate them, but without effect. A reward of a cent and a half for males, and double that amount for females, is paid by the authorities, and the records indicate that some years over 100,000 are captured and destroyed.

The sting, especially in the case of children, is invariably fatal; the victim, if under 2 or 3 years of age, dying in a few hours, and sometimes in a few minutes, in strong general convulsions. No antidote for the poison has as yet been discovered, and the assistance of Dr. Leidy is asked by the writer in his endeavor to determine some successful mode of treatment. It was suggested by Messrs. Horn, Heilprin, and Leidy that the Mexican scorpion must differ from the species found in Florida and California, as the sting of the latter is not usually graver than that of a wasp.—Scientific American.

Size of a Sulphur Bottom Whale.

The following are the measurements of a sulphur bottom whale, the largest of the species: Length, 95 feet; length of jawbone, 21 feet; length of longest baleen, 4 feet; girth, 39 feet; weight of baleen, 800 pounds; yield of oil, 110 barrels; weight of whole animal (calculated), 147 tons. One ninety-two feet long was taken at Monterey, Cal., some years ago, and the capstan that had rolled many large animals was torn up, the falls gave way and the body fell back. The sulphur bottom is found on the entire Pacific coast at all times, winter and summer, coming well in shore between May and September. It has a curious and somewhat unpleasant habit of following ships, and one followed the ship Plymouth mouth from San Francisco to Realojo, Central America, often passing under the keel. Rifle shots and blows from billets of wood had no impression upon it, and it stood by the vessel until she went into shoal water.—Chicago Herald.

The Record of Thermal Extremes.

The highest temperature ever observed in the shade of the open air is 151 degrees Fahrenheit, which Capt. Rigaut's self-registering thermometer recorded in the land of the Tuariks in Central Asia. M. de Nadaillac hence infers that the range of man's endurance of extreme temperature is 236 degrees Fahrenheit, since the minimum recorded by an ether thermometer in the sea of Kara was a little less than 85 degrees below zero. In the highest latitude of the polar regions a severe winter night, however, exceeds even that frightful extreme, for in the neighborhood of Irkutsk, not much further north than the city of London, Pumpelly once saw the thermometer for a week between 60 and 70 degrees, Fahrenheit.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald.

Construction of a Home-Made Barometer.

The following, though old to some, may be new to others, and will enable the latter to make a simple barometer for themselves: Two drachms of camphor, half-drachm of pure saltpeter, half-drachm of muriate of ammonia, and two ounces of proof spirits, in a glass tube or a narrow phial, will make a very good water guide. In dry weather the solution will remain clear. On the approach of change, minute stars will rise up in the liquid, while stormy weather will be indicated by the very disturbed condition of the chemical combination.—Weather Journal.

The Oldest Merchant Vessel Afloat.

It is said that the oldest merchant vessel afloat is the bark True Love, of London, 296 tons register. The vessel was built in that city in 1764, making her 122 years old. She is owned by John S. Ward, of London, a large owner of vessel property. The True Love is yet in active service. Her age is a justification of the proverb that "true love never dies."

The Hot Weather

Of mid-summer has a weakening effect, both upon body and mind. You feel absolutely incapable of doing any arduous work, and even light duties are performed languidly and unwillingly. This low state of the system causes even greater infirmity, and gives opportunity for serious disease to gain a foot-hold. In this condition the system is quick to respond to the reviving, quickening, and strengthening effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies the blood, regulates the digestive organs, and infuses fresh life and vigor into every portion of the body. People who have taken it write us, saying: "It puts new life right into me." "It makes me young again." Reader, if you suffer from summer weakness, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. 100 doses $1.

At the annual meeting of the Dover savings bank, on the 7th inst., Calvin Hale resigned the position as treasurer, which he had held since the bank organized thirty years ago. A resolution was adopted in appreciation of the long and faithful services rendered by him, and their best wishes for his restoration to health. The officers elected are: President, John J. Hanson; vice president, E. V. Brewster; secretary and treasurer, Isaac F. Abbott; trustees, C. Hale, W. A. Morrell, E. H. Whitehouse, W. H. Vickery, E. M. Swan, H. A. Worthen, J. F. Seavey and D. Mondays and Tuesdays

An Important Function Stimulated.

The kidneys exercise most important functions, which are so wearisome that they tax to the utmost the strength and endurance of these busy little organs. Every breath, every pulsation of the heart, every movement of a limb, every thought, makes waste and necessitates the development of new atoms. The used up particles in the blood are sifted from it and dissolved in a watery fluid by the kidneys, which then discharge this fluid into the bladder. A train of disasters to the system would follow if these "ashes," so to speak, were not thoroughly strained off and discharged. This is the case when the kidneys become inactive. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by restoring their activity, not only keeps open a most important outlet for impurities, but prevents diseases of the kidneys themselves, which when inert become liable to fall a prey to diabetes, Bright's disease, nephritis, albumenuria, and other maladies specially incident to them, which, although not specially rapid in their progression, are particularly obstinate and fatal.

Mr. Charles Marsh, of the firm of Jordan, Marsh & Co., Boston, was stricken with apoplexy and paralysis on the 7th inst. A consultation of physicians resulted in a decision that recovery was impossible.

Mrs. A. W. Brockaw, of Groton, Brown Co., Dakota, used Allcock's Plasters for fifteen years—completely cured of irregularity by using two plasters across the small of the back for seven days each month—also found them very efficacious in kidney trouble—cured of a dull, heavy pain and pressure at the base of the brain by wearing an Allcock's Porous Plaster at the back of the neck.

A Democratic View.

The World's Washington correspondent thus concludes a frank statement concerning Mr. Blaine's prospects of being the candidate of the republican party in 1888:

A number of discouraged democrats who have been carefully studying the situation at Washington are beginning to ask themselves how much worse off would they have been had Mr. Blaine been elected president. They see the departments still under under the control of the very elements so denounced by them during the last campaign. They see an administration absorbed in petty details, having no broad, general policy. They see the corporations more triumphant than ever. They see no prospects of any change, or any outlining of any new general policy.

The president's course is the very one to help Mr. Blaine's prospects as a republican candidate. The negative course of the administration leaves the opposition party nothing to do. There are no aggressions to resist. The record of republican misdoing is left undisturbed. On account of this lack of active discussion there is no chance for the development of new republican leaders. Mr. Blaine to-day is the chief of his party, and will undoubtedly so remain until next republican campaign. It is on account of his prominence and his leadership that the canvass in Maine this summer promises to be so interesting. It is not because there will be any real contest. The interest will arise wholly from the fact that all of the prominent republican leaders have been invited to speak, with the understanding that the issues made are to be those of the presidential campaign of 1888.

An Indignant Bluenose Editor.

"Admiral" Scott of the Dominion navy has been served with a notice of action for $12,000 damages for illegal seizure and detention of the American schooner David J. Adams. The action is brought by the owner of the vessel. Similar notice of action has been served on Collector Viets of Digby, who assisted in the seizure. It is understood that actions will also be taken against Officers Macauley and Campbell, who seized the schooner Ella M. Doughty at Englishtown, and that United States counsel will sue every Canadian official making seizures or otherwise detaining or interfering with American vessels. Admiral Scott, with five cruisers under his command, is now watching the American mackereling fleet in Prince Edward island waters. The government organ at Halifax, defending the vigorous protection of the fisheries, denounces Gloucester vessel owners as pirates, and skippers and crews of Gloucester vessels as thieves.

Official Appointments.

At the session of the governor and council in Concord on the 8th inst. the follow appointments were made: James W. Patterson of Hanover, superintendent of public instruction; Jason Sperry of Hindge, member of the board of agriculture, to succeed George P. Harvey; B. F. Prescott of Epping and G. A. Wason of New Boston, trustees of the New Hampshire college of agriculture and mechanical arts; John H. Kimball of Marlboro, fish commissioner, vice Luther Hayes, term expired; C. F. Hildreth of Allentown, commissioner of pharmacy; W. H. Sise and Joseph Grace of Portsmouth, commissioners of pilotage; Emery J. Randall of Somersworth and Edward Spalding of Nashua, trustees of the insane asylum. Mason W. Tappan of Bradford was nominated as attorney-general for a term of five years, this being his second re-appointment to that position.

The increased travel between New York and Bar Harbor over that of any previous year, has demanded quicker transportation between New York and the celebrated Maine summer resort. New York men, prominent in financial circles, have appealed to the management of the Maine Central railroad in respect to this desired step. The trouble complained of is the disinclination of the Boston & Albany railroad to run its trains in connection with traffic east of Boston. There are two projects being considered as a way out of the difficulty: one is to run trains to East Boston from the Maine Central, and by ferry connect with the New York & New England road, over which a fast connecting train can be run; the other is to carry the Bar Harbor passengers from Portland by way of Rochester and Nashua to Worcester, reaching that city in season to connect with the train over the Albany road leaving Boston at 4:30 P. M. This would have the effect of taking a large share of the White mountain and Mount Desert business to and from the Albany road at Worcester, and passengers would reach those eastern points without going nearer Boston than Worcester. The roads leading into Boston from the south having no connection with the roads leading east, the public complain of the delays and expense of getting across Boston. It has been suggested that the Boston & Albany might receive New York bound passengers from the Boston & Maine road, at Somerville, and take them to their road to Cottage Farms over the Grand Junction, but the B. & A. affects to give the eastern bound travellers to understand that it has all the business it desires. The Fitchburg is obtaining by reason of its location and its readiness to serve the public, a very large share of business for the west coming over the divisions of the Boston & Maine road. The effect upon the interests of Boston if the latter road uses its Portland & Worcester division for its White mountain and its Maine sea-shore business, of course can be foreseen. The thirty minutes wait at Portland has become obsolete, and close connections as in every other part of the country are demanded by the patrons of railways who come from New York and Philadelphia to summer resorts in the east; and the class of people who compose the clientage of the railways are bound to be indulged in their legitimate desires in this respect.

The drought in western Texas is causing frightful mortality among cattle. The cattle men place the loss to date as high as $6,000,000. The drought has lasted a year in some portions. Crops in the dry regions are failures, and destitution prevails. Several counties are taking steps to appeal to Congress for aid.

should be your crowning glory. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the vitality and color of youth to hair that has become thin and faded; and, where the glands are not decayed or shattered, will cause a new growth on bald heads.

MAY the youthful color and vigor of the hair be preserved to old age? Read the following, from Mrs. G. Norton, Somerville, Mass.: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past 30 years; and, although I am upwards of 60, my hair is as abundant and glossy to-day as when I was 25."

BE assured, that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor will convince you of its powers. Mrs. M. E. Goff, Lenoxville, Col., writes: "Two years ago, my hair having almost entirely fallen out, I commenced the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. To-day my hair is 29 inches long, fine, strong, and healthy."

RENEWED and strengthened by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair regains its youthful color and vitality. Rev. H. P. Wilkinson, Davidson College, Mecklenburg Co., N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the last ten years. It is an excellent preservative."

BY the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, Geo. A. Dallman, Waterloo, Mo., had his hair restored to its original healthy condition. He was nearly bald, and very gray. He writes: "Only four bottles of the Vigor were required to restore my hair to its youthful color and quantity."

USING Ayer's Hair Vigor cures diseases of the scalp. F. H. Foster, Princeton, Ind., writes: "I had been troubled for years with a disease of the scalp; my head was covered with dandruff, and the hair dry and harsh. Ayer's Hair Vigor gave me immediate relief, cleansed the scalp, and rendered the hair soft and pliable."

AUCTION SALE.

The mansion house of the late Charles E. Laighton will be sold at twelve o'clock, noon, to-day.

The house is in an excellent neighborhood. It was formerly occupied by John D. Hayes, Esq., and it was here that the eminent English geologist and writer, Sir Charles Lyell, visited in September 1845, on his second tour in this country, a long account of which is given in Sir Charles' volume published in 1849.

The sale is well worth the attention of of any one seeking a comfortable home—a well built house with plenty of space around it.

PORT OF PORTSMOUTH.

During the month of June 106 coasting vessels of different sizes and classes entered this port with cargoes. In addition to the large amount of American coal, lumber lime and cement discharged here, one cargo of foreign coal was landed, and 84,000 railroad sleepers for the Boston & Maine and Concord railroads, also some foreign lumber. The railroad ties were mostly from the British provinces, and were transported in provincial vessels. This shows a large increase of business over that of the corresponding month in 1885, when the record shows that only eighty-three vessels arrived.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

About half past twelve o'clock, Friday morning, as the Forepaugh circus trains were getting ready for a start to Dover, one of the canvasmen, named James L. Clark, when near the round-house was struck and run over by an engine which was backing up, and almost cut in two across the hips. Doctors Whittier and Berry were called, but the case was hopeless, and after lingering two hours the injured man died in the police station. He was a resident of Dover, where his mother and a brother live; was twenty-five years old, and unmarried. He was one of the canvasmen of the Doris circus who left that establishment when it was in this city, and joined the Forepaugh show two days later. The remains were taken to Dover for interment. He was quite well known to many persons here, having been catcher for the Dover base ball club several seasons ago in their contests with the Granite States of this city.

STREET GRADING.

The street commissioner has a large stock of stone on hand for street grading. The new machine works admirably, and sends out its crushed stone in different sizes ready to be placed in piles for use as required. The large stock of material has been prepared partly in anticipation that it would replace the cobble stones in a part of Market street; at least, that is now contemplated. It would seem that the placing of gravel on the stone as fast as it is spread, would in the end give better and more enduring surface if the crushed stone was properly rolled and hardened down to a solidity and then covered with gravel. In other cities the economical way to make roads with crushed stone is to run the heavy iron roller after the stone has been spread, and not put the gravel on until the stone has been properly rolled down. The result is a better and more lasting roadway.

UNITARIAN GROVE MEETING.

The Unitarian grove meeting is to be held at the Weirs, beginning Sunday, July 25th, and closing Sunday, Aug. 1st. People of all religious views are invited. Reduced rates of transportation thither are arranged for, and reasonable rates of board and lodging. The exercises will consist of preaching, addresses, essays, conference and devotional meetings. Excursions will be arranged on the lake, and it is expected that an excursion to Mt. Washington will leave the Weirs on Monday, Aug. 2d. J. M. Pardee, secretary, can be addressed at Laconia, N. H.

About seventy members of the Wholesale Grocers' Association of Boston left that city at nine o'clock A. M. on the 8th inst., in two special cars attached to the White mountain express train over the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad. North Hampton was reached at 10:45, and coaches taken for the Farragut house, Rye, where at 12:30 P. M. the party seated themselves at an elaborate dinner. Most of the excursionists returned to Boston in the evening.

Col. William H. Sise and Capt. Joseph Grace, of this city, have been re-appointed commissioners of pilotage.

The collections of internal revenue in the district of New Hampshire for the month of June, 1886, were $31,307.84. For the year ending June 30th, 1886, they were $378,787.71.

Mr. George H. Rockwood, formerly principal of the high school in this city, was married on July 1st to Miss Fannie B. Hoyt of Brockton, Mass., a recent graduate of Wellesley college.

The St. Mary's Benevolent society will have their annual picnic at Pinkham's grove, Dover point, Aug. 4th.

A number of sailmakers and riggers were taken on at the navy yard Friday; it is said the only democrat among them was Mr. Joseph C. Muchmore of this city.

Six bagpipe players passed up Market street at intervals on Friday, bound east. Some of their music was most excruciating.

The shop so long occupied by Cornelius O. Keefe in the Wendell block at the north part of Market street, has been closed, and in lieu thereof a pool room has been opened on the opposite side of the street, with convenient seats where the air comes in from the Piscataqua, and weary coal-heavers may sit and refresh themselves.

Among the items in the deficiency bill, now before the house, appears the following: "To pay accounts rendered by Samuel J. Gerrish and Frank Hume, for rations furnished to marines at Portsmouth, N. H., and Mare Island, Cal., fiscal year of 1885, $2094.92."

Mrs. S. T. Benjamin of Brooklyn, N. Y., is with her two children paying a visit to her mother, Mrs. James M. Carr of this city.

The bill for the relief of the officers attached to the U. S. S. Tallapoosa at the time of her sinking in Vineyard sound, to compensate them for loss of personal property then sustained, has passed the senate.

Mr. John W. Young, the energetic agent of the Vienna pressed yeast company, had considerable trouble this week in supplying the consumers in this vicinity with the now dispensable article. The intensely hot weather made it almost impossible to keep the yeast, and large quantities had to be thrown away. The three o'clock express Friday afternoon brought a large invoice, and the orders of dealers, hotels, bakeries and all others were filled. Mr. Young says there will be no trouble hereafter.

Hudson the Revivalist.--His Hard Experience.

It will be seen from the following letter that this gifted person has at last regained his health, and in a manner too, that should teach us all a lesson:

Spine Hill Cottage, W. Va., June 20th.

Messrs. I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House street, Boston, Mass. Gentlemen:—I write to inform you of my great good fortune and at the same time to congratulate you upon the good you are doing. I was afflicted with the liver complaint for ten years, during which time I was not able to work more than half of the time, and during much of this time I was compelled to lie in bed. I was attended, during the ten years, by eight digerent doctors, (all of them men of reputation,) have taken much medicine, suffered at times all and more than the agonies of death, and spent a great amount of money, all apparently to no purpose, for I steadily grew worse. About three months ago a friend called to read to me the manuscript of a pamphlet he was about to publish, and while fumbling his papers, my eye fell upon an advertisement of your Parsons' Pills. I was so impressed by the candid and apparently honest presentation of their merits, I at once sent for a box of them. I took one a day for thirty days, according to directions, and then three a week for two months, and now I gratefully state I feel that I have permanently regained my health; at any rate, I feel as well as ever I did in my life. I was poor in flesh, pale and weak, with no appetite and no courage—but now I eat with a relish, sleep well, my spirits are buoyant, and the color has returned to my cheeks. I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh, and feel strong enough to put in ten or fifteen hours a day of good solid work, if necessary. I cannot tell you how grateful I am that a knowledge of the mystery of medical science, combined with an honest purpose, has enabled you to supply, and that my mind was providentially turned to such a priceless remedy as Parsons' Pills.

Very sincerely,
Your friend and servant, W. HUDSON.

Fire, Life and Accident Insurance Agency.

NOTICE!

The Insurance Copartnership of Morse & Ilsley, on and after July 1st, 1886, is dissolved by mutual consent. After that date the business in all its branches will be continued at the old stand,

No. 13 Pleasant Street, Portsmouth, N. H.,

By the subscriber. My fifteen years' experience as Canvasser, Appraiser, and Adjuster of Insured Property, gives me confidence that I can do as well as any one in securing safety, and justice in case of loss. JOSEPH P. MORSE.
June 25. Insurance Agent and Broker.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL.

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices. were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had rented and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers.

Constitutional Catarrh.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastening the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind—soft or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions, ignored, because but little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won the hearty approval of physicians. It is instantaneous in affording relief in all head colds, sneezing, snuffing and obstructed breathing, and rapidly removes the most oppressive symptoms, clearing the head, sweetening the breath, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing, and neutralizing the constitutional tendency of the disease towards the lungs, liver and kidneys.

a rule, we carry our cross gayly, and it is a constant source of wonder to many that we can keep up our spirits in face of the calamity. Contrasted with the deaf our bearing is remarkable; they are prone to look gloomy and morose, while we are, I think, usually the reverse. The secret is that it is far more depressing and miserable to live in silence than in darkness. As proof of this, watch a deaf person sitting apart with saddened expression and suspicious glance quick traveling in all directions. The whole aspect and demeanor of the man changes on the instant some one speaks to him in his own tongue—on the fingers, that is to say. The silence in which he lives is dispelled; he has found an equivalent for his mass.

Give, then, the blind man in his fingers an equivalent for his eyes and the darkness in which he lives is dispelled. His mood, if happy, simply becomes happier, in that he has an occupation, the source of all happiness. The situation is not changed if the occupation be directing or listening instead of technical. No; I must repeat this is a misunderstanding of the powers of the blind which has hitherto retarded their fullest development. They have been too much relegated to the ranks of the incompetent, too much set aside as a class by themselves, instead of being accepted as intelligent, useful, working members of the community.—Fortnightly Review.

The Black Man's Own Country.

It is only too certain that the emigrant is not wanted in the Cape colony. It is the country of the black man—of that scorner of clothes, the noble savage. White labor languishes; energy fails at the moment prospects open. The Boer, the most adhesive of mortals, rests contented with a squalid home and a prospect of untilled acres more extensive than his eye can survey. The true colonial instinct is wanting—that indescribable intellectual capacity of taking root where the foot falls. Ambition here seems to impel a man no further than a desire to obtain money enough to enable him, whether he be an Englishman or a German, to return home and stop there.

A posterity may arise that will be as the vine bush is, or the gum tree—a pure growth of South African soil, but with antecedents with a beginning in white hands. But down to the present moment the symptoms are not those of a colonization such as created a great republic across the western ocean, such as has builded an empire of cities and populous towns in the distant Pacific. I say it is a pity; for you cannot think of the mighty tracts of the green and beautiful country stretching in mountains and valleys and plains to the equatorial latitudes and of the dreadful poverty you see and hear of and read about in London and throughout Great Britain and Ireland without deep regret that the land should be universally declared to offer no opportunities to those in need of bread.—Cor. London Telegraph.

A Lesson in Thumb Language.

A large ball to the thumb in a bad hand promises a leaning to all sorts of self-indulgence; but in an artist's hand it indicates love of color and gifts of expression by means of color alone.

For Feeble Little Ones.

For many enfeebling complaints to which children are subjected, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, used medicinally, in the hands of parents and nurses, never fails, on account of its absolute purity and efficacy, in effecting a cure.

Mr. J. A. RINGROSE, 173 Battery avenue, Baltimore, Md., writes: "My twin babies of five months had suffered with pain since their birth, at times having their limbs drawn up and become stiff, expecting them to go into convulsions. These pains were caused no doubt, by irregularity of bowels, the children becoming emaciated. After trying treatment of local remedies, as well as medical treatment, without avail, and with the love of rest to myself and wife, we thought it impossible to save the little ones, and as a last resort, we resolved to try one bottle of your DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY. We are glad we did; the result was wonderful; it relieved the babies at once, producing a natural quiet sleep, relieving them of wind pain, restoring their bowels to normal condition, thriving wonderfully. While generally opposed to intoxicating liquors as a medical preparation, I don't think your MALT WHISKEY can be beat."

Mr. A. J. MERRILL, Editor of the Ledger, Pocomoke, Md., writes: "I have been using your DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY in my family for a year or more. I get it originally for a delicate child. Have given it to her. She is to-day in the best of health and as hearty as any child of her age. I attribute her present good health entirely to your excellent whiskey."

Mrs. H. E. FAIRALL, Professional Nurse, 81 North Bond street, Baltimore, Md., writes: "I first became acquainted with the merits of DUFFY'S MALT WHISKEY in the case of two sickly and debilitated children, who were weak and pining away in the first three months by the use of it they were big, fat and healthy as any children I have ever seen. An other instance wherein the most remarkable results were obtained was the case of a child hopeless of life and given up to die by the attending physician. I used your DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY combined with milk, and in one month the child was entirely cured. I could mention hundreds of cases where I safely say it has saved life."

Mrs. C. HART, 165 Wilmot Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Less than a day of my children ever becoming sick I always keep your DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY on hand. Told my physician, and he said he used it in his practice. I will recommend it."

Hay Fever.

I have been a great sufferer from hay fever for fifteen years and have tried various things without doing any good. I read of the many wondrous cures of Ely's Cream Balm and thought I would try once more. In fifteen minutes after one application I was wonderfully helped. Two weeks ago I commenced using it and now I feel entirely cured. It is the greatest discovery ever known or heard of.—Duhamel Clark, farmer, Lee, Mass.

For washing clothing, and all laundry and cleansing purposes, James Pyle's Pearline is a favorite compound. Does not injure the fabrics, and saves a great deal of labor. Sold by grocers.

Six of seven Bohemians on trial in New York for boycotting the bakeress, Mrs. Landgraf, were convicted. Seventeen men were indicted, but as the witnesses for the prosecution could identify only seven, the others were allowed to go. Nothing was proved against one of them, and the others were found guilty. Judge Barrett sentenced them to from ten days in the city prison to thirty days in the penitentiary, according to the activity which they had shown in persecuting Mrs. Landgraf.

BENTON'S HAIR GROWER.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp; should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHTY PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow Hair in so cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.

Unlike other preparations, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.

It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.

The Hair Grower is a hair food, and its composition is almost exactly like the oil which supplies the hair with its vitality.

With what alacrity SANFORD'S GINGER responds to the cry of distress. No cramp or pain has ever made a demand upon it for relief or cure that has not met with instant response.

It is a delicious combination of Imported Ginger, Choice Aromatics, and French Brandy, totally unlike and vastly superior to all other "gingers," pain cures and nauseating nostrums.

THE WASTING DISEASES OF INFANTS and children are by no means confined to an insufficient supply of food. The trouble is that the food is injudiciously selected, and the limited digestive power of the child is unable to assimilate it. Mellin's food, when prepared according to the directions, forms the best substitute for mothers' milk that has ever been produced.

Modern Improvements. Among the many articles put forth in the interest of housekeepers, nothing has become more popular than James Pyle's Pearline. Five years ago it was scarcely known; since then it has found its way to all parts of the country. Its utility is acknowledged by all who try it, and unlike most of the labor-saving compounds, experience has proved Pearline to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate fabrics, and we feel sure that no one will be without it after a fair trial.

Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me by druggist as a preventative to hay fever. Have been using it as directed since the 9th of August and have found it a specific for that much dreaded and loathsome disease. For ten years or more I have been a great sufferer each year, from August 9th till frost, and have tried many alleged remedies for its cure, but Ely's Cream Balm is the only preventative I have ever found. Hay fever sufferers ought to know of its efficacy. F. B. Ainsworth, of F. B. Ainsworth & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

The Bland Law a Failure.

At a meeting of the International Bimetalist League, held in Cincinnati on the 9th inst., a resolution was unanimously adopted that the compulsory coinage of silver dollars by the United States under the Bland law as a measure to restore silver to its old historic position is now, after eight years of trial, demonstrated a failure. The league therefore urge upon Congress to repeal the law, and stop the coinage of dollars.

The fire communicated to Taylor's block, which was damaged $2000; contents damaged $6000.

Remembered His Friend.

Mr. Wm. L. Stow of New York, who at one time started to be a doctor and went back to Wall street, and after ten years membership of the Stock Exchange found he had a handsome fortune, has gone to Europe, and last week a number of business and other friends went to the pier to see him off in one of the steamers. A writer in the New York Times gives the following:

Mr. Stow used to be a clerk in the brokerage firm of E. C. Stedman & Co., and the poet-banker tells a story much to the successful young man's credit. He was not very hopeful of riches in the old days, when he was keeping books for Mr. Stedman, and nobody would have ever been likely to mark him than as the prospective possessor of hundreds of thousands of dollars of his own. There was no forwardness about him; favors shown him were always fruitful of thankfulness. When he left Mr. Stedman's employ—to go to the doctor's office, I think it was—Mr. Stedman bade him not only a kindly goodbye, but said that if ever it were possible for him to lend the young man assistance he would be glad to do his utmost to help his clerk along.

Time went on. Stow was getting up in the world, back in Wall street again; misfortune fell upon Mr. Stedman. Everybody, of course, remembers the unexpected failure of the poet's brokerage firm a couple of years or so ago. Not one man who learned the news found more interest in it than the ordinary citizen, and a messenger within an hour of the announcement of the financial trouble handed a note to Mr. Stedman, which ran something like this:

DEAR MR. STEDMAN: I have got $50,000 more than I want. Will you please take it?
W. L. STOW.

Mr. Stedman fortunately was better off than at first supposed, and he declined the big-hearted offer, though not without the expression of a gratitude that had no lack of earnestness in it.

Cora Pearl Dead.

Cora Pearl, the once famous demi-mondaine of Paris, is dead, and although at times during her life she rolled in wealth she died in poverty. According to her story she was an English woman, her name being Emma Crouch, and she the daughter of Professor F. Nicholas Crouch of Baltimore, author of "Kathleen Mavourneen," by his first wife, Lydia Pearson, an English actress. Emma left home suddenly when quite a young girl, and under circumstances that were never spoken of afterward in the Crouch family. She took up her abode in Paris in the days when the second empire was in the full flood of its artificial prosperity. She had not a handsome face, but she had a fine figure, and she rode superbly. Literally, she galloped into notoriety in Paris, and under the rule of the third Napoleon notoriety was fame. At one time she appeared on the stage, but the venture was not successful. She became most notorious in connection with the affair with young Duval, son of the famous Parisian restaurant proprietor, who attempted to commit suicide on her account after spending a fortune with her. Quite recently she published a book containing what she called her "Memoirs," which, however, had only a very small sale.

YOUR HAIR

should be your crowning glory. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the vitality and color of youth to hair that has become thin and faded; and, where the glands are not decayed or absorbed, will cause a new growth on bald heads.

MAY the youthful color and vigor of the hair be preserved to old age? Read the following, from Mrs. G. Norton, Somerville, Mass.: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past 30 years; and, although I am upwards of 60, my hair is as abundant and glossy to-day as when I was 25."

BE assured, that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor will convince you of its powers. Mrs. M. E. Goff, Leadville, Col., writes: "Two years ago, my hair having almost entirely fallen out, I commenced the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. To-day my hair is 29 inches long, fine, strong, and healthy."

RENEWED and strengthened by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair regains its youthful color and vitality. Rev. H. P. Williamson, Davidson College, Mecklenburg Co., N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the last ten years. It is an excellent preservative."

BY the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, Geo. A. Dadman, Waterloo, Mo., had his hair restored to its original healthy condition. He was nearly bald, and very gray. He writes: "Only four bottles of the Vigor were required to restore my hair to its youthful color and quantity."

USING Ayer's Hair Vigor cures diseases of the scalp. F. H. Foster, Princeton, Ind., writes: "I had been troubled for years with a disease of the scalp; my head was covered with dandruff, and the hair dry and harsh. Ayer's Hair Vigor gave me immediate relief, cleansed the scalp, and rendered the hair soft and pliable."

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming 'smaller by degrees, and beautifully less.' I do not know what may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilton, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

"DEAL GENTLY WITH THE ERRING."

The Penny Post, at the end of a paragraph in which it points out some historical and orthographical errors in an article of the New York Graphic relating to Portsmouth and the Isles of Shoals, says: "But it is perhaps expecting too much of journalists that they shall be accurate historians. Some even of our local editors don't yet know how to print the names of this neighborhood." As the Penny Post in the very next item gives the name of New Hampshire's island town as "New Castle," we presume the local editor rapped must be our brother of the Times.

YACHTS AT THE SHOALS.

The annual cruise of the Eastern yacht club fleet commenced Saturday morning, the schooners Fortuna, Dreadnaught, Mohican, Latina, Actæa, Meta, Tioga, Wanderer and Silvie, the sloops North Star and Vandal, the cutters Stranger and Edith, and the steamer Oneida, getting under weigh at Marblehead at exactly nine o'clock, heating out of the harbor and bearing away for the eastward. The Gitana and Ambassadress were expected to join the fleet, but did not put in an appearance. The fleet arrived at the Shoals on Saturday evening and anchored for the night, most of the yachts bringing up in Star island roads.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, July 10th.

John Hurley was arraigned for brawl and tumult at his mother's residence on Brewster street, both inside and outside. He was fined $2, costs $11.06, from which judgement he appealed, and was ordered to give bonds in the sum of $100.

THE SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

Sufficient funds have already been subscribed to make the raising of a memorial to our heroes a positive fact, but it should be the ambition of all to aid the fund. Although the success of the undertaking is assured, nevertheless it remains with those who have not already subscribed to add such an amount to the fund as will make the memorial one that can be pointed to with pride. To afford every facility, boxes will be placed in the following mentioned locations: At the post-office; at Messrs. Andrew P. Preston's, John Laighton's, Mercer Goodrich's and Wm. D. Grace's places of business; and at the Kearsarge house. The proprietors have kindly consented to take charge of the funds deposited in the boxes, and the amounts will be acknowledged through the daily papers. Envelopes will also be left at each house, in order that every one may be able to contribute. Those who have subscribed, as well as future subscribers, will greatly facilitate the prompt completion of the work by sending their subscriptions to any member of the finance committee, or to the treasurer.

C. M. GIGNOUX, Treasurer S. & S. M.

If there are twenty or more Kittery people in the Cottage Hospital excursion to the Shoals on Tuesday, the steamer James Sampson will make an extra trip after the return of the Oceanic in the evening.

Mr. Joseph F. Morse, agent of the Travellers' Accident Insurance Co., was circulating about the city on Friday pamphlets in which was a list of claims paid by the company to New Hampshire men who held policies. Portsmouth men have been paid nearly $1,200, in amounts ranging from $5 to $250.

Two panes of glass were broken Saturday night by some malicious person or persons, on the right and left sides of the entrance to the Chinese laundry on Market street.

Ex-Secretary of the Navy Robeson was in town on Saturday.

Messrs. Connor & Trefethen will this morning commence laying the last of the brickwork of the Deer street sewer, through the tunnel.

The steamer Mystic had a good party on her trip to the Shoals and back, Sunday, and a more lovely day for such an excursion could not be desired.

Hon. Charles Levi Woodbury was in town on Sunday. The judge has his own ideas regarding the course of the administration upon the fishery seizures. He has given the subject no little consideration.

One of the horses of the Portsmouth Brewing Co.'s team was cut about the legs, Saturday forenoon, through stepping into a hole on Deer street. The defect in the street was caused by the sewer-building operations.

The annual Gospel Temperance grove meeting under the auspices of the Good Templars of New Hampshire will be held at Weirs July 17th and 18th. Hon. John B. Finch of Illinois will be the chief speaker, and music will be furnished by the Good Templar brass band of Manchester.

The New Hampshire department delegation will wear a unique badge on their trip to the Grand Army encampment at San Francisco. It consists of a silk badge appropriately lettered, and bearing the state seal, to the bar of which will be attached a polished block of granite, about an inch square and half an inch thick. About fifty people are expected to take the trip from New Hampshire.

The new Boston & Maine railroad station at Great Falls will cost $30,000. The work of erecting it has been begun.

Two young men who saturated a harmless dog with kerosene and burned him to death at Plymouth, were prosecuted by the agent of the N. H. S. P. C. A. last week. One went to jail, and the other gave bonds in $400 to await the action of the grand jury in September.

The practice ship Constellation, Comdr. C. L. Huntington commanding, and the Jamestown, Comdr. Horace Elmer commanding, sailed from Annapolis, Md., June 23d, with classes of cadets from the naval academy on board, and are expected to arrive at this naval station about the 17th inst.

Lieut. Edward J. Dorn is ordered to the New Hampshire.

Asst. Engr. W. H. Alderdice is detached from duty at the Washington university, St. Louis, and placed on waiting orders.

Capt. Richard W. Meade is detached from command of the Dolphin, and ordered to continue on special duty.

Lieut. W. P. Day is ordered to the Alliance.

Lieut. W. C. Gearing is ordered from the naval academy to the Essex.

Naval Constructor George W. Much is detached from special duty at the Morgan iron works, and ordered to special duty at New York.

Passed Asst. Engr. J. G. Toppen (retired) has been granted leave of absence for three months, with permission to leave the United States.

Capt. R. W. Huntington, U. S. M. C., is granted leave of absence for one month from the 16th inst.

The training ships Portsmouth and Saratoga sailed from Newport, R. I., for Europe, last week.

The Essex will sail from New York for China about the last of July.

The Alliance has sailed from Norfolk for Newport. She will probably be ordered to join the South Atlantic squadron.

The new cruiser Atlanta, now at New York, will probably go into commission July 15th.

The secretary of the navy has received reports from the boards appointed to inspect the United States steamer Alliance and Herreschoff's yacht Stiletto, from which it appears that while the highest rate of speed made by the naval vessel on a recent trial trip was nine knots an hour, the Stiletto averaged a little over twenty-three knots an hour on her trial trips.

The navy department has been notified of the death of Passed Asst. Engr. William B. Boggs at Guayaquil on the 21st of June. He was on his way to join the Adams, to which he was recently ordered.

The trouble which our fishermen are having with the Nova Scotians is not their only fishery trouble. Mackerel have almost entirely disappeared from their usual feeding grounds. Up to July 1st, 5383 barrels constituted the entire catch of the New England mackerel fleet. Last year up to the same date they had taken 24,600 barrels, and for five years previously they had averaged not less than 60,000 barrels at the same date. Old fishermen believe the mackerel will re-appear when the spawning season closes, which will be about the middle of this month. The fact is, this valuable fish is gradually disappearing from the coast. The annual catches show this. The mackerel have been killed off by the seining business. Immense hauls are made, the best mackerel only are dressed, and the small ones thrown overboard. Fishermen are beginning to realize that there is a limit even to the products of the sea.

The nomination of Fitz John Porter, worded as it is at present, entitles him, in the opinion of army people, to back pay—and yet this is just what his friends were constantly declaiming was what he did not want at all. He wanted merely "justice," they said, not money. One heartless senator remarked: "The president seems to be saving enough money to the treasury by vetoing bills for the relief of poor soldiers' widows to make up the amount which is to go to Fitz John Porter."

A deadly disease has developed on the cattle ranges of Lonake and Prairie counties, Arkansas, and the cattle are dying by scores. The disease resembles somewhat the Texas fever.

The drouth in the great wheat growing sections in Minnesota, Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Nebraska has seriously affected the crops.

A big coal syndicate has been formed in St. Louis, embracing the mining interests of southern Illinois within a radius of fifty miles.

The great success of the grand reduction sale of Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s proves that people really do appreciate good goods at low prices, notwithstanding the assertions of some dealers to the contrary.

The choicest selections of Havana cigars, of recent importations, are for sale at Preston's Drug store. They are packed in twenty-five and fifty boxes, especially for fine trade.

Children's elegant corduroy velvet suits marked down to $5.50 at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s, 32 Congress street.

C. E. Myers & Co., at the old stand, corner of Market and Bow streets, are offering a full line of men's and boys' nice merino underwear at thirty-five cents, well worth fifty. Ready made clothing as cheap as goods of equal quality can be sold by any one in the city.

NOTICE!

The Insurance Copartnership of Morse & Ilsley, on and after July 1st, 1886, is dissolved by mutual consent. After that date the business in all its branches will be continued at the old stand, bring up images of the wits of the last century, who used to sit in that same room and drink 'half-and-half,' too. One day an image materialized, for, while I was sitting beside a table, with my pewter pot half emptied, I observed that a large man in a cloak had entered. His face was round, pale and bushy, but the eyes were bright, and his bushy eyebrows slid up and down with quick changes of expression. He heavily sat down at the table next to mine, and directly a waiter came in with a big plate of bread and cheese and a glass of ale, and set it before him. He ate and drank heartily, and after finishing his lunch sat upright and rested his hands on a heavy cane. I could see only his back; but, from occasional movements of his head, such as a man makes when he is arguing in earnest, I surmised that he was doing some pretty hard thinking.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers.

"Suddenly he reached for his empty glass and hurled it on the floor with all his strength, smashing it into slivers. He sat for a minute longer, then got up slowly, 'tipped' the waiter, paid his reckoning at the bar and passed out. He had not uttered a word. The waiter got a broom, swept up the pieces of glass and cleared the table. I asked him if the gentleman's intellect was a little in need of repair. 'Oh, no, sir,' said he. 'That's nothink unusual with 'im, sir. Wy, he's broke maybe a 'undrd glasses since he's been a-comin' to this 'ouse. 'E don't know it when 'e does it. 'Ea a-thinkin', and it seems like as he got mad at somethink 'e was thinkin' about.' 'Who is he?' 'Lord Macaulay, sir.'"—Critic.

Mexican Indians' Love of Display.

The besetting vice of the Indians is a consuming love for spectacular display. In some respects it is rather a virtue; for example, when expressed in a love for and display of flowers. Think of an Irish, negro, or American housewife of the lower classes spending in the market the half of her last shilling for a bouquet to take home to her family. The idea is preposterous. But I could have taken you last Sunday to the village plaza where these poor Indians congregate weekly to sell to each other their fruits and wares, and you would have witnessed the sale of wreaths of flowers, bunches of roses and bouquets along with potatoes and corn meal. True, a cent and a half will buy a bouquet, but the flower girl's customers are as reliable here as among the grand ladies. A less agreeable manifestation of this passion is the everlasting ringing of bells and firing of crackers upon birthdays, saints' days—and they are many—and national holidays. It is now the 5th of May, the national 4th of July of Mexico. Tlalmanalco is a small and obscure village, and the principal celebrations take place in towns, but the din of church bells, the explosion of crackers and improvised cannon, since daybreak, has been horrible. The Indians stand on their housetops and fire explosive rockets in the day time for hours at a time. In front of the Ayuntimiento a band of twenty pieces, all Indians, is discoursing music at a furious rate. Processions, flags, banners, more bands, more bell-ringing and cracker-firing will make life a burden to anyone gifted with sensibilities above that of the brute creation.—Mexico Cor. Cleveland Leader.

"THE OLD COLONY; OR, PILGRIM LAND, PAST AND PRESENT." This charming little book describes in a very pleasing and graphic manner the many places of beauty and historic interest to be found in southern Massachusetts and vicinity, (Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket, etc.) To seekers after health, rest or recreation, and to all those in search of further knowledge of the localities made famous by "Ye Pilgrim Fathers," this work will prove exceedingly interesting and instructive. "Pilgrim Land" is profusely illustrated, and contains several maps of the locality described, lists of hotels and boarding-houses, their accommodations, rates, other information in connection; and last, but not least, "How to get there." The book is published by the Fall River Line. Copies will be mailed free on application to L. H. Palmer, agent, No. 3 Old State House, Boston, or to Geo. L. Connor, general passenger agent, New York.

George Makepeace Towle has just completed a "Young People's History of Ireland," as a companion volume to his recently published "Young People's History of England." The Irish history will contain an introduction by John Boyle O'Reilly, and will be published in the early autumn by Lee & Shepard.

Dr. A. F. Blaisdell, author of the popular physiological text-books, "Our Bodies," "How to Keep Well," and "The Child's Book of Health," has revised, and Lee & Shepard have just published, "Outlines for the Study of English Classics," which has been a very reliable practical guide to English literature for teachers, and rechristened it "Study of the English Classics."

Typhoid Fever.

Charles Hartford, of New Castle, Westchester Co., N. Y., suffered with typhoid fever, and was given up to die. The senate has passed a bill sustaining a patent for seventeen years, notwithstanding it had been previously patented in Canada.

Bodily health and vigor may be maintained as easily in the heat of summer, as in the winter months, if the blood is purified and vitalized with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Every person who has used this remedy has been greatly benefited. Take it this month.

Hon. Henry T. Merrill, son of Rev. J. Merrill of Troy, N. H., is inspector general of customs in the kingdom of Corea.

Constipation is positively cured by Carter's Little Liver Pills. Not by purging and weakening the bowels, but by regulating and strengthening them. This is done by improving the digestion and stimulating the liver to the proper secretion of bile, when the bowels will perform their customary functions in an easy and natural manner. Purgative pills must be avoided. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Price 25 cents.

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

A PLUCKY HYDROPHOBIC PATIENT.

The Victim of a Mad Dog's Bite Describes His Sufferings.

Through the courtesy of Dr. John D. Spencer, the physician in charge, I was permitted to talk a few moments in private with Jere Coughlin, of The Watertown Times, who was bitten by a rabid dog on the evening of May 19. Mr. Coughlin was reminded that the people were suspicious that he did not tell the whole truth about the dog. "I did not in print," he candidly replied, "for had I done so, there would have been great excitement. People die from fright, and I did not care to kill any one if the dog did try it. The truth is, the dog made his entrance into my dining-room by butting the door open with his head. That caused the the tired appearance. He was simply stunned. My wife turned him out and watched him go around the house, calling my attention to the fact that he was frothing at the mouth. I went out the other way to look for him, taking a coal shovel in my hand. As I got out the dog was running toward the barn, one of the large doors of which was open. But he did not go in. He struck his head against the closed door and turned almost around. He jumped up quickly again and ran straight toward me. I raised the shovel; he sprang for my hand, but caught my leg, but a blow from the back of the shovel made him loosen his hold, when he went straight under the back steps and lay there until he was shot.

"What has been my treatment? Dr. Spencer must tell you that. I have followed his advice and taken his medicine; have kept cool and calm; saw no one but the doctor for eleven days. My symptoms have been carefully noted down, sometimes by myself and sometimes by my wife. I noticed alarm in the doctor's face the eighth day. My temperature was normal and my pulse 120. I calmed myself as best I could. That morning I began to have sharp pains in my eyes. The eyeballs enlarged so that I could see to read nonpareil without glasses, something which I had not done for twelve years. There was an uneasy restlessness all day. Although my temper is usually calm, it was with the utmost endeavor that I could control myself. I wanted to scold or hit somebody, and chewed up a whole lead pencil in my fury. I retired between 7 and 8 in the evening, not because I was sleepy, but for the purpose of getting out of the way of everybody. Hot and cold flashes passed through my system until midnight, while I tumbled and tossed about the bed wrapped in flannel sheets. With almost lightning suddenness then began pains, sharp ones, seemingly coming from the wound at first, but so rapid that within a short time they seemed to start from every part of my system. I was burning, in pain, and thirsty. My first impulse was to take a run in the cool air, my second was to stay in bed and fight it out. I did not care to call anyone, fearing that their task would cause me to lose what little reason I had. I felt so light that it seemed to me there was danger of my floating out of bed; I firmly grasped the side of the bed and held on, believing the unusual pain and heat would soon pass away. I held myself in that position until a few minutes before 4—nearly four hours—when the pain and heat suddenly stopped.

"My mind was perfectly clear. The flannel sheets were wet with perspiration. I got up terribly exhausted and attempted to take a spoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in half a glass of water which had been prepared for me to drink through the night. My stomach repelled it with terrible force. I waited until the stomach had quited down, and then I swallowed the medicine quickly, shutting my mouth with a grim determination that it should not come out. The stomach acted the same as before, but I would not open my mouth. It was hard, and my throat did not feel just right. Well, I got it down, and got such a terrible wrenching of the body that I have not yet recovered. I took my medicine next day with my eyes closed. There were some of the symptoms of the night before, but they were lighter, and have now passed entirely away—at least, I think so. I could easily have gone crazy had I not kept my senses when burning with pain and thirst; would probably have done so had not Dr. Spencer sent me home from the office to remain quiet. I have a sore leg, and just as coon as that is healed I will be at work again, satisfied that there is as much hydrophobia in a person's mind as in a dog's bite, and believing that our best American physicians can cure what disease there is if patients will only control themselves, and not go off into hysterics."

Dr. Spencer was next called upon. He said he had no means of positively knowing that the dog was mad. He advised against the killing of it, but it was killed before his advice was known. From the description of the dog given by an eyewitness and the symptoms of his patient he believed the dog was mad. He did not appear as positive as Mr. Coughlin in thinking that the latter would be able to resume work in a few days, but he had no fears of the result. As to the treatment, he preferred saying nothing about that until the case was ended. Then he would have no objection to making it public.—Watertown Cor. New York Times.

The Dirty and Dangerous Classes.

People are cleanly in proportion as they are decent, industrious, and self-respecting. Unclean people are uncivilized. The dirty classes of great towns are invariably the "dangerous classes" of those towns; and if we would civilize

The July number of "the Cosmopolitan" opens with a fine story by Julian Hawthorne, entitled "False Parallels." Another notable story is "The Old Egyptian Legend of an enchanted Prince" by George Ebers. Lucy C. Lillie's vivacious story entitled "Joseph Wetherbee" is concluded in this number. The illustrated articles of the number are "The Social Life of Animals," by Fr. Knauer, and "The Pillars of Hercules," by Joseph T. Alling. "Warning," by Louise Chandler Moulton, and "Some Day," by Joel Benton, will be read by all lovers of good poetry. Every line of the juvenile department will interest the children. Among the excellent and valuable articles in the household department, that on "The Little Stranger," by Mrs. Louise A. Chapman, the first of a series on the care and management of the little ones that bless our households, will arrest attention. Schlicht & Field, publishers, Rochester, N. Y.; $2.50 per year.

—Apples lost our first parents their home in Eden, and brought on the Trojan war, and started the gravitation theory. But their greatest exploit has just occurred in Willimantic. The Chronicle of that town says: "William R. Fenner lost a cow lately by eating too many apples." How Mr. Fenner's consumption of apples should have killed a cow is a mystery.

—"Is it wrong to toast Jeff Davis," asks a contemporary. No, there is nothing wrong about it; but why not boil him?

The Physiology of the Liver.

The liver is the largest secreting organ in the human body, and the bile which it secretes is more liable to vitiation and misdirection from its proper channels than any other of the animal fluids. Luckily for the bilious, however, there is an unfailing source of relief from liver complaint, namely, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which for over a quarter of a century has been achieving thorough cures of the above mentioned ailments, fever and ague, dyspepsia, bowel complaints, rheumatic and kidney affection, and disorders involving loss of nervous vigor. It is, moreover, a preventive of malarial disease, and affords protection to thousands of persons residing in districts of country where that dire scourge is prevalent. As a remedy adapted to the medicinal requirements of families, it is supremely desirable, and as a means of fortifying a debilitated system, it is thoroughly to be depended upon.

—Lord Lytton tells the story of a groom married to a rich lady, and is great fear of being ridiculed by the guests in his new home. An Oxford clergyman gave him the following advice: "Wear a black coat and hold your tongue." The groom was soon considered the most gentlemanly person in the county.

—"Have you read the "Descent of Man," asked Clara, looking over her book-shelves. "No," said George, a little timidly; "don't care for it; but I'd like to get the assent of woman." It is currently reported that he got it the very next Sunday night that ever was.

Is inseparably connected with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and is true of no other medicine. It is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy, while thousands testify to its superior blood-purifying and strengthing qualities. A bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will last a month, while others will average to last not over a week. Hence, for economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Promotion in the Navy.

It is said that Rear-Admiral J. H. Russell, who has been ordered to the command of the South Atlantic station, will shortly ask to be retired under the forty years' service law, in order to allow Commodore Queen to be promoted to the rank of rear-admiral prior to the date of his retirement in September.

It is understood that the president will make another effort to secure the promotion of Commodore Truxton to the rank of rear admiral. He was nominated as a rear admiral a few months ago, and while his nomination was pending in the senate, he was placed on the retired list as a commodore by operation of law. The attorney general, it is said, has given an opinion that, owing to certain information in the case, he is still eligible for retirement with the advanced rank. The promotion of about thirty officers of subordinate rank is delayed by the failure to dispose of this case.

News And Notes.

A despatch of the 11th from Halifax says: "The schooner City Point, which was seized at Shelburne, is to be released at once, United States Consul-General Phelan having deposited the amount of the fine imposed, $400, with Collector of Customs Ross. The C. B. Harrington and George W. Cushings will be released also under similar conditions. The sums deposited will be refunded if the owners of the vessels can establish that the detentions were not legal."

Congressman Boutelle of Maine on Saturday received a despatch from Eastport, Me., saying that on Friday night American boats at St. Andrews, N. B., after herring to be canned as sardines, were driven away by the Dominion cruiser Middleton, and announcement was made that no American boats are to be allowed to procure herring in Dominion waters for any purpose. Mr. Boutelle at once communicated this information to the state department.

The senate last Saturday adopted a resolution offered by Mr. Hoar calling for information in relation to the detention of American vessels in foreign ports.

Mr. Samuel Day of Bridgton, Me., was industriously eating oysters in a Portland restaurant one day last week, and a man of pleasing address, who sat opposite him at the table, accidentally spilt some vinegar on his (Mr. Day's) vest. The stranger, with a polite apology, immediately applied a napkin and wiped it off. He then speedily finished his repast, left the table and disappeared. When Mr. Day went to settle for his oysters, his watch and $10 in money were gone from his vest, and a cut in the cloth told of the polite stranger's feat of legerdemain.

A cigar-shaped raft of logs, containing 2,500,000 feet and valued at $35,000 will leave St. John for New York in a few days. It will be hauled by a regular ocean steamer. The object is to save $8,000 duty.

A New York physician, Dr. Robert Taylor, reports the cure of a case of traumatic tetanus, or lockjaw, resultant from a wound, which is, it is said, the only instance in which a fatal conclusion to such an attack has been averted.

An agricultural paper of Massachusetts says: "Returns indicate that the yield of hay in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont for the present season will more than equal that of last year. In the two latter states the crop seems to be considerably above the average, and in Maine, though the promise of the early spring has not been sustained, yet the figures of last year will be excelled. New Hampshire reports a gain in every county of from six to twenty-three per cent, and the total yield of Vermont is estimated at over 1,100,000 tons. As the rule, the amount of old hay on hand is small. The haying operations in all three states are well begun."

In the French chamber of deputies last week a crank fired a shot at the president, the bullet passing close to his head.

It is announced from Paris that the Panama Canal Co. have determined to issue regular bonds instead of lottery shares.

It is believed that Lesley and Wilson, the defaulting officials of the Chesapeake & Delaware Canal Co., have escaped to Brazil.

Earl Cowper writes that, judging from his experience during two important years as lord lieutenant of Ireland, Mr. Gladstone's scheme must lead to separation.

The London News says if Mr. Gladstone returns to parliament as the leader of the minority, he will doubtless resign.

They are now adopting a novel method in India of giving change of air to people who cannot afford to go away from home. Patients are to go up in a balloon, which ascends to a certain height and is there made captive. It seems that a few days passed in this atmosphere, which is quite different from that of the plains underneath, firmly braces up the most limp of the invalids.

In a garden at Caledonia, N. Y., a bed of flowers has been laid out, twenty-two feet long, to represent a huge trout. The gills, fins and eyes are represented by different colored flowers.

Mrs. T. E. Davis, formerly a resident of Boston, committed suicide in Chicago a few days ago.

A clerk in the second comptroller's office at Washington who is in his 70th year, has recently been rendered happy by the birth of his first child; and yet there are those who assert that this is not a vigorous administration.

Congress is about to appropriate $96,000 to ventilate the treasury department. How much it will cost to ventilate the department of justice is not stated.

The Peabody grocer who refused to sell goods to one of his best customers, when ordered to discontinue by the Knights of Labor, acted very absurdly. The Knights of Labor have no right to interfere with a man's private business, and a dealer who acknowledges that they have, shows a lamentable dependence of spirit. The Knights should act upon the precept of the leader of their order and drop the boycott from their methods.—Lawrence Eagle.

The foreign-born persons in this country who took so naturally to boycotting were largely unnaturalized, and so not citizens of the country. They are likely to learn through rather bitter experience that the boycott doesn't seem to flourish well on American soil.—Lowell Mail.

Capitalists who black-list, oppress and maltreat their employees should be dealt with by the courts as relentlessly as the misguided men who believe that they have a right to boycott a man's business out of existence and make him pay for the process.—New York World.

—"Yes," said the fair but false young vocalist to Bumbleton, "that is an old English song, with a refrain." "Ah," replied the crusty critic, "that just suits me. Refrain from singing it." should be your crowning glory. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the vitality and color of youth to hair that has become thin and faded; and, where the glands are not decayed or absorbed, will cause a new growth on bald heads.

MAY the youthful color and vigor of the hair be preserved to old age? Read the following, from Mrs. G. Norton, Somerville, Mass.: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past 30 years; and, although I am upwards of 60, my hair is as abundant and glossy to-day as when I was 25."

BE assured, that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor will convince you of its powers. Mrs. M. E. Goff, Leadville, Col., writes: "Two years ago, my hair having almost entirely fallen out, I commenced the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. To-day my hair is 29 inches long, fine, strong, and healthy."

RENEWED and strengthened by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair regains its youthful color and vitality. Rev. H. P. Williamson, Davidson College, Mecklenburg Co., N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the last ten years. It is an excellent preservative."

BY the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, Geo. A. Dadman, Waterloo, Mo., had his hair restored to its original healthy condition. He was nearly bald, and very gray. He writes: "Only four bottles of the Vigor were required to restore my hair to its youthful color and quantity."

USING Ayer's Hair Vigor cures diseases of the scalp. F. H. Foster, Princeton, Ind., writes: "I had been troubled for years with a disease of the scalp; my head was covered with dandruff, and the hair dry and harsh. Ayer's Hair Vigor gave me immediate relief, cleansed the scalp, and rendered the hair soft and pliable."

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming 'smaller by degrees, and beautifully less.' I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Fair weather, slowly rising temperature, nearly stationary barometer.

Clear.

AT THE ISLES OF SHOALS.

APPLEDORE HOUSE, July 11th.

Dear Chronicle: A week of magnificent weather at the shoals has nearly filled this hotel with guests, many distinguished people being among the number. Whittier, the poet, Mr. Wm. Mason, the eminent musician, Mr. Childe Hassain, the artist, Mrs. Ole Bull of Cambridge, and Mr. Abou Hassan Del Bagoud Ben Aldrood from the far east, are here. Mrs. Celia Thaxter is here for the summer, and Mr. Warder of Springfield, Ohio, occupies his cottage upon the heights.

The schooner yachts Dreadnaught, Actea, Fortuna, Sylvie, and others, several sloops, and an English cutter with an enormous spread of canvas, anchored here last evening and remained till nine o'clock this morning. It was a fine sight to see them sail away at that time before a brisk westerly breeze, with every imaginable kind of sail set and the foam flying from their sharp prows; all bound for Bar Harbor.

Fish are unusually plenty and of fine flavor this season. Mr. George Byass of New York brought in a splendid forty-five pound cod-fish the other day, and mackerel are beginning to make their appearance. The sea serpent has been seen off Nantasket, and is due here about the 15th, I am told.

The first ball of the season was given last evening, and was a very successful affair. The band, under the leadership of Mr. Oscar Schouffienhiezer, discussed most beautiful music, and is declared by the guests to be the best band they ever had here.

I understand that during the recent heated term the thermometer registered an average of about seventy degrees here,—very hot for the Shoals, as sixty-five degrees is the usual average.

There are a few Portsmouth people here, Mr. C. S. Franklin and wife, Mr. W. H. Rollins, and others. I hope to see more of them during my stay; will write you again on the arrival of the sea serpent. STRAWBERRY BANK.

OCEANIC, STAR ISLAND, July 12th.

One of the most beautiful sights conceivable was afforded the guests at these islands by the visit of the cruising fleet of the Eastern yacht club, Saturday evening. The yachts were brilliantly illuminated, and the reflection of their many lights and white sails on the smooth surface of the tide, made a scene of rare beauty. But their flight on Sunday morning was not less beautiful. At the signal of the admiral the fleet set sail, over a lively sea and under a fair sky, while many admiring eyes watched them from the windows and piazzas of the Oceanic. A more pleasing sight than such a fleet under sail is seldom afforded, such scenes being among the peculiar traits of Star island and the Shoals, not found at all places. The following is a correct list of the vessels comprising the fleet:

Nautilus, Eleetwing, Storm King, S. E. Davis, Fantine, Ambassadress, Peerless, Latona, Meta, Mohican, Silvie, Fortuna, Dreadnaught, Actea, Wanderer, Stranger, (cutter,) and Oneida, (steamer.) MAIN SHEET.

SUPPRESSED HISTORY.

In an article under the title "The Gunpowder for Bunker Hill," in Harper's magazine for July, Ballard Smith says:

It is a curious fact that the most important as well as the most dramatic incident immediately preceding the American Revolution—an incident, indeed, which directly precipitated hostilities—has but slighting mention in any of the histories. It may be well doubted whether even one in every hundred thousand Americans could recall any of the circumstances of this noteworthy event.

This was the attack upon Fort William and Mary in Portsmouth harbor by a band of young patriots led by John Sullivan, afterward major-general in the Continental army. The assault was made in December, 1774, four months before the battle of Lexington, and six months before Bunker Hill. It was unquestionably the first act of overt treason. Singularly enough, however, Bancroft makes but a casual reference to it, and in none of the histories is it given more than a paragraph. Yet its immediate consequences were not less momentous than those of Lexington. It was, in fact, the occasion of the conflict at Lexington, and it is more than probable that it saved Bunker Hill from proving a disastrous defeat, if not, indeed, a calamity fatal to further effort for freedom.

Amory's only reference to it in his "Military Services of General Sullivan" is this: "Soon after his return home [Sullivan had been a delegate to the Continental Congress] he planned with Thomas Pickering and John Langdon an attack, on the night of the 12th of December, upon Fort William and Mary, at Newcastle, in Portsmouth harbor—one of the earliest acts of hostility against the mother country; and, by the aid of a portion of a force he had been for some months engaged in drilling in their military exercises in preparation for the anticipated conflict, carried ninety-seven kegs of powder and a quantity of small-arms in gondolas to Durham, where they were concealed, in part, under the pulpit of its meeting-house. Soon after the battles of Lexington and Concord had aroused the people to a realizing sense that they were actually engaged in hostilities, these much-needed supplies, or a portion of them, were brought by him to the lines at Cambridge, where he marched with his company, and were used at the battle of Bunker Hill."

This account is in some respects clearly inaccurate, and it is altogether incommensurate with the importance of the act. The assault was made, not on the 12th, but on the night of the 13th or 14th of December—for there is some conflict of authority on this point, and there is nothing to show that any act of treasonable hostility preceded it. Sparks, in his "Life of Sullivan," gives practically the same details, and Bancroft, Botta, and Bryant make only an allusion to the event.

In the same article Mr. Smith thus refers to the expenditure of some of the Portsmouth harbor powder at Bunker Hill:

When, as the British were forming for a decisive charge on his hotly defended works, Prescott discovered that he had barely one round of ammunition among his men, and gave the order to retreat both his and Stark's men would undoubtedly have been cut to pieces or captured except for the galling fire with which Stark, from behind the grass-stuffed fence on Bunker Hill, met the Welsh Fusileers who were marching to cut off the retreat to Cambridge. It is of tradition and some part of record that, until within even a few moments of the Fusileers' charge, Stark was no better equipped with ammunition than was Prescott. But an ample supply of powder arrived in the nick of time. It had been brought over from Durham, sixty miles away, in old John Demeritt's ox-cart, and it was a part of the store that had been buried under Parson Adams' pulpit. Failing it, Prescott might on that day have shared the martyrdom of Warren, and Molly Stark might indeed have been a widow that night.

Sullivan was the first man in active rebellion against the British government, and he drew with him the province he lived in. In a recent address on the history of that part of New Hampshire, Rev. Dr. Quint, of Dover, referred briefly to the attack on the fort. "The daring character of this assault," he said, "cannot be over-estimated. It was an organized investment of a royal fortress where the King's flag was flying, and where the King's garrison met them with muskets and artillery. It was four months before Lexington, and Lexington was resistance to attack, while this was deliberate assault."

That the parts borne by the men of New Hampshire in opening hostilities against the mother country, and at Bunker Hill in holding the frail rail-fence line after the central and main defence, the redoubt, had been abandoned, thereby preserving the rebel troops from total destruction, have been almost wholly ignored by the historians, has probably been due to the fact that none of the historians were New Hampshire men. Had Fort William and Mary been in Massachusetts, and the rail-fence defenders Massachusetts troops, there would have been plenty about them in the histories.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers.

classes we must first banish dirt from among them.

Dirt forms no part of our nature. It is a parasite feeding upon human life and destroying it. It is hideous and disgusting. There can be no beauty where it is. The prettiest woman is made repulsive by it. Children are made fretful, impatient, and bad tempered by it. Men are degraded and made reckless by it. There is little modesty where dirt is, for dirt is indecency. There can be little purity of mind if the person is impure; for the body is the temple of the soul, and must be clean and pure to be a worthy shrine of that within. Dirt has an affinity with self-indulgence and intemperance. Sanitary inquirers have clearly made out that the dirty classes are the drunken classes, and that they are prone to seek in the stupefaction of beer, gin, and opium, a refuge from the miserable depression caused by the foul conditions in which they live.—Samuel S. Miles.

All persons traveling in France are strictly warned that under the provisions of a recent French law the following acts are made offenses punishable by fine and imprisonment: Making sketches, drawing, or plans in the vicinity of a fortress or naval station, scaling palisades, entering military inclosures and mounting earthworks or parapets; also the making of any questions upon any points concerning the state defenses.—Paris Letter.

A recent photograph of the Pleiades shows 1,421 stars, while a carefully drawn chart, prepared with about the same instrumental power, gives 625. Many small objects seen in the photograph do not appear in direct eye-observations. The importance of the accurate photographic method of star-mapping is indicated by the fact that the hand-drawn chart gives ten stars which have no existence.—Arkansaw Traveler.

The action of Carter's Little Liver Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please.

Lulu Smith, the beautiful young wife of Lucius Smith, committed suicide at Dover on Saturday by taking a dose of oil of tansy. An investigation revealed the fact that she and her husband have been travelling about the country under false names with the object of defrauding storekeepers and landlords. His real name is George A. Tucker; his wife's maiden name was Ida A. Nutting, and she was married to him last April in Haverhill, Mass.

Constipation is positively cured by Carter's Little Liver Pills. Not by purging and weakening the bowels, but by regulating and strengthening them. This is done by improving the digestion and stimulating the liver to the proper secretion of bile, when the bowels will perform their customary functions in an easy and natural manner. Purgative pills must be avoided. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Price 25 cents.

James Coleman, fifty-five years old, was run over and killed by the cars at Reading, Mass., on Sunday. Two daughters who were with him got off the cars all right, but the man remained till the train started, then jumped off and fell beneath the wheels.

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

It turns out that George Smith, alias George A. Tucker, whose young wife died in Dover from the effects of an overdose of oil of tansy, is "wanted" in Lawrence, Mass., for bigamy, he having had two wives living at the time he married Ella A. Nutting. Tucker has been in jail in Lawrence for various offences, drunkenness, larceny, etc. There is some suspicion of foul play in the tansy business.

Proposing to Reward Treason.

Considerable comment has been created in republican circles at Washington by a democratic attempt to pension a deserter from the United States navy, through the introduction of a bill by Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, to which Representative Boutelle, of Maine, has drawn attention. The bill in question was introduced by the chairman of the judiciary committee on May 18th, and proposes to place "Nicholas H. Van Zandt, late a lieutenant in the navy of the United States," on the pension rolls and to pay him a pension of $75 a month. The ground upon which the pension is asked is deafness, alleged to have been contracted more than thirty years ago. The pension which it is proposed to pay is $3 more a month than the highest rate given to totally disabled soldiers of the Union, with the exception of Pension Commissioner Black, who draws $100 a month by a special act that was not vetoed.

The official records show that Van Zandt deserted the service of his country before he sent in his resignation. They show, furthermore, that he sent in his resignation in November, 1861, in the face of the enemy, and was dismissed in December, 1861, from the navy of the United States. Within eleven days of the date of his resignation he enlisted and was commissioned as an officer in the Confederate navy. "This is a case," as Mr. Boutelle says, "in which it is proposed to pay $75 a month to reward a man for dastardly treason to the government in the days of its peril."

It is claimed that the president will be induced to sign this bill should it pass the house and senate.

A Democratic "Reformer."

Pension Commissioner Black is a mighty thrifty man in these days of "reform." He takes care of "his people" even though he may have chattered about "nepotism" under republican rule, when he was still a "physical wreck"—only without a $5000 salary attached. He put his mother-in-law, Mrs. A. S. Griggs, in the pension office. She is never at her desk, and is seen at the office only on pay days. Dr. Philip Barton, the general's physician, who was made a medical referee in the pension office, is accommodating enough to certify to Mrs. Griggs' inability to do any work. Mr. McGreal, disbursing clerk in the interior department, is the "physical wreck's" brother-in-law. If he keeps on at this rate General Black will soon succeed in quartering the whole family on the government.

Progress of the Administration.

Hon. Thomas B. Reed was met in New York on his return from Portland last week by an interviewer, to whom he answered among other things as follows when asked about Congress:

From present appearances we shall get back to the old issue of the tariff, and the issue of the capacity—or rather the lack of capacity—of the democratic party to conduct the government of the country. They started in, proposing to do certain things for the benefit of the country which their own administration and their own people had recommended them to do. They are closing their session without doing any of these things.

In the first place Mr. Tilden said some very sensible things in regard to fortifications and coast defences. His letter upon that subject was indorsed, not only by his party, but by the country. His recommendations are likely to be ignored.

The secretary of the navy earnestly urged upon Congress to begin the construction of a navy. He urged that shipbuilding be entered upon, but Congress has done nothing. The secretary of the navy himself, up to the present time, has not even completed the plans for ships that were ordered by the last Congress, and for whose construction appropriations were made. He has not even asked for bids for the construction of these ships, so that nothing has been done by him, even under the power that he already possessed. It is doubtful if Congress will give him any further authorization, in view of this dilatoriness.

The last democratic house presided for a commission to investigate the subjects of ordnance and armored ships, but their report is absolutely void of any recommendation, and is, therefore, sure to be void of results. Inasmuch as it takes a long period of time—one, two or three years—to build a big gun, the folly of this delay must be apparent when taken in connection with the entirely defenceless condition of our sea coast. We are simply at the mercy of the smallest of the civilized nations of the globe.

It would, of course, not be desirable that large amounts of money should be spent at once on coast defences and munitions of war. But the United States could immediately begin, without injury or disturbance of its financial condition, to spend a reasonable sum annually in this direction, which in course of time would furnish due protection to our great cities and sea-coasts and give us a navy when we need one. Eventually this gradual expenditure would give us proper defences all around.

Important Capture.

A despatch from Ottawa, Ont., says: "Inspector O'Leary, of the Dominion detective force, has returned from Trenton, having succeeded in arresting T. B. Isaacs, the leader of the counterfeiters operating in Canada. When arrested he drew a revolver and attempted to shoot the officer, but was foiled. A desperate struggle then ensued, but the inspector, who is a trained athlete, threw Isaacs violently to the floor, and before he could successfully resist, had him in irons. He succeeded in securing a large quantity of bogus money and plates for bills on the Mohawk National bank, Dominion bills, Maverick National of Boston, County bank of Iowa, and Merchants' National of Kansas City, beside two others in Cincinnati and Chicago, which were in pieces, but not complete. He also got an order book showing the names of over fifty dealers in spurious coin, and how and when shipments had been made. This record shows that over $1,000,000 of the 'queer' has been circulated."

It is announced that the emperors of Germany, Austria and Russia will probably meet at Konigsberg or Kiel next autumn. It the armies of the nations named don't meet somewhere soon it will be pleasing to the rest of Europe.

A large lot of splendid piano and organ boxes must be sold cheap at Montgomery's.

The great success of the grand reduction sale of Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s proves that people really do appreciate good goods at low prices, notwithstanding the assertions of some dealers to the contrary.

The choicest selections of Havana cigars, of recent importations, are for sale at Preston's Drug store. They are packed in twenty-five and fifty boxes, especially for fine trade.

C. E. Myers & Co., at the old stand, corner of Market and Bow streets, are offering a full line of men's and boys' nice merino underwear at thirty-five cents, well worth fifty. Ready made clothing as cheap as goods of equal quality can be sold by any one in the city.

Children's elegant corduroy velvet suits marked down to $5.60 at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s, 32 Congress street.

Mr. E. A. Tilton will resume the position of musical director at Christ church next Sunday.

YOUR HAIR

should be your crowning glory. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the vitality and color of youth to hair that has become thin and faded; and, where the glands are not decayed or absorbed, will cause a new growth on bald heads.

MAY the youthful color and vigor of the hair be preserved to old age? Read the following, from Mrs. G. Norton, Somerville, Mass.: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past 30 years; and, although I am upwards of 60, my hair is as abundant and glossy to-day as when I was 25."

BE assured, that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor will convince you of its powers. Mrs. M. E. Goff, Leadville, Col., writes: "Two years ago, my hair having almost entirely fallen out, I commenced the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. To-day my hair is 29 inches long, fine, strong, and healthy."

RENEWED and strengthened by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair regains its youthful color and vitality. Rev. H. P. Williamson, Davidson College, Mecklenburg Co., N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the last ten years. It is an excellent preservative."

BY the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, Geo. A. Dadman, Waterloo, Mo., had his hair restored to its original healthy condition. He was nearly bald, and very gray. He writes: "Only four bottles of the Vigor were required to restore my hair to its youthful color and quantity."

USING Ayer's Hair Vigor cures diseases of the scalp. F. H. Foster, Princeton, Ind., writes: "I had been troubled for years with a disease of the scalp; my head was covered with dandruff, and the hair dry and harsh. Ayer's Hair Vigor gave me immediate relief, cleansed the scalp, and rendered the hair soft and pliable."

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four Bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

EVENING DRESSES—BLACK LACE—BEADS —WHITE COSTUMES—NOTES.

Lovely evening dresses are of light colored foulard in floral patterns, or showing Oriental colored balls. Imitation Valenciennes lace in the soft, new designs is a favorite relief, and is sometimes very wide. Mikado silks are in questionable taste, showing enormous patterns, tolerable perhaps for the straight-falling drapery of a Japanese, but to us, suggestive of curtain stuff. Stylish white dresses are made of canvas, trimmed with bows of watered ribbon; while taking a first position both for beauty and cost, are dresses of white watered silk, trimmed, or oftener draped, with white lace. Black moire dresses are veiled with Chantilly and the white by Valenciennes — both imitation of course, but the simulation so refined as to be very pleasing. Costumes of bordered foulard are notably tasteful, soft-falling and plain throughout, with the exception of a palm-leaf border; the colorings of the two, carefully designed to correspond. One recently worn by Miss Astor was of tan color, made with kilt plaited skirt, having a border in Oriental colors around the lower edge; a deep pointed apron and the two pointed back draperies showed the edges bordered; the yoke basque, with plaits back and front, and side pockets, cuffs and collar bordered. Other foulards in this style display combinations of black and red, blue and red, ecru and brown, etc. Plain foulards are relieved by velvet.

BLACK LACE DRESSES

Are things of beauty and a universal joy, since everybody can wear them; almost always combined with silk, and here the brightest colors can be so toned down as not to be too gay. As a word to the economical, let me suggest that the lace be not placed on the lower side of the sleeve or under the arm, as it does not stand friction. Dotted lace net is classed among materials, and some of the prettiest costumes are made of it over silk, while dresses of plain net are tucked, side plaited, etc., just like any other fabric. Colored nets or laces fall in manifold ways over colored silks, and plain, bespangled, dotted or beaded, form a leading and infinitely varied style. Beaded laces are in as great variety. Fronts and sides of costumes are trimmed with net bestrewn by jet pendants of large and small beads strung together; jetted net capes with pointed edges are stylish additions, and jetted collarettes supersede the neck dressing of lace. All these things are duplicated in beads of all colors. How many belles sit with aching shoulders, I am afraid to say. Leaning back in one's chair will not answer. A "just so" attitude is the penalty paid, and the reflection that these beads are perpetually coming off and require perpetual putting on again, leaves no doubt that the fashionable woman pays for her honors. The

HALF MOURNING

People who come to watering places accomplish the task so prettily that the envy of non-mourning people may well be excited. White crape costumes are captivating, with fragrant corsage bouquet of purple violets. Then there are thin crepon cloths with crinkled surface, and silk crepon intersecting or parallel lines. Dressy half mourners rotate among these novelties in white, but as more serviceable, do not disdain thicker crape-finished cloth, "snow-flake" cloth with silk warp and basket surface, or gypsy cloth with also a silk warp and armure figures. It is not infrequent to see ladies in half mourning confine themselves to white, the more so as this year there are special novelties, while even in the deepest mourning white can be worn on some particular occasion, as that of a wedding or when the weather is very oppressive.

MIDSUMMER NOTES.

Colored bordered handkerchiefs hold their own, since they give out coquettish peepings from corsage fronts or hidden-away pockets that are sometimes very pleasing, to say nothing of coquettish handling.——Ball's corsets with coiled wire elastic sections on the sides, seem in demand everywhere, owing doubtless to the easy fit and fine shape. For those who prefer it, there is a non-elastic section at the waist.——Suits cut open to show a than-like shirt-front are exceedingly stylish; the more so, often, if the front is striped in colors with colored cuffs to match, and sometimes upright colored collar, but often the collar is white. The bow is a man's bow of white lawn. Standing white collars with the longer dude tie are much liked, and a man's tie can grace it.——Ribbon bows, ignored for city streets, are seen at summer resorts, as also the bias tie and the new tie of white lace.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers.

The Voice of the People.

The people, as a whole, seldom make mistakes, and the unanimous voice of praise which comes from those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, fully justifies the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine. Indeed, these very claims are based entirely on what the people say Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for them. Read the abundant evidence of its curative powers, and give it a fair, honest trial.

Weekly Payment of Wages.

The democrats in their recent state convention resolved that a law ought to be passed compelling weekly payments of help by corporations. It is to be presumed that if the democracy had any expectation of controlling the next legislature they might have hesitated before passing this resolution. Of course, if those employed by corporations ought to be paid weekly so ought those employed by manufacturers, farmers, and indeed by every one who hires labor.

This may be convenient to the employers and employed in some instances, but its effect may not in the end prove beneficial to the bread-winner. Without stopping to consider the expediency of the legislature interfering in relation to contracts between men, or discussing the constitutionality of such enactment, the effect, it is held by economists who have made a study of the question, would be to lower the rate of wages. The man with cash in hand every week with which he can purchase supplies can buy cheaper than upon credit, and consequently can afford to work cheaper. If merchants are not obliged to give credit for their wares, of course prices will be in favor of the workmen who purchase for cash, and if one set of laborers are paid weekly all others will require it. The retail credit system will soon become a thing of the past, and the employers will, as competition in the labor market increases, naturally seek to hire at lower rates.

A mere declaration that corporations should make weekly payments, as is the case for example of the leading railroad corporation in this vicinity, may be well enough for a party declaration, and quite in fashion; but when it takes the shape of a legislative enactment assuming to direct contracts for labor between individuals or a set of men, it is an attempt to determine the price of labor and thus prevent the laborer and the employer from making contracts upon their own terms. This is neither practicable nor desirable. When the legislature begins to interfere with this liberty, the question will arise, which can secure the most favorable legislation, labor or capital; and the probabilities are that no satisfactory enactments can be had which would be acceptable to either element, or long remain upon the statute book.

The president approved the Fitz John Porter bill, on the same day that he vetoed the bill granting a pension to Sally Ann Bradley, mother of four sons, two of whom died on the battlefield and two of whom were in a military hospital, disabled. Porter will go on the pension roll, while Sally Ann Bradley will go to the poor house. And this is the government which says it is dealing generously with its soldiers, and asks them for their votes.

John D. Bridgeman of Hanover, an influential citizen and member of the Grafton county bar, was presented before the police justice of that town on the 25th ult. by Col. Marvin, President of the N. H. The Portland district Methodist camp meeting, Presiding Elder W. S. Jones leader, will open August 19th and continue through the 21st.

C. D. Graham, a cooper of Philadelphia, thirty-three years old, passed safely through the whirlpool at Niagara on the 11th inst., in an oaken cask made by himself, seven feet long, and ballasted to stand on end. It was thirty-three inches in diameter at the bilge, twenty-three inches at the top, and eighteen inches at the bottom, and in it the foolhardy cooper stood upright, slung in a sort of hammock, and holding on to iron handles affixed to the sides. It was entered by a manhole at the top, and then closed from within. The machine was several times tossed end over end in the rapids, but the man was not hurt.

Mrs. James Rooke, a farmer's wife of Bath, Me., thirty-five years old, is held for trial on a charge of attempting to poison the family of James Hill, who owns and lives on an adjoining farm, by putting Paris green into a spring from which they procured water for domestic uses.

Mr. Butler of South Carolina offered in the senate on the 13th inst. a substitute for the river and harbor bill, appropriating $10,000,000 in a lump sum, to be expended under the direction and in the discretion of the president and the secretary of war in continuing necessary river and harbor improvements.

Charles O. Elliott, who owns twenty-five houses at Oak Grove, Malden, Mass., has notified the city that unless a better water supply is furnished he will bring suit against the city for damages. He says that a large number of tenants in his houses have notified him that they are unable to procure a supply of water through the city pipes, and that they must move. This will cause serious loss to him, and he will hold the city responsible for all losses.

should be your crowning glory. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the vitality and color of youth to hair that has become thin and faded; and, where the glands are not decayed or absorbed, will cause a new growth on bald heads.

MAY the youthful color and vigor of the hair be preserved to old age? Read the following, from Mrs. G. Norton, Somerville, Mass.: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past 30 years; and, although I am upwards of 60, my hair is as abundant and glossy to-day as when I was 25."

BE assured, that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor will convince you of its powers. Mrs. M. E. Goff, Leadville, Col., writes: "Two years ago, my hair having almost entirely fallen out, I commenced the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. To-day my hair is 29 inches long, fine, strong, and healthy."

RENEWED and strengthened by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair regains its youthful color and vitality. Rev. H. P. Williamson, Davidson College, Mecklenburg Co., N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the last ten years. It is an excellent preservative."

BY the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, Geo. A. Dadman, Waterloo, Mo., had his hair restored to its original healthy condition. He was nearly bald, and very gray. He writes: "Only four bottles of the Vigor were required to restore my hair to its youthful color and quantity."

USING Ayer's Hair Vigor cures diseases of the scalp. F. H. Foster, Princeton, Ind., writes: "I had been troubled for years with a disease of the scalp; my head was covered with dandruff, and the hair dry and harsh. Ayer's Hair Vigor gave me immediate relief, cleansed the scalp, and rendered the hair soft and pliable."

Terence O'Here, now under arrest in Portland on a charge of murdering his wife, is the man who while on a spree at Old Orchard last year was robbed of a considerable sum of money by a companion, who is now serving a term in the state prison at Thomaston for the crime. Mrs. Rose O'Here was a drunkard as well as her husband, and both have repeatedly been before the courts at Portland, in Dover, N. H., where they once lived, and in other places, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. They always had plenty of money, and spent it freely. Their ostensible occupation was peddling small wares, but it is suspected that their real business was smuggling goods across the Canada line.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

A LITTLE WHALE.

The Dover Democrat of the 13th inst. contained the following:

Mr. David Stevens of Durham, and his son-in-law Mr. George A. Merrill, went out in a boat in Oyster river this morning, when Mr. Murray observed that the water was being disturbed very much by a strange fish which spouted water into the air similar to a whale. Mr. Murray stood up in the boat and struck the fish a powerful blow with his oar, which he repeated three or four times. He succeeded in bringing the fish to shore, and it proved to be a young fin-back whale, weighing seventy-nine pounds. The place where it was captured was at the head of the tide waters. The venerable father of Judge Frost, who is eighty-four years old, saw the captive and said he never saw or heard of whales being in Oyster river before. Hundreds of other people who came to see the captive said the same thing. The fishermen say the mother of the whale must be in Great bay or some place in the vicinity of capture. The young whale is known as a calf. Mr. Merrill brought the prize to town this afternoon, and it proved, to be quite an attraction.

This little whale is probably a specimen of the common dolphin (D. delphis) of the naturalist, generally called "puffing-pig" by sailors. They resemble the porpoise, but are much less in size, and are not unfrequently seen in this harbor, though they rarely venture above Portsmouth bridge.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., July 13th.

Mr. Geo. W. Tuckerman and wife, (formerly Miss Lizzie J. Varney,) of Quincy, Mass., passed the 4th very pleasantly at the home of Mrs. Tuckerman's mother, Mrs. Dorethy Varney of North Kittery.

Mr. Arthur W. Noyes, of Hingham, Mass, accompanied by his little daughter made a flying trip to visit his brother, Mr. Wm. E. Noyes, and his old acquaintances in North Kittery, on Monday afternoon last. Mr. Noyes has not been in town before for twelve years, but says he does not notice much change in the people; the only palpable change was at the navy yard, where everything was as quiet as the city of the dead, and nothing but marines and the janitor of the office building could be found. Shops which once sounded with the merrying of the smith's hammer and the buzz of the saw and lathe were silent, white grass was growing in the once well-trodden road-ways, and the steps of some buildings were overgrown with weeds. But Mr. Noyes feels confident, as does his brother, that the republicans will return to the promised land in '88, and that the present administration was merely an episode.

Mr. Edward E. Shapleigh has finished his course of study at Phillips academy, Exeter, and will be engaged at the Farragut house, Rye beach, during the summer.

Frank E. Donnell having finished his term of apprenticeship as a joiner at the navy yard, has obtained a situation with a builder in Merrimac, Mass.

Dr. Geo. L. Peirce of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been visiting friends here, will return home this week. The doctor came east about two weeks ago to attend the re-union of the class of '61, Bowdoin college, of which he is a member.

SUB ROSA.

AN OLD LINER'S GROWL.

It seems to be asserted that the democratic state convention was a most enthusiastic affair. But how could there have been excessive enthusiasm when according to the report of the committee on credentials more than 500 delegates were present, and more than 100 omitted to vote? Everybody who has ever attended such a convention knows that the fuglers and henchmen arrive on the day previous, and on the night preceding prepare the arrangements, and the claequers are on hand the next day to see that the plans are properly carried out. Whatever cheers may have been uttered by delegates from obscure towns, who think an Andrew Jackson or Frank Pierce is still at the helm, there must not be supposed to be any such feeling about Portsmouth—vide United States navy yard. Besides, the fishermen do not feel very happy over the seizure of their confreres in the waters of the British provinces, without remonstrance; particularly when they know that President Pierce on a similar occasion ordered the North Atlantic squadron to rendezvous at Portsmouth and proceed east to look after their interests. Then too the democratic party has continued to remonstrate for so many years to the use of government vessels for private parties. When James Buchanan was president and the revenue cutter Harriet Lane, against his wishes, took Secretary Howell Cobb's party on an escapade down the Potomac, he was about to pay the expenses out of his own pocket; upon being apprised of which, Cobb very suddenly settled the bills himself. But now we learn of the expedition of a steamer in search of a young lady just returning from Paris with her wedding trousseau; and a delegation of a religious denomination with all their paraphernalia are forwarded to Baltimore at government expense,—albeit the United States constitution does not recognize any religion whatever. Moreover, the democrats are not very much pleased at the retention in the cabinet of Secretary Garland, who is using all his influence to promote the interests of the Pan-Electric company upon the presentation of a large amount of its stock, after they succeeded in ruining the reputation of so many republican politicians engaged in the Credit Mobilier operations. And many object to voting for governor for a man who, however good he may be, has been voting right along for republican members of Congress. All these and many more are reasons why democrats of years standing are not enthusiastic in support of the present administration.

OLD LINER.

Capt. Redford W. Sargent of Kittery, master of the American line steamer Indiana, plying between Philadelphia and Liverpool, was with his two sons sailing on the river in a small boat, Tuesday of this week, and when near the narrows the boat was capsized by a sudden flaw of wind. Fortunately the boat did not sink, and the crew held on to her until they were rescued with no other harm then a thorough wetting.

INSURANCE.

Fire, Life and Accident Insurance Agency.

NOTICE!

The Insurance Copartnership of Morse & Ilsley, on and after July 1st, 1886, is dissolved by mutual consent. After that date the business in all its branches will be continued at the old stand,

No. 13 Pleasant Street, Portsmouth, N. H.,

By the subscriber. My fifteen years' experience as Canvasser, Appraiser, and Adjuster of Insured Property, gives me confidence that I can do as well as any one in securing safety, and justice in case of loss. JOSEPH P. MORSE.

June 25. Insurance Agent and Broker.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records. WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partner-hip under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers.

Constitutional Catarrh.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastening the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind,—one or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored, because but little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the manufacture of his RADICAL CURE has won the hearty approval of thousands. It is instantaneous in affording ease; in all head colds, sneezing, snuffing and obstructed breathing, and rapidly removes the most opprobrious symptoms, clearing the head, sweetening the breath, restores the senses of smell, taste and hearing, and neutralizing the constitutional tendency of the disease towards the lungs, liver and kidneys.

In making a study from life one must use charcoal paper, and your study must be finished without resort to rubbing flat shadows on patches of light and shadow made through any other means than the point. Thus you see your study is drawing at every stage, and you can not resort to tricks or accident. In drawing a head or the anatomy of an arm or leg one is taught by this means not only the use of a point, but he is instructed most accurately in actual movements of the muscles, tendons and bones; thus fixing in the student's mind with more certainty and more lasting effect the values of art lines and physiological construction. It is drawing in the true sense of the word, without any nonsense whatever.

"Student life does not seem expensive. On the contrary, it is proving quite reasonable. We get well-cooked dinners in most quaint and artistic little restaurants for 2 francs—40 cents of our money—and our studios cost us but $8 a month with coffee included, served each morning in our studios. Our school, our tuition, is $12 a month, and so you see one can live well here."—Exchange.

The Dog Did Not Count Seven.

It is one thing to think by resemblances and another thing to think by symbols. A story was recently published by M. Dubuc of a pointer which had learned after a few years that its master went hunting every Sunday, while on the other days he went to business; and M. Dubuc concluded that the animal had learned to count up to seven.

The conclusion is not legitimate; it may even be said to be wrong. The dog distinguished Sunday by some features that were peculiar to it—by the movements about the house, the behavior and Sunday dress of the servants, the dress of the master, or any one or more of a number of things that make Sunday different from other days of the week; but we may say without contradiction that it did not count seven. We, ourselves, if we were restricted to a life absolutely uniform, would not be able to distinguish the seventh day without mnemotechnic aids, and as a rule we seldom recollect the day or the date except by the assistance of intrinsic circumstances.—Popular Science Monthly.

Novelties in the Ice Trade.

An Acquired Taste of Animals.

The taste of animals for prickly comfrey is not natural, but acquired. It takes a horse as long to acquire an appetite for it as it does for a man to like tobacco, olives, or bitter ale.—Chicago Times.

Fish Consumed in Foreign Cities.

An inhabitant of London consumes in a year thirty-two times as much fish as an inhabitant of Berlin; and Paris, with her 2,200,000 inhabitants, consumes more fish than the whole of Germany with a population of 47,000,000.—Inter Ocean.

INVESTMENTS.

I am prepared to furnish the most desirable investments in County Bonds and Guaranteed Farm Mortgages, paying 6 and 7 per cent semi-annually. On Farm Mortgages, only from 25 to 33 per cent of the actual cash value of the property is loaned, and the title, location, quality of land and future prospects of the property are personally looked up. Farm Loans are, when negotiated by experienced and responsible parties, the most profitable security offered, especially for those having small sums to invest from time to time. The Loans I offer are First-Class in every respect. Principal and interest when due, paid here without expense to the holder.

I have these Loans in sums from $300 to $5,000.

Typhoid Fever.

Charles Hartford, of New Castle, Westchester Co., N. Y., suffered with typhoid fever, and was given up to die. He was restored to health in one week by taking five Brandreth Pills every night and drinking plentifully of oatmeal gruel. A few doses of Brandreth's Pills will invariably cure any kind of fever.

The house naval affairs committee on the 14th voted to report a bill providing for one double-bottom cruiser of 6000 tons, two small torpedo boats, and one cruiser of 4000 tons. These will cost $2,500,000. The bill also provides for the completion of the monitors at a cost of $1,000,000.

Whether from swampy land or stagnant pool, or from the deadly gases of city sewers, malarial poisons are the same. Ayer's Ague Cure, taken according to directions, is a warranted specific for malarial disorders.

A conspiracy against the government of Hayti has been discovered.

Bodily health and vigor may be maintained as easily in the heat of summer, as in the winter months, if the blood is purified and vitalized with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Every person who has used this remedy has been greatly benefited. Take it this month.

—Sister Anne—"Now, Ethel, be sure and pray God to make you a good girl." Ethel (praying)—"Dear Dod, pleath twy and make me a dood little dirl, and if at firth you don't thuctheed, why twy, twy again."

Why suffer with backache when a Hop Plaster removes any sort of pain. 25c. At Druggists.

—"Did you ever try a deal in stocks?" asked one Burlington merchant of another. "Yes," was the sad reply, "I have tried a deal too much for my good."

"I enclose 25c., send mother a Hop Plaster. She suffers from weak back. It cured mine."

—Farmer—"This is last night's milk, ladies. You will find it nice and rich." Young lady from the city—"Ugh! Don't drink that! Look at that thick ugly scum on top!"

The action of Carter's Little Liver Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please.

—An old man with white hair came into the Lewiston police station towards dark, Saturday evening, and asked the police if they didn't think that he ought to be locked up. He had been drinking some, and appeared ashamed of it. The police asked him if he couldn't get home, and he said that he could, but that in order to be honest about the matter he had called around to see if they didn't want him. He went home.

Constipation is positively cured by Carter's Little Liver Pills. Not by purging and weakening the bowels, but by regulating and strengthening them. This is done by improving the digestion and stimulating the liver to the proper secretion of bile, when the bowels will perform their customary functions in an easy and natural manner. Purgative pills must be avoided. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Price 25 cents.

—Mr. Ruskin despises a sewing machine, and wants all the girls to make their dresses by hand. Still, it must be borne in mind that this violent reformer has all his clothes made by a tailor—and of all things under the sun, an English tailor at that. Mr. Ruskin, girls, does not make his clothes by hand himself. This is just like a man; just exactly like a man.

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

Modern improvements. Among the many articles put forth in the interest of housekeepers, nothing has become more popular than James Pyle's Pearline. Five years ago it was scarcely known; since then it has found its way to all parts of the country. Its utility is acknowledged by all who try it, and unlike most of the labor-saving compounds, experience has proved Pearline to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate fabrics, and we feel sure that no one will be without it after a fair trial.

Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me by druggist as a preventative to hay fever. Have been using it as directed since the 9th of August and have found it a specific for that much dreaded and loathsome disease. For ten years or more I have been a great sufferer each year, from August 9th till frost, and have tried many alleged remedies for its cure, but Ely's Cream Balm is the only preventative I have ever found. Hay fever sufferers ought to know of its efficacy. F. B. Ainsworth, of F. B. Ainsworth & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

The arbitration committee in the case of Miss Mary E. Cole, the discharged bookkeeper of Martin & French, Dover, decided that the firm were justified in removing her from that position, but as a matter of fair dealing should have given her a place as good as the one she left to become bookkeeper.

PEOPLE WHO ARE STAMMERERS.

A Habit Which May Be Easily Overcome —Why Women Speak Clearly.

A richly-furnished suite of apartments on one of the thoroughfares of the city is devoted to a peculiar purpose. A gilded plate of modest dimensions, on which a name, and nothing more, is inscribed, is among the flaunting signs by the main entrance to the building. Ascending one flight of stairs the visitor's attention will be attracted by the marked care with which the doors leading to the front apartments are curtained. He will understand at once that it is not a private establishment, for the name which appears on the plate below is again inscribed on one of the doors. A reporter was ushered into a small private apartment, where a tall and handsome gentleman in a fashionable spring suit waited on him. In a large parlor connecting with this ante-room by a glass door the conversation was going on. It ran in this way:

"Try once again, please."

"Th-th-the th-th-thr-thrush th-th-things th-th-thweetly in th-th-the th-th-thpwing of th-th-the year."

A young lady was endeavoring to state in plain English that a thrush sings sweetly in the spring of the year.

The place proved to be a private school for teaching persons who lisp, stammer, and stutter to articulate their words distinctly. The instructor consented to explain the secrets of his interesting business. He said that not one in twenty of those who lisp and stammer have any organic or natural defect, and in proof of his assertion he cited the fact that few children commence to stammer before the ages of 5 or 6 years.

"Various causes can be assigned for stuttering, lisping, and stammering," he proceeded. "Fright often causes this result, and sickness, which does not at all affect the vocal organs, produces the same effect through nervous action. Stammering, too, is contagious, and a child whose speech is perfectly distinct will almost certainly become a stammerer if permitted to play and associate with stammerers. The habit is acquired by sympathy."

"Can persons whose habit of stammering and lisping is a matter of long standing be taught to speak distinctly?"

"The habit can be overcome in a very short space of time with training and patient practice where there is no inflammation of the vocal organs."

"Is it not true that many ladies pride themselves on their ability to lisp prettily?"

"In some circles lisping is considered a fashionable and desirable accomplishment. The trouble about lisping is that when a lady has once acquired the habit she can not adopt a new style as she would a new dress. Most young ladies who take lessons in lisping when frolicking with companions of their own age are sorry for it later on, and the habit is not then so easily dropped."

"How do you distinguish between stammerers, stutterers, and lispers?"

"Stammering is simply spasmodic articulation, while the stutterer speaks from an exhausted chest, and is unable to commence speech easily. Both defects arise from a misuse of the vocal organs, sometimes brought about by ignorance and sometimes the result of habit. Lisping consists in giving the sound of th to s and z and some others of the consonants, and is almost invariably an acquired habit. When not accompanied by a serious difficulty in articulation it is surely unnatural and the result of a forced use of nature's organs."

"Are not the facial contortions which frequently manifest themselves when a stutterer tries to speak proofs in themselves that some physical defect exists?"

"Not by any means. These contortions result from a misuse of the respiratory organs. Teach the sufferer by word and example the proper use of these organs and gradually these contortions disappear altogether. I have seen persons who would almost go into spasms on attempting to speak, after careful training for two months converse with perfect composure as easy as you or I. The mechanical part of speech is an unconscious effort. To correct defects in speech it must be made conscious, that is to say, the attention must be concentrated upon the vocal effort and the action of the articulatory organs." The instructor explained that the male stammerers exceed the female in number in the proportion of seven or eight to one, for the reason, he said, that women possess more mobility than men in the organs of speech. A bad stammerer who has no physical defect in the vocal organs, can be taught to speak distinctly in from one to two months. While under instruction, or immediately afterward, he must not be allowed to associate with others who stammer, or with persons who speak very rapidly. Stammering and lisping are more general among wealthy people than among the poor, for some unaccountable reason. Several clergymen who stammer in ordinary conversation, articulate quite distinctly in the pulpit, but only when they read their sermons from manuscript.—New York Mail and Express.

The Dissimilarity of Twins.

Twins, although sometimes ludicrously like in features and characters, are very unlike in other cases; while the child which resembles one parent in bodily features may not resemble it in mental character. Nor have the halves of double monsters always similar dispositions. The Hungarian twin sisters that lived united by the bottom of the back for 22 years had extremely different temperaments, albeit after their deaths their blood vessels were found to com-

The Voice of the People.

The people, as a whole, seldom make mistakes, and the unanimous voice of praise which comes from those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, fully justifies the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine. Indeed, these very claims are based entirely on what the people say Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for them. Read the abundant evidence of its curative powers, and give it a fair, honest trial.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

A Surprised "Reformer."

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Post sends the following to that paper:

One of the auditors of the treasury was curiously deceived in making a recent clerical appointment. He made the requisition upon the civil service commission for four names, and they were promptly certified to him. Two were from New England, one was from Pennsylvania, and the other was a South Carolinian named Pinckney. The latter graded high, and the officer with a chuckle of satisfaction said: "Ah, that is a good old southern name. No doubt a bright young democrat. I will appoint him." Accordingly, Mr. Pinckney was notified of his appointment and presented himself for his commission. But the officer, who expected to see a courtly representative of one of the south's best families, was well-nigh paralyzed when he discovered that Mr. Pinckney was as black as the ace of spades, and so far from being a democrat was an active republican wire-puller. He got his $1000 clerkship all the same, but the auditor will judge less by names when he makes future appointments.

And now Judge Holman, who claims to be the model close-fist of the public money when it does not flow into his district, says that Cleveland has done more to belittle himself and damage the party by the pension vetoes than he, (Holman,) by dint of all his thrift and economy, can undo in two years of congressional parsimony.

The president has issued a proclamation warning all subordinate office-holders against using their political positions in the attempt to control political movements in their localities. It is of course the sheerest buncombe, and capable of just such construction as any one may choose. Some of the democrats are mean enough to suggest that it was to avoid payment of the expected $1000 contribution to the congressional campaign fund that this virtue was assumed.

It is noted as a singular coincidence that the president had a gentle row with Ex-Assistant Sec'y of Treasury Smith, that the latter resigned at the hint of the president, and that a bill designed to benefit the railroad corporation for which Smith had been retained was in a few days afterward vetoed by the president. It is of no use for these democrats to fool with Cleveland.

The United States pension agent in Boston has for some time past been without funds with which to pay pensions, and all payments are consequently withheld. There is a surplus in the treasury, but the pensioners must wait the will and pleasure of a democratic administration before payment.

In the London divorce court Baron H. DeWorms has been granted a divorce from his wife, Baroness Frances DeWorms, née Van Tolesco, their three children being awarded to the father. The baroness, who is of an eminent Austrian family, very beautiful and a leader in London society, hired of Baron Meron his castle in the Tyrol, paying him $100,000 for its use for a few years, and then made frequent long visits there on pretence of ill health, but really to meet Meron. No defence was offered.

Col. William H. Gildef, the Arctic explorer, who was to have sailed from New London, Ct., for the Arctic regions on Wednesday, the 14th inst., was arrested in New York on Tuesday afternoon, the 13th, at the instance of Dolly Adams, a professional swimmer, who charges him with having appropriated a $1000 bond of the Manhattan railroad company, which she entrusted to him in 1883. The colonel admits having borrowed money on the bond from a broker's firm, who had sold it in default of payment. He was ordered to furnish bail in $1500 to appear for trial on the charge of embezzlement.

Peter Brown and William Olsen, two fishermen who were lost from the schooner Lillian Baxter of Gloucester while attending trawls on the 18th of June, were picked up in an exhausted condition after being fifty hours in their dory, by the steamship Gemimi, and landed at Liverpool. INDIGESTION

To strengthen the stomach, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency which result from indigestion, there is nothing so effective as Ayer's Pills. These Pills contain no mineral or other poisonous drug, act directly on the digestive and assimilative organs, and restore health and strength to the entire system. T. P. Bonner, Chester, Pa., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the past 30 years, and am satisfied I should not have been alive to-day, if it had not been for them. They

me of Dyspepsia when all other remedies failed, and their occasional use has kept me in a healthy condition ever since." L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills, for Liver troubles and Indigestion, a good many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action." Richard Norris, Lynn, Mass., writes: "After much suffering, I have been cured of Dyspepsia and Liver troubles

By Using

Ayer's Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken." John Burdett, Troy, Iowa, writes: "For nearly two years my life was rendered miserable by the horrors of Dyspepsia. Medical treatment afforded me only temporary relief, and I became reduced in flesh, and very much debilitated. A friend of mine, who had been similarly afflicted, advised me to try Ayer's Pills. I did so, and with the happiest results. My food soon ceased to distress me, my appetite returned, and I became as strong and well as ever."

PER ORDER COM.

A RULE WITH AN EXCEPTION.

Hereafter all federal officers will not interfere in political management, but leave such operations to those not in the employment of the government. This virtuous order however, it is understood, is capable of some tension. The collector of the port of Portsmouth and the naval officer at Boston will be honorable exceptions to the working of this rule, and these representative democrats will be allowed to make a biennial pilgrimage to Concord to the end that the administration may be properly "endorsed" in the state convention of the democracy.

WHAT WAS HE?

We do not hear of a single delegate from this city who attended the prohibition convention at Concord.—Penny Post, 15th inst.

THE SPRINKLER

Was put in operation on Sagamore road on Wednesday evening of this week, for the first time since its widening. This was a much needed improvement, and will "take the cake" (from the mouths, ears and nostrils) of those who have travelled this popular thoroughfare for the last few weeks.

NAUTICAL FARMER.

The deserved success which attended the production of the Kirmess of last year, proved it to be a very pleasing and popular entertainment. We are glad to announce that the ladies who then contributed to render the affair so attractive, have kindly undertaken its repetition the present season, with, however, a variation of programme in several respects. While a few of the features which characterized the previous entertainment will be retained, a number of novelties will be introduced which cannot fail to attract great interest. We commend the advertisement in another column to the attention of our readers.

The barque Ameer, of Pictou, N. S., now discharging railroad ties at the Concord railroad wharf, was three weeks in loading, three weeks on her passage here, and expects to be a good part of three weeks in discharging. She left in Passebiac, from which place she sailed, a still larger barque loading with ties for this port.

The practice ship Jamestown, Comdr. Horace Elmer commanding, arrived in the lower harbor on the evening of the 14th inst., with a class of naval cadets on board, and exchanged salutes with the navy yard.

The whaleboat yacht Dart, Capt. Thos. H. Eastman, George Pruett chief mate, with Messrs. N. K. Raynes and Lewis Holmes as passengers, started about midnight Thursday night for Annisquam, Mass., to see the yacht race on Saturday, intending afterward to visit Lynn, Salem, and perhaps Boston.

Rear Admiral Reed Werden, U. S. N., on the retired list, who died in Newport, R. I., a few days ago, sailed from this naval station in July, 1862, in command of the U. S. S. Connemaugh. Messrs. John W. Stott, Thomas J. Mitchell, Michael Hurley, Charles Cummings, Frank Plaisted and a boy named Pearson, all then of this city, and a number of men from Great Falls and vicinity, went out as members of the crew of the Connemaugh at that time.

The heavy rain Thursday morning filled the entrance to the sewer at the corner of Vaughan and Hanover streets, causing an overflow of surface water which in consequence of the sewer trap at the corner of Hanover and Bridge streets not being sufficiently large to carry it off, inundated several cellars there. The street commissioner's forces however soon remedied the trouble.

Col. Thomas J. Parsons of Rye, who has been confined to his house for some time past by rheumatism, was in town on the 13th for the first time in several months. The colonel received the congratulations of a number of old friends upon his improved health.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad will be held in this city on Wednesday, August 11th.

It having been stated by a New York newspaper that Amelia Folsom, formerly of this city and a resident on Christian Shore, and subsequently the seventeenth and favorite wife of Brigham Young, and boss of Brigham and his "coop" in general, is a cousin of Mrs. Frankie Cleveland, nee Folsom, the fair Amelia hastens to deny any relationship with the president's bride. This saves Mrs. Cleveland from having to deny it.

C. E. Leach, at the Water street bakery, makes rolls by the Vienna receipt, and they are very nice.

The rain of the 14th and 15th was the first worth mentioning to fall here for seven weeks. It was a godsend to the crops, which were beginning to suffer very badly from the drought. As much more would do no harm.

The lumber yard of H. A. G. & B. F. Milliken, at Old Orchard, caught fire July 13th shortly before noon, presumably from a locomotive. The entire stock of piled lumber, aggregating between 400,000 and 500,000 feet, was completely destroyed, with the exception of a few hundred feet which the workmen managed to save. The yards covered nearly two acres, and at three o'clock they were swept clean. The mill itself fortunately escaped, the distance from the lumber yard and a favorable wind saving it. Loss $5,000; insurance not stated.

J. F. Adams, claim agent of the Fitchburg railroad, was in Biddeford on the 14th inst. to recover property valued at $1000 stolen from the road by Leonard F. Foss, who was arrested in Biddeford last spring. Foss pleaded guilty in a Boston court on the 12th, and was sentenced to five years in the Massachusetts state prison.

Louisa Frances Paire Cavanaugh, widow of the late Delegate Cavanaugh of Montana territory, was married in New York on Monday, July 12th, to General Schuyler Hamilton of that city. Mrs. Hamilton is a daughter of the late Francis A. Allen of Sanford, Me.

The Penny Post speaks of the late Judge Smith of Exeter, father of Ex-Judge Jeremiah Smith, having been a United States senator at the commencement of the present century. Judge Smith was a representative in Congress from October, 1791, and resigned during his fourth term, in July, 1797, to accept the office of United States attorney for this district. He was not a senator.

A large lot of splendid piano and organ boxes must be sold cheap at Montgomery's.

The great success of the grand reduction sale of Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s proves that people really do appreciate good goods at low prices, notwithstanding the assertions of some dealers to the contrary.

The choicest selections of Havana cigars, of recent importations, are for sale at Preston's Drug store. They are packed in twenty-five and fifty boxes, especially for fine trade.

Children's elegant corduroy velvet suits marked down to $5.00 at H. C. Hewitt & Co.'s, 32 Congress street.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

Fire, Life and Accident Insurance Agency.

NOTICE!

The Insurance Copartnership of Morse & Ilsley, on and after July 1st, 1886, is dissolved by mutual consent. After that date the business in all its branches will be continued at the old stand,

No. 13 Pleasant Street, Portsmouth, N. H.,

By the subscriber. My fifteen years' experience as Canvasser, Appraiser, and Adjuster of Insured Property, gives me confidence that I can do as well as any one in securing safety and justice in case of loss. JOSEPH P. MORSE.

June 25. Insurance Agent and Broker.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records.

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and be understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers

A thunder storm on the 14th inst. did damage to the amount of $500,000 in Newark, N. J. Several thunder storms about the same time are reported in other places. In Marion, Ind., hail covered the ground two inches deep, and in the country about 100 buildings were unroofed. Damage thought to be about $75,000.

Modern Improvements. Among the many articles put forth in the interest of housekeepers, nothing has become more popular than James Pyle's Pearline. Five years ago it was scarcely known; since then it has found its way to all parts of the country. Its utility is acknowledged by all who try it, and unlike most of the labor-saving compounds, experience has proved Pearline to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate fabrics, and we feel sure that no one will be without it after a fair trial.

T. F. Mulcahey, D. T. McNamara, J. F. Busche and B. F. Glidden, members of the New Haven typographical union, were put on trial July 15th for conspiring to injure the business of the Journal and Courier of that city by instituting a boycott of that paper.

Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me by druggist as a preventative to hay fever. Have been using it as directed since the 9th of August and have found it a specific for that much dreaded and loathsome disease. For ten years or more I have been a great sufferer each year, from August 9th till frost, and have tried many alleged remedies for its cure, but Ely's Cream Balm is the only preventative I have ever found. Hay fever sufferers ought to know of its efficacy. F. B. Ainsworth, of F. B. Ainsworth & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

GOING LIKE THE BLACK WALNUT.

A Plea for the Redwoods of California—Advice to the Lumbermen.

We have one timber that should be cared for. We can remember when black walnut was hacked down to burn as cordwood. After the groves of that tree had been slaughtered to fry pork came a time that it was so valuable that an individual tree was worth from $100 to $500. It is sliced into veneers, and is so prized by the furniture trade that the process of replanting it is going on in the certainty that lands used in that way are an investment exceeding in value a long-running government bond.

The people of the east are just learning the value of our redwoods. The stumps and roots and trunks furnish some of the finest veneering material that is produced by any North American tree. The time is coming when men will make fortunes quarrying out its stumps, in search of the charming curls which are to ornament the work of the cabinet-maker. But, besides this, the body lumber of a redwood is of great beauty. Polished and varnished, as an inside finish it is scarcely inferior to rosewood in richness, and for use in furniture-frames it very nearly reproduces the beauty and durability of mahogany, with the additional advantage of being much lighter, and, therefore, easier to handle. The great redwood region of Humboldt county and vicinity has not been opened long by the lumbermen. If in the ground beneath it there were gold deposits of richness averaging with our known mines, yet it would be safe to say that there is greater wealth in this timber. It is so free in working that there is no use for which wood is sought that it may not serve. Its durability in exposed situations is one of its marvels. It has been used extensively for posts, pickets, and railroad ties. The latter purpose alone calls for a supply of nearly 1,000,000 annually, equal to over 20,000,000 of feet, board measure. In a recent article in these columns on the Hawaii reciprocity treaty we pointed out the interests of our growing lumber trade with those islands. One sawmill company in Humboldt employ several ships in that trade alone, and besides that outlet the redwood lumber goes to Central and South America.

We have no doubt that this noble redwood tree is destined to go through the same experience as the black walnut, and that in a few years its rich tints and whorls will be prized in all cabinet work and be a valued feature in the inside finish of houses. Of course a large percentage of the body timber will be utilized in less noble ways, but such percentage will also receive additional value by its association with the finer parts of the tree.

It is time for lumbermen to begin culling and saving for these delicate purposes, for fashion once established in the direction of these uses will call rapidly for all that can be supplied. The farmers of Indiana are tearing down their worm fences built of black-walnut rails, and selling the seasoned sticks to the chairmaker for prices that will refence their fields with pine and paint the boards and leave a margin of profit on the operation. It will not be strange if in a few years the pickets and base of many a redwood fence in this state should bring money to help pay off the mortgage on the land it incloses. In the eastern lumber regions there is no such all-around tree as the redwood. It is the superior of black walnut for every use to which that timber is put, and has every excellence which inheres in wood besides. For all these reasons our coast-wise mountain slopes have a treasure in the redwood, which should make the owners of it very firm in their holdings and very conservative in its use, for it is yet to see its highest-priced days.—San Francisco Alta.

The Mountain Peaks of Alaska.

Alaska has the highest mountain peaks of the United States. It has volcanoes and glaciers, and many of these volcanoes are in active order. The glaciers of Alaska are finer than those of the Alps. There is one that extends fifty miles to the sea, and there ends abruptly in a perpendicular ice wall 300 feet high and eight miles broad. Thirty-five miles above Wrangell, on the Stikine river, between two mountains 3,000 feet high, there is a glacier forty miles long and four or five miles across at the base. It is from 500 to 1,000 feet high, and there are other glaciers throughout the territory from which great blocks containing hundreds of tons of ice are constantly breaking off and falling into the sea.—Cor. Cleveland Leader.

A Discovery of More Microbes.

At the recent meeting of the State Medical association of Texas Dr. McLaughlin, of Austin, read a paper, claiming that he had made a remarkable discovery in regard to dengue fever. He claims to have found the microbes of the disease, and from his experiments he believes that the same discoveries are to be made in small-pox, yellow fever, hydrophobia, hog typhus, chicken cholera and Texas cattle fever, all of which can be mitigated or avoided by vaccinating with attenuated virus.—Medical Journal.

Waterproofing Fabrics with Paraffine.

It is found that when paraffine is thoroughly mixed with linseed oil, cast into small blocks and cooled, it may be used to make any fabric, as cloth, felt and leather, waterproof, by rubbing it with such a block and ironing afterwards to equalize the distribution of the material in the pores. If too much is not put on, the material may be made to

—"I left a little check for $10,000 among the wedding gifts," said the girl's father to his prospective son-in-law, "and after the ceremony is over we will quietly tear it up. See? That's the style now-a-days." "Ye-es," hesitated George, "that's the style, but I'm afraid it's too late to tear it up now." "Why?" "Because I went down to the bank and got it cashed."

—"Mollie, I wish you would be a better little girl," said a fond father to his little daughter; "you have no idea how sorry I am that mamma has to scold you always." "Don't worry about it, papa," was the reply of the little angel; "I am not one of those sensitive children. Half the time I don't hear what she says."

—"I see," remarked Brown at the tea table the other evening, "that they propose to subject butter to the microscopic test." "H'm," grunted Fogg, "nothing new about that. I have frequently to use a microscope in order to be certain that I have been helped to butter." If Fogg should be informed by the landlady that his room is wanted, he will probably understand the reason.

—An Englishman called his servant and said: "John, I am tired of life and I am going to throw myself out of the window." "All right, sir," he replied. The master jumped out. Just then a friend popped in. "John, where is your master?" John pointed to the window—"He has just gone out, sir."

The Anti-Saloon Agitation.

The anti-saloon movement which promises so largely to enter into the political canvass of many states raises a colossal doubt in some minds whether the democracy have committed the greatest blunder by tieing to the liquor element, or whether the liquor dealers and manufacturers on the other hand sold out at less than cost when they took charge of the democracy and received what they were sure of having before—the support of the party—and yet agreed to pay the bills of the campaign. The question is likely to become a prominent feature in the future issues between the parties. It is not upon these questions of reform and progress that the democratic party thrives; upon these issues its opponents can always triumph, as the history of the decline and fall of the party shows.

Naval Intelligence.

Pay Inspector Rufus Parks, Paymaster Charles F. Guild, Passed Assistant Paymaster S. R. Calhoun and Passed Assistant Engineer B. C. Gowing are ordered to examination for promotion.

The three Portland fishing schooners seized by the Dominion authorities for taking water on board before entering at the custom house at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, have been released on paying fines of $400 each for the trifling informality. About the time when the American vessels were seized by the provincials on that petty technicality, the masters of the British colonial schooners Thrasher and Dexter Clark, in entering the port of New York with cargoes from St. John, N. B., omitted to place the tonnage of their vessels on their manifests. For this omission a fine of $500 was imposed on each vessel; the fines have been remitted, however, by order of the treasury department.

Congress has been in session over seven months. The democrats have a good working majority in the house of representatives, and still the work is in such a state of neglect that last year's appropriations have twice been extended, the last time to August 1st; and yet it was once maintained that the democracy could govern the country better than could the republicans.

The president has pardoned a bank officer from a penitentiary. Within two days after, two defalcations were discovered in the great west, the land to which the confiding eastern capitalist looks with great expectations of the harvest. The president should know that of bank thieves many have flown and but few been convicted.

A United States district judge in Iowa has re-affirmed the decision of a Kansas judge, to the effect that when a state prohibits the manufacture of beer and liquors it is liable to the owners of breweries and distilleries for the value of their property, on the ground that it is taken or destroyed for public benefit.

Brewer Ehrat has been informed that he can raise the boycott on his beer by paying $100,000. Of course this is blackmail, pure and simple, whether the attempted extortion is practised by individuals or an organization.

Col. John H. George declines to run as the democratic candidate for Congress from the second New Hampshire district.

Forest E. Campbell, whose three years' sentence in the Concord penitentiary for cattle stealing expired on the 16th inst., has been taken to Worcester, Mass., to answer to an indictment for horse stealing pending against him there.

The rain extinguished the fire on Rattlesnake island, Lake Winnipesaukie, after 400 acres has been burned over, causing a loss of $15,000.

Obstructions Removed.

It will be remembered that some time since the board of Mayor and Aldermen, in compliance with the request made in a numerously signed petition, ordered certain obstructions to travel in Sparhawk street removed by a resident in that vicinity who had placed them there without legal authority or right. The matter hung fire some weeks, and was again brought to the notice of the city fathers, who again sent notice to the citizen who had fenced in a portion of one of its regularly accepted streets. No notice was taken of the order sent, and Thursday afternoon the city marshal was directed to detail an officer to accompany the street commissioner and a laborer to the place where the obstructions had been reared and see that the fence was removed. An officer, the street commissioner, and a man with an axe proceeded to lay the fence low, an undertaking which was successfully carried out without difficulty or molestation.—Times.

The Bangor express train due here at four o'clock Friday morning was about an hour late, owing to a slight accident on the Maine Central road. Two extra passenger trains, one bound for Bar Harbor, followed the regular train due here from Boston at 9:30 A. M. on Friday, but which was about three-quarters of an hour late.

The train due in this city from the eastward at three o'clock Friday afternoon did not arrive until quarter past five. The delay was caused by an accident on the Maine Central road near Vassalboro, four cars of one of Forepaugh's circus trains going down an embankment, twenty-five horses being killed and several men hurt. Two men are reported killed.

INDIGESTION

To strengthen the stomach, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency which result from Indigestion, there is nothing so effective as Ayer's Pills. These Pills contain no calomel or other poisonous drug, act directly on the digestive and assimilative organs, and restore health and strength to the entire system. T. P. Bonner, Chester, Pa., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the past 30 years, and am satisfied I should not have been alive to-day, if it had not been for them. They

Richard Norris, Lynn, Mass., writes: "After much suffering, I have been cured of Dyspepsia and Liver troubles

By Using

Ayer's Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken." John Burdett, Troy, Iowa, writes: "For nearly two years my life was rendered miserable by the horrors of Dyspepsia. Medical treatment afforded me only temporary relief, and I became reduced in flesh, and very much debilitated. A friend of mine, who had been similarly afflicted, advised me to try Ayer's Pills. I did so, and with the happiest results. My food soon ceased to distress me, my appetite returned, and I became as strong and well as ever."

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

A MYSTERY YET.

The Penny Post explains the seeming inconsistency of two items in its issue of the 15th inst., in regard to the prohibition convention at Concord, as follows: "Our friend Plaisted, though announced as a vice-president of the convention, wasn't there, neighbor." But our neighbor announced Mr. Plaisted as "a vice-president in the convention," not "of" it; how could he be "in" the convention when he "wasn't there?"

A NUISANCE.

Mr. Editor: I see by your Friday morning's paper that the matter of obstructing the sidewalks of the city by bicycles has been brought up. It is not too soon. The nuisance has become intolerable. In no other city, as far as I am aware, are pedestrians at the mercy of these silent rushing vehicles, most alarming to elderly people and to children, and in the twilight really dangerous. In our town there is certainly no excuse; for the centre of the street, where all wheeled vehicles belong, is not crowded with carriages, and is usually smooth and hard. The small tricycles, ridded by awkward boys, are also annoying, and had not ought to be used in the busy part of the city. It is to be hoped that the mayor will consider the matter seriously, and give protection to

ONE OF MANY PEDESTRIANS.

"AN ADAMLESS EDEN."

An Eden without an Adam—in fact, a Pre-Adamite Eden—skipped gaily into popularity before a vast audience at the Olympic last evening and scored a hit—a palpable hit. A bit, too, to be remembered. Imagine an entire world governed by pretty girls, whose every effort is devoted to the novel agricultural pursuit of raising caramels—a world where wicked, deceitful man has not entered, where all is bliss, and joy, and poetry, frosted cakes and lovely girls, charming music and dainty dances. This is "An Adamless Eden," as it nightly trills its winning lays. Twice within the month have we seen this dainty conceit, this musical morsel, and twice has Chicago fallen upon its knees before the conquering hosts of Eve's bewitching daughters. Tragedy, comedy and minstrelsy have been its opponents this week, but the proud escutcheon of "An Adamless Eden" floats high above the battlements, while its competitors are absolutely wrecked before the trellis of its attractive portals. Girls, girls—well, girls, come often—Chicago is yours, and we salute you.—Chicago Herald.

At Music hall Wednesday evening, July 21st.

MARITIME NOTES.

The practice ship Constellation, Comdr. Huntington commanding, arrived in the lower harbor on the evening of the 14th inst., with a class of naval cadets on board, and exchanged salutes with the navy yard. The Jamestown, with the rest of the cadets, arrived Friday morning, the 16th, and also anchored below.

The French gunboat Talisman, six guns and 150 men, arrived in the lower harbor on Thursday evening, 15th inst., and came to anchor. She is on a cruise, and arrived at Gloucester, Mass., on the 12th, after stopping a week in Boston harbor. Her visit to Gloucester was to take on board two French fishermen, who lost their vessel in a fog on the banks while tending trawls, and were picked up by a Gloucester schooner and taken into that port. She left Gloucester on Thursday at noon, for Portland and Halifax, and put into the lower harbor on account of the weather.

The practice-ship Constellation got under weigh about seven o'clock Friday morning, and sailed from the lower harbor up to the navy yard, where she was berthed alongside the wharf. The practice-ship Jamestown, which arrived Friday morning about eight o'clock, remained at her anchorage in the lower harbor during the day.

The French man-of-war Talisman, Capt. Pinaurd, remained at anchor just below Clark's island through the day Friday.

The sloop yacht Dolphin, owned and sailed by Wm. W. Dixon of Kittery, started at six o'clock Thursday morning for Annisquam, Mass., to enter the races on Saturday. The sloop Tryphosa, of Portsmouth, owned and sailed by Charles S. Drowne, started at midnight Thursday night for the same destination, and on the same errand. Capt. Charles W. Drowne, of the schooner yacht Wm. H. Russell, went around in the Tryphosa. Major David Urch and Mr. Charles W. Humphreys of this city went to Annisquam by rail on Friday, the major intending to join the Tryphosa on her arrival there.

There seems to be some new customs regulation at Dover, as we note by Foster's Democrat that the "schooner John Bracewell cleared on the 14th" for Long Cove, Me., and the schooner David S. Siner also "cleared from here (Dover) for Sullivan, Me." Why these vessels, which doubtless have a coasting license, should need a clearance, is not understood. If the Democrat has confounded a clearance at the custom house with a departure from the wharf, perhaps that may account for the frequent use of the term by the up-river people. Clearances as such are not required for coasting vessels going from a port while in ballast, and if they are cleared an oath is taken by the master or some person in charge or command of the vessel in relation to the manifest of the cargo and the value of the same. But perhaps the Dover vessels, now that fees are abolished, like to have a clearance, and for ought we know the collector of the port may have appointed Brother Foster to act as deputy at Dover, though from what we have read in his paper we have supposed that an office under this administration was just exactly what the incorruptible Foster would not be induced to accept.

The programme of races at Annisquam includes three events, namely, for all yachts measuring from twenty to twenty-eight feet on the waterline, first prize a silver yacht valued at $300, second a silver cup valued at $50, third a silver cup valued at $25; for all yachts under twenty feet on the waterline, three cups as prizes, valued at $75, $40 and $20 respectively; dory race one mile, open to all, first prize $10, second prize $5.00.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records.

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers

The Way to Become Gentlemanly.

Lord Lytton tells the story of a groom married to a rich lady and in constant trepidation of being ridiculed by the guests in his new home. An Oxford clergyman gave him this advice: "Wear a black coat and hold your tongue." The groom was soon considered the most gentlemanly person in the county. —The Argonaut.

Several Stories About Somnambulists.

Dr. Haycock, the eminent Oxford divine, would often rise from his bed at night, give out his text, and, while sound asleep deliver an excellent sermon upon it. He was frequently watched, but no amount of tugging, pulling or pinching ever succeed in rousing him. Dr. Macnish, of Edinburgh, gives an account of an Irish gentleman who swam more than two miles down a river, got ashore, and was subsequently discovered sleeping by the roadside altogether unconscious of the extraordinary feat he had accomplished. Dr. Pritchard had a patient who was particularly fond of horse exercise, and used to rise at night, find his way to the stable, saddle his horse, enjoy a gallop, and finally come back knocking at his own door in a somnambulist condition. He was cured in a manner sufficiently funny to be worth recording—his servants tickled the soles of his feet.

The memory of sleep-walkers is occasionally prodigious, under the influence of the dominating impulse that moves them. Moritz gives an instance of a poor and illiterate basket maker, who was unable to read or write; yet in a state of sleepy vigil he would preach fluent sermons, which were afterward recognized as having formed portions of discourses he was accustomed to hear in the parish church as a child more than forty years ago.

Quite as strange a case of unconscious memory is referred to by the eminent Dr. Ambercrombie. A young girl given to sleep-talking was in the habit of imitating the violin with her lips, giving the preliminary tuning and scraping and flourishing with the utmost fidelity. It puzzled the physician a good deal until he ascertained that when an infant the girl lived in a room adjoining a fiddler, who often played upon this instrument in her hearing. On the other hand, it must be admitted that somnambulists occasionally do very foolish things and make odd mistakes. A young man—of whom Petrus writes—used to get up in his sleep, climb on his castle battlements, seat himself astride them and then spur the wall, under the impression that he was mounted on his steed.—London Post.

A Cemetery in North Carolina.

In a graveyard at Greensboro, N. C., the married women are buried in one square, the married men in another, in still another square the maiden ladies, while together rest the unmarried men. Then in two other squares are found on one side the boys and on the other the girls. At the head of each grave is a plain, white marble slab, and the same care and attention are given to each.—Chicago Times.

A Deluded People.

From the Ohio Medical Record.

We do not mean to intimate that all the so-called remedies for dyspepsia are valueless, but human credulity is so strong, that some unscrupulous persons trade upon the fears of the weak and debilitated. Among the things which appeal so strongly to this weakness are Bitters. The very name is in their favor. The mode of life of the average American is of such a character, that he is constantly in need of a tonic. He is rushed at his business, swallows his meal hastily and without any thought as to the capacity of his stomach for digestion, takes little rest, and necessarily feels blipped; is subject to headache, and takes often a gloomy view of things generally. In extremity he resorts to bitters, under the delusion that they will act on the secretions of the stomach and give the system new strength and energy. The writer recently purchased samples of four of the most widely advertised bitters in the market, and the simple chemical analysis to which they were subjected showed that they contained about 30 per cent. (the amount the Government allows) of the most poisonous and adulterated alcohol, and that the remainder consisted of various foreign substances, which were simply added as flavoring extracts, to disguise the taste of the original ingredient. The writer recently purchased bitters are supposed to have is of a purely fictitious character. In fact, in time they irritate and injure the delicate membranes of the stomach, so vitiate the taste that the palate soon cannot distinguish between good and bad. These decoctions are consumed principally by the debilitated, the nervous, the depressed and particularly by aged people and weak women and others to whom a stimulant is indispensable. Now, while alcohol, especially in the form of whiskey, is acknowledged to be the best known stimulant, and is prescribed and used by physicians for this purpose everywhere, we can't conceive why people will insist upon taking the alcohol in the form of a decoction, the compounding of which they know nothing about, as shown by analysis, contains fusel oil, vitriol, catechu and poisons of the most deadly kind. It would be far better for them to come out boldly and use the pure article, something made from malt in which there is no fusel oil. There may be a little difficulty in obtaining an article of this kind, as there is only one firm in the country (and the discoverers of Duffy's pure malt whiskey, which distills it and which combines food and stimulating qualities.

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

McLaughlin, who had basely deserted his wife, died recently, confessing in his last moments that he was the author of the terrible crime for which Hollar was murdered by the mob.

Cholera has gained a strong foothold in eastern Italy, and the rapid spread indicates an old-fashioned epidemic. It is so virulent as to create the impression that it is the genuine Asiatic type. This is the third consecutive season that cholera has ravaged southern Europe. May we not expect a visitation?

Sixteen persons, including four children, were killed in St. Petersburg on the 15th inst. by the explosion of an old shell purchased of the government by an iron dealer, and supposed to be unloaded. Several other persons were injured.

It is well known that the inhabitants of many Eastern nations shield themselves against infectious disorders by wearing Aromatic Gums on the pit of the stomach. Their instincts are right, for strong permanent odors are antagonistic to the living germs which cause disease. For this reason Allcock's Porous Plasters, being composed of fragrant aromatic gums, are the best safeguard to wear on the pit of the stomach in cholera time, or in localities where sewer gas and malaria are found. They not only prevent infection, but will cure diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera and bowel complaints.

Two cases of yellow fever were removed to the quarantine hospital, Boston harbor, Friday morning, from the forecastle of the brig Carrie Purrington. The vessel had visited the ports of Ponce and Miragoane, Porto Rico. The first case made its appearance when three days out, and the second when eight days out. The brig is detained at quarantine for fumigation and general cleaning.

BENTON'S HAIR GROWER.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp; should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHTY PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow Hair in 90 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.

Unlike other preparations, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.

It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.

AN OLD-TIME SCHOOLMASTER.

Rewards of Merit Which His Pupils Received—Marked With an O.

A hundred and fifty years ago, among the German settlers of Pennsylvania, there was a remarkable old schoolmaster, whose name was Christopher Dock. For three days he taught school at a little place called Skippack, and then for the next three days he taught at Salford.

Whenever one of his younger scholars succeeding in learning his A, B, C, the good Christopher Dock required the father of his pupil to give his son a penny, and also asked his mother to cook two eggs for him as a treat in honor of his diligence. To poor children in a new country these were fine rewards. At various other points in his progress, an industrious child in one of Dock's schools received a penny from his father and two eggs cooked by his mother. All this time he was not counted a member of the school, but only as on probation. The day on which a boy or girl began to read was the great day. If the pupil had been diligent in spelling, the master, on the morning after the first reading day, would give a ticket carefully written or illuminated with his own hand. This read: "Industrious—one penny." This showed that the scholar was now really received into the school.

There were no clocks or watches; the children came to school one after another, taking their places near the master, who sat writing. They spent their time reading out of the Testament until all were there. But every one who succeeded in reading his verse without a mistake stopped reading and came and sat at the writing table to write. The poor fellow who remained last on the bench was called a lazy scholar.

The funniest of Dock's rewards was that which he gave to those who made no mistake in their lessons. He marked a large O with chalk on the hand of the perfect scholar. Fancy what a time the boys and girls must have had trying to go home without rubbing out this O!—St. Nicholas.

Thatched Roofs in Central America.

Most of the houses have thatched roofs, as indeed do generally all habitations in this region. For this nature has made a bountiful provision in a species of tall, hard sand grass that grows in large bunches almost everywhere. During the dry season it becomes very ripe and dry and can then be burned.

It seems to be cultivated in some places, but its use is the same as the indigenous plant. It is cut off close to the round hillock on which its great body of roots always rise above the ground—is bound into bundles of about three inches in diameter, and is then placed on the bamboo poles that are tied with strings transversely to the rafters—the bundles are in like manner tied to the poles, and when well done the roof will last eight years without a leak even in the fierce torrents which often burst from the clouds. One would suppose there would be danger from fire among such closely lying rows of roofs, as dry and inflammable as lint or tow, but no such casualty is ever spoken of by the people, and nowhere have I seen the sign of a burned building.—Guatemala Cor. Kansas City Journal.

Pollution of Wells in New York.

As Professor Walker has shown in several published statements, and notably in an article contributed to The Century magazine, the geological formation of Manhattan island is of such a character that sewage and other objectionable surface accumulations make their way downward, even to the sources from which the deepest artesian wells take their supply. Even at the depth of 2,000 feet the water is contaminated. London and Paris are in geological basins, and deep artesian wells in those cities do not encounter deposits of water polluted by soakage from the settlements above. A well 2,000 or 3,000 feet deep in Paris supplies water that entered the ground at points many miles from the city. But water that comes from such a well in New York began its downward journey, in all probability, from the polluted surface in the vicinity of the well's mouth, or from some point within the city limits.—New York Times.

The Mexican and the Yankee Plows.

The plow generally in use in Mexico is a crooked stick, with sometimes an iron point. American plows are beginning to be introduced to a considerable extent, but the Mexican peasant on coming into possession of one generally cuts off one handle, in order to make it conform, as far as can be, to his ancient implement. A bundle of brush constitutes the harrow. "Their hoes are heavy grubhoes, and grass is cut by digging it up with such a hoe."—David A. Wells.

How Fish Scratch Themselves.

Professor S. Lockwood, in an article on "Scratching" in the current number of The Popular Science Monthly, goodnaturedly describes the processes by which insects and animals scratch themselves to relieve a local itching. He tells us that even fishes scratch themselves

A man named Silvanus Green has been arrested at Milford, Mass., for shooting a young man named Butler, who had been swimming in a pond close by Green's house. Green ordered Butler to come out. When he refused to do so Green fired a load of shot at him, riddling the boy's body. He was taken to a doctor's, but nothing could be done for him. It is doubtful if he recovers.

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint, then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. Only one pill a dose.

Barto O'Donald, an inmate of the Massachusetts state prison, has died in the hospital from cancer. He was sentenced at Worcester in 1869, for life, being convicted of murder in the second degree in causing the death of a girl whom he shot, supposing she was stealing vegetables from his garden. Deceased was seventy-seven years old.

Why is It

That the sale of Hood's Sarsaparilla continues at such a rapidly increasing rate? Send to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., for book containing many statements of cures.

Senator Payne's Case.

In regard to the election of Senator Payne of Ohio, the result reached by the committee seems to be that the manner in which the senator's election was achieved was doubtless bad enough, but the managers did their work so well that there is nothing to which the senate can "catch on" which will convince the extenders of the courtesy of the senate that Payne himself bribed any one. The doctrine of quid facit per alios seems not to be the law of the senators. It is possible that some of these grave and revered seignours may have had a hard time in pulling through themselves.

Democratic Opinion.

This is the way the democratic Manchester Union talks about the present "democratic house:"

It is just as natural for the present house to degenerate into a disgusting row as it is for a dog to bark or a grasshopper to jump, and therefore the exhibition yesterday between two congressmen was the natural outgrowth of this good-for-nothing, do-nothing body. It is a disgrace to the country, and has been from the time it assembled down to this time.

We are rather inclined to think we should like to see General Butler back in Congress. He is cranky at times, to be sure, but he is one of the brainiest men in the country, and Congress is more in want of that commodity than any body of men that ever got together on earth. So by all means let Butler go back with a rousing majority.

The annual report of the State Bank Commissioners is just out, and contains interesting figures. The earnings of all the savings banks for the year ending December 31, 1885, was $3,029,925.73, or a little over 6 1-2 per cent of the deposits, or six per cent nearly, on the book value of the assets. The expenses for the same date aggregate $144,847.56, or about one-third of one per cent. INDIGESTION

To strengthen the stomach, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency which result from indigestion, there is nothing so effective as Ayer's Pills. These Pills contain no calomel or other poisonous drug, act directly on the digestive and assimilative organs, and restore health and strength to the entire system. T. P. Bonner, Chester, Pa., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the past 30 years, and am satisfied I should not have been alive to-day, if it had not been for them. They

me of Dyspepsia when all other remedies failed, and their occasional use has kept me in a healthy condition ever since." L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills, for Liver troubles and Indigestion, a good many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action." Richard Norris, Lynn, Mass., writes: "After much suffering, I have been cured of Dyspepsia and Liver troubles

By Using

Ayer's Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken." John Burdett, Troy, Iowa, writes: "For nearly two years my life was rendered miserable by the horrors of Dyspepsia. Medical treatment afforded me only temporary relief, and I became reduced in flesh, and very much debilitated. A friend of mine, who had been similarly afflicted, advised me to try Ayer's Pills. I did so, and with the happiest results. My food soon ceased to distress me, my appetite returned, and I became as strong and well as ever."

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. RUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PERLE, Salem, Mass.

For New England to-day:—

Light local rains, nearly stationary temperature.

Cloudy.

WHAT SCHOOL?

The Penny Post, as answer to our query as to how Mr. Wm. A. Plaisted could be "a vice-president in the prohibition convention" when he "wasn't there," says:

Whatever there may be in the Chronicle skull, there can be no question of its great thickness.

Does the Concord School of Philosophy teach that the proper course for an editor is to commence throwing mud when he finds himself hopelessly cornered?

SIDEWALK BICYCLING.

We are informed by the president of the Rockingham bicycle club that the club has a rule forbidding its members wheeling on the sidewalks in the city, and the officers have at the commencement of the wheeling seasons requested the assistance of the police in enforcing the law. The roadbeds of our streets as a rule are preferable to the sidewalks, and if wheelmen not members of the club, and the riders of the small velocipedes, make use of the sidewalks, it is the duty of the police to enforce the law, and the members of the club will willingly aid them in keeping the bicycles of all sizes on the carriage-way, where they belong.

THE ANNISQUAM REGATTA.

The Annisquam regatta for the Forbes prizes was sailed Saturday, with a fine breeze from the start, the wind at the finish being so strong that most of the boats came in with topmasts housed. In the first class fifteen boats crossed the starting line, named as follows:

Atalanta, Black Cloud, Ione, Silver Cloud, Tyrant, White Wings, Tryphosa, Petrel, Kittiwake, Venus, Thisbe, Louette, Lottie, Daisy and Good Luck.

The Atalanta took first prize, in 2:52:31 corrected time; the Black Cloud second, in 2:55:32; and the Lottie third, in 2:56:45. The Tryphosa was fifth over the course, actual time of sailing, but was given seventh place under time allowance; her sailing time was 3:12:20, corrected time 3:06:05.

In the second class the following-named yachts were entered: Spark, Puritan, Osceola, Victor, Lark, Ida Belle, Lochiel, Mona, Dolphin, Stranger, Eurymone, Sassacus and Alpine. Nearly all the yachts crossed the line together, and nine of them, namely, the Victor, Sassacus, Osceola, Alpine, Spark, Dolphin, Lark, Lochiel and Stranger kept on to the finish, the winners being the Victor, Sassacus and Osceola, in 2:58:58, 3:10:17 and 3:12:25 corrected time; the Dolphin was third in actual sailing time, going over the course in 3:37:45, but was given the sixth place by time allowance, her corrected time being 3:21:35.

It appears that the Tryphosa beat the Dolphin twenty-five minutes and twenty-five seconds actual time, and fifteen minutes and thirty seconds corrected time.

"AN ADAMLESS EDEN."

Lilly Clay's "An Adamless Eden" company inaugurated a week's engagement at the Olympic Monday to the biggest kind of a house. Like the other "Adamless" party seen here a short time ago, this one is composed entirely of ladies, and they give a far better entertainment than their predecessors. Nearly all the members are talented either vocally or instrumentally. The entertainment opened with a musical soiree. Then came "An Adamless Eden" which was presented by the entire company. The girls are younger, and ever-so-much better looking than those of the other party. The piece was received with great favor by every one. The same bill was given every night, at the usual matinees and at a special matinee Thanksgiving day to tremendous business, and arrangements have been closed for the immediate return of the entire company.—Chicago World.

At Music hall next Wednesday evening. See advertisement.

MARITIME NOTES.

The French sloop-of-war Talisman sailed from the lower harbor Friday evening, for Portland and Halifax.

The practice ship Jamestown came up to the navy yard from the lower harbor on Saturday morning. She and the Constellation will remain here about two weeks, it is said.

The steamer Mystic did not make her usual Sunday trip to the Shoals with the mails and Sunday papers on the 18th inst., on account of the thick fog which prevailed. She found remunerative employment during the day plying between the navy yard and this city, transporting cadets from the naval practice ships across the river both ways.

The steamer Pinafore, Capt. Hart, came in from Appledore island, Isles of Shoals, on Sunday, after fresh milk, mails and papers, and went out again after a brief stop.

All the letting boats on the river were in use on Sunday; not one was to be had for love or money. Sunday afternoon, though the Whale's-back fog-horn was sounding steadily right along.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

Friday morning about half-past four o'clock Forepaugh's stock and wagon train, bound from Augusta to Waterville, Me., met with a serious accident near Hall's woods, one mile above the station of Riverside in Vasselboro', by the breaking of an axle on the forward truck of a car. Four cars left the track, and were piled up and badly wrecked. They were filled with heavy team and band horses—twenty in a car. The shock threw the animals down and crushed them among the debris. Edward S. Longley of Philadelphia, poleman, and John Murray of Waterville, a Maine Central brakeman, were on the car with the broken axle. Longley jumped to the ground, and was thrown to the earth and pinned beneath the car, where he lay for half an hour and gave up all hopes of life, but was finally rescued, and will recover. Murray escaped by running back to the cars in the rear. A wrecking train from Waterville soon arrived, and the blockade on the track was raised in seven hours. Twenty-seven horses were killed, and twenty-three others injured. The horses were valued at from $200 to $400 each. Five cars worth $900 each were smashed, forty sets of double harnesses were cut and destroyed, and wagons and chariots were banged against each other, damaging them much. Forepaugh places his loss at $15,000, and had no insurance. He holds the railroad responsible, it is said, though how he can come upon the railroad for damages if it was an axle of one of his own cars which broke, we cannot see.

A telegram was received in this city early Sunday afternoon to the effect that two and a half miles of the track of the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, between Kennebunk and Wells crossing, was disabled and needed relaying, no cause being assigned for the trouble. A wrecking train from Salem, Mass., arrived here shortly after five o'clock, with Mr. Bissell, master of maintenance of way, and Roadmaster Stevens, on board, and took on here all the railroad hands that could be mustered. A similar train was sent from Portland to the other end of the break.

T. Pablowitch, a seaman of the schooner Furman L. Mulford, charged with desertion from his vessel, was on Saturday brought before Charles E. Batchelder, justice of the peace, and was by him committed to Portsmouth jail until the vessel is ready to sail, then to be delivered to the captain.

L. H. Fisher, B. D., of College Hill, preached at the Universalist church on Sunday morning for the third time. The sermon was one of power and was well delivered. After the service a church meeting was called, Col. D. J. Vaughan acting as moderator. Remarks were made expressing confidence in Mr. Fisher, and a vote was taken, the result showing that it was the unanimous wish of the meeting that the society should extend a call to Mr. Fisher to become its pastor. Mr. Fisher is a nephew of the late Rev. Dr. Fisher, whose memory is cherished throughout the Universalist denomination. Mr. Fisher is a graduate of Tuft's Divinity school, class of '86. He has received two calls during the past week, one from Plymouth, N. H., and one from Lockport, N. Y. It is probable that Mr. Fisher will accept the call of the Portsmouth parish.

The north pond was full of water Sunday, but its odor was powerful. Hurry up the connection of the breweries with the big sewer, gentlemen of the city government.

Rev. Silas Ilsley, formerly pastor of the Middle street church in this city, recently died in New York state.

We notice that the Manchester Gas Co. propose establishing electric lights in their city in connection with their other plant. We are also informed that the Portsmouth Gas Co. have since last January had in contemplation a similar movement, but as yet have not been able to find the electric power suitable to perfect their plan. With the late improvements made in this direction it is hoped they will soon be able to carry out this project.

The St. John's and Christ church Sunday schools have their annual picnic at Bay View grove, Stratham, on Tuesday, leaving the railroad station by the 7:55 A. M. train, and returning by the evening train. The Sunday school of the Court street Christian church have their picnic at the same place on Wednesday.

Mr. Leonard Smith, an old resident of Newmarket, who removed to Ansonia, Conn., about a year ago, to reside with his son, died recently at the age of seventy-eight years.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records. WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partner-ship under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests. W. N. ILSLEY, W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and be understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers

A Friend in Need.

With what alacrity SANFORD'S GINGER responds to the cry of distress. No cramp or pain has ever made a demand upon it for relief or cure that has not met with instant response.

It is a delicious combination of imported Ginger, Choice Aromatics, and French Brandy, totally unlike and vastly superior to all other "gingers," pain cures and sweetening nostrums.

Unripe fruit, impure water, unhealthy climate, unwholesome food, Malaria, Epidemic and Contagious diseases, Cholera Morbus, Cramps, Pains, Indigestion, Colds, Chills, Simple Fevers, Exhaustion, Nervousness and Loss of Sleep, that beset the traveller or household at this season, are nothing to those protected by SANFORD'S GINGER.

Avoid cheap and dangerous imitations sold to be "the same," or "as good," or "better" than

SANFORD'S GINGER.

Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Dealers.

Law Practice North and South.

Several years ago I asked Roger A. Pryor, who had been a fire-eater in congress before the war, what difference he saw between the practice and knowledge of law in the north and in the south. He had moved to New York and was a competitor of northern lawyers. He replied that they read more law in the south in little country offices than the big lawyers in the large cities did, but, said he: "In this northern region they have a very extraordinary power to assemble facts and overwhelm with evidence in order to carry their cases. They do not argue upon the law points, but beat you down their witnesses and their facts."—"Gath's" Enquirer Letter.

The Thickness of the Earth's Crust.

The thickness of the earth's crust is believed by Monsieur Faye, the French geologist, to be greater under oceans than beneath continents, because the earth's heat has always radiated more freely there.—Arkansaw Traveler.

What He Thought of Rome.

A Chicago man who has recently returned from Europe, was asked what he thought of Rome, "Well," he replied, "Rome is a fair-sized town, but I couldn't help but think when I was there that she had seen her best days."—New York Sun.

Whale Fisheries of the Pacific.

Whale fisheries are established all along the coast of Oregon and California, and numbers of whales are taken in their migrations down the coast, while whales have been taken up north with harpoons in them belonging to San Diego and Monterey whalers.

Col. T. E. O. Marvin, state agent of the New Hampshire Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, last week made an inspection of the horses used in the brick-yards between Dover and Dover point. A number of thin and galled horses were found in use, and the disabled animals were relieved from work and put under proper remedial treatment. The Dover Democrat, commenting on Col. Marvin's work, says: "It is high time that the abused and neglected animals who tread the weary rounds of brickyard mills should have some protection from the avarice and cruelty of their merciless task-masters."

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

During a thunder shower Sunday afternoon lightning struck a barn of Gerry H. Miller at Epping, and that barn and another, with twenty tons of hay, and a horse and cow, were burned; loss $2000, insurance $300.

South Berwick, Me., although in the diocese of Portland, was a part of the Catholic parish of Salmon Falls, N. H., which is in the diocese of Manchester, until July 17th, when Bishop Healy of Portland created South Berwick a parish, and appointed Rev. Father Walsh of Bangor to the parish. Steps will be soon taken to build a church there.

The question whether Rev. George W. Bicknell, formerly settled over the Universalist church in this city, but for the past seven years pastor of the First Universalist church of Lowell, Mass., would accept the call extended to him by the First Universalist church of Malden, was definitely settled last Sunday forenoon at the close of service by Mr. Bicknell announcing that after mature deliberation he had decided to decline the call. This decision meets with the decided approbation of all of Mr. Bicknell's parishioners, and was undoubtedly brought about by the unanimous wish that he remain, expressed at a church meeting the previous Sunday.

It is well known that the inhabitants of many Eastern nations shield themselves against infectious disorders by wearing Aromatic Gums on the pit of the stomach. Their instincts are right, for strong permanent odors are antagonistic to the living germs which cause disease. For this reason Allcock's Porous Plasters, being composed of fragrant aromatic gums, are the best safeguard to wear on the pit of the stomach in cholera time, or in localities where sewer gas and malaria are found. They not only prevent infection, but will cure diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera and bowel complaints.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the said firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records.

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partner-hip under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers

LETTING A "GO-DEVIL" DROP.

The well we saw shot was charged with 200 pounds of nitro-glycerine. When all the tubes were down the premises were cleared. The expert picked up his apparatus, loaded them in his wagon, and drove away. All the spectators who had ventured close about to see the process withdrew to the highway and got into eligible sighting positions 200 yards off and to the windward of the well, the men in charge assuring them the thing to get out of the way of was the oil in the well, which, being thrown to a great height, would be carried in spray a long distance by the wind.

Then a workman brought out the "go-devil" and called for a volunteer from the spectators to come and drop it. The "go-devil" is the weight that, dropped in the well explodes the charge. It is a rude casting about a foot long and weighing about twelve pounds. It is a four-winged messenger, the center being about an inch in diameter, from which four wings about an inch and a half broad and a quarter of an inch thick project, the whole being brought to a point at the downward extremity. The wings carry it straight to the mark, and the point strikes the plate of the uppermost tube down in the well. The man stood over the mouth of the well holding this destroyer when he called out: "Does anyone want to drop it?" The expert said there would be plenty of time to get away. The correspondent, desirous of seeing how it was all done, climbed down from his perch on the fence and started for the well. "Don't be excited," said the expert, "you'll have time enough to get back here before it strikes." The platform about the well was oily and slippery, so that the retreat would have to be entered upon with caution in order to avoid slipping down.

The man at the well handed the correspondent the "go-devil." "Lower it well down in the iron casing," he said, "before you drop it, so there will be no mistake about it. There will be plenty of time to get away." The correspondent clutched the casting with his fingers between the four wings and did as he was told to do. Then he looked around to get the bearings for his feet. "All ready," said the man at the well. "Don't stumble over that timber when you start." Drop went the go-devil, and away went the correspondent. He leaped over the timber, skipped the gutter near the well, and made for the highway with the go-devil ringing in his ears as it sped down through the iron casing on its errand of destruction. The man who remained last at the hole walked deliberately off in another direction. The correspondent had time to recover his sight-seeing position when the sharp crack of the guncaps 1,400 feet down in the earth was heard. There were ten seconds of silent suspense, and then a grand spectacle was seen.

First a roar was heard, and this was followed at once by the belching forth of a column of greenish liquid, which rose to the top of the derrick, broke into spray, and filled the air. Next followed a column of black smoke and liquid, roaring out of the hole like the escape of steam from a locomotive's safety valve. A fire of stones followed this, cracking among the timbers of the derrick and falling about. The wind carried the liquid away from the spectators, and the stones thrown straight from the mouth of the well, fell back, harming no one. The belching lasted perhaps half a minute, and then all was quiet. The eight quarts of nitro-glycerine had done its work. It had lifted first a column of crude oil 1,400 feet deep from the bottom of the well, had broken the black sand-rock in which the petroleum is found, and had thrown the fragments up from a depth of 1,400 feet. The grass and ground for an acre round was covered with a dirty, greenish slime, in which the spectators had to tread in order to inspect the results. Out of the well's mouth inflammable gas was pouring at a rate that would make a stockholder of the Consolidated company turn green with avarice to behold it. If a match had been applied disastrous results would have followed.

The "go-devil" Bits of it not bigger than one's thumb were picked up and brought away as momentos.—Bradford Cor. New York Post.

Prayer Machine in a Buddhist Convent.

Some 1,300 years ago the business manager of a wholesale prayer firm in the Buddhist convent of Ganga-Nor conceived the brilliant idea of addressing his communications to the eyes, as well as the ears, of the patron saint, and constructed a prayer-machine, which, in default of a protective patent, soon acquired a remarkable popularity. The prayers, written on minute strips of parchment, and preceded by a movable address, were pasted on a large cylinder revolving like a peanut roaster, and enabling the manipulator to offer up caligraphic prayers at any desired saint at the rate of 650 dozen a minute. The drop in wholesale quotations was unprecedented in the history of the stock market.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald.

Proper Food for Nervous People.

We so often have to care for nervous persons that it is well to know the sort of food best adapted to them. This, with systematic exercise and recreation, will often produce results beyond our most sanguine hopes. In taking exercise care must be taken not to fatigue the patient, and there must be an object in the exercise. It will not do to send the sufferer "just out for a walk;" the walk must be for a purpose; to call on a

He Must Have a "Commission."

The Baltimore Sun publishes an "authorized interview" with Secretary Bayard, which shows that he still regards a commission as the only solution of the fishery troubles, and is determined, as in the past, to give the Canadians and the British minister all the aid in his power toward forcing his and their pet scheme down the unwilling throat of the American people.

After reviewing the history of the fishery treaty Secretary Bayard said that the republican party retired from power without attempting to protect the American fishermen. As soon as the present administration came into power the New England fishermen or their representatives poured into Washington with appeals for protection for their fishing interests. As secretary of the state, he communicated the situation to the senate and proposed the appointment of a commission to arbitrate on the subject. This proposition the republican senate refused to consider, and ignored it. The appeals of the American fishermen were so loud and long that Mr. Bayard, after consultation with the British minister, secured a concession from the Canadian authorities, under which the American fishermen were permitted to finish their fishing season undisturbed until the spring of the present year. This whole controversy might have been avoided had the senate acted upon the suggestion of the state department and consented to frame a treaty bearing upon the fisheries question.

"After consultation with the British minister,"—just so. But the American fishermen do not consider the British minister their especial patron and protector, whatever Mr. Bayard may think of him. If there is any one thing the fishermen and people of the United States do not want, and have repeatedly expressed their objection to, it is this "commission" which Mr. Bayard and the British minister are determined they shall have. One such commission was tried, and the Canadians openly boast that by it they chiselled the Yankees out of five and a half million dollars, besides getting much more than an even thing in the fishing exchange; and by the aid of Mr. Bayard they confidently expect to force the appointment of another. What the fishermen ask is that existing means of protection be exercised by our government in their favor; but to this request Mr. Bayard answers, "Oh! you don't want the protection of existing laws. What you want is another fishery commission. British Minister West and I have agreed upon that, and you'll have to come to it at last, whether you like it or not."

Col. George's Declination.

Hon. John H. George, a time-honored democrat, and a bosom friend of the late Franklin Pierce, having for four campaigns been the democratic candidate for Congress in his district, now declines the fifth nomination because he does not wish the wear and tear and expense of a useless contest. In his letter the colonel refers to his continued faith in democratic principles, so many of which have from time to time been abandoned by the party. He fails to see that to keep any vitality in the democracy new recruits from republican defections and new blood from previously unrecognized sources, have been needed. The colonel would plod on in the old track, and assume to disregard members of his party converted from opposing views. The letter of declination is simply a notice that the colonel throws up the sponge, and in the councils of his party has taken a back seat. The communication pays considerable attention to a lick at Mr. Blaine, but lacks that commendatory allusion to the president which at this time might have been expected to have emanated from such a distinguished democrat of the Granite State as the declining colonel has long been reckoned.

Steamers Ashore.

The coal steamer Panther, bound from Boston for Philadelphia in ballast, went ashore in a fog, Sunday, on the island of Nanshon, Vineyard sound. She was hauled off by the Fish Commission steamer Albatross, Monday forenoon, and towed to New Bedford, leaking badly.

The steamer Gate City, of the Boston & Savannah Steamship line, a sister ship to the City of Columbus, of the same line, which was wrecked on Devil's Bridge, went ashore about seven o'clock Sunday evening on Nausbon, about eleven miles from where the City of Columbus was destroyed, and several miles from where the Panther was aground. The Gate City was going as slow as possible, and feeling her way along with the lead, but she struck hard enough to knock a hole in her bottom, filling two of her five compartments. The sea was smooth, and the passengers, fifty-two in number, were not frightened. A boat from the steamer about midnight fell in with the tug George W. Brown, bound from New Bedford to aid the Panther, and engaged her to take off all the passengers she could carry, about thirty-five, and land them at New Bedford. Tee rest were taken off Monday morning by the steamer Monohansett. The Gate City is valued at $200,000, and insured $100,000; she has 164 bales of cotton and 53,000 watermelons on board, besides other cargo. Her position is a dangerous one.

Naval Intelligence.

A Washington despatch says the captain and chief engineer of the U. S. S. Lancaster have been ordered home from the European station, and the captain and engineer of the Juniata from the Asiatic station, to give explanations regarding alleged misdoing of paymasters, who are said to have made a practice of paying much above market prices for supplies purchased on foreign stations, the overplus being divided between the merchant and paymaster.

Our readers will naturally, as the August "Atlantic" comes to their tables, turn to the very enjoyable story called the "Two Browns," by Miss Jewett. Octave Thanet has a very amusing sketch about "Six Visions of St. Augustine," in which we see the town from six different points of view. The three most notable articles of the number are an entertaining paper on "Domestic Economy in the Confederacy," by David Dodge; a paper on "The Indian Question in Arizona," by Robert K. Evans; and an essay on "The Benefits of Superstition," by Agnes Repplier. Andrew Hedbrooke has an essay on "Individual Continuity," and there are criticisms on "Recent Light Literature" and other volumes. Miss Edith M. Thomas contributes a poem to the memory of Helen Hunt Jackson, and there are also some other verses which are up to the usual high standard of "Atlantic" poetry. The three serials by Henry James, Bishop, and Charles Egbert Craddock (Miss Murfree) are as interesting as ever; and the Contributors' Club, which deserves a word for its brightness, closes the number. INDIGESTION

To strengthen the stomach, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency which result from indigestion, there is nothing so effective as Ayer's Pills. These Pills contain no alcohol or other poisonous drug, act directly on the digestive and assimilative organs, and restore health and strength to the entire system. T. P. Bonner, Chester, Pa., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the past 20 years, and am satisfied I should not have been alive to-day, if it had not been for them. They

me of Dyspepsia when all other remedies failed, and their occasional use has kept me in a healthy condition ever since." L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills, for Liver troubles and Indigestion, a good many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action." Richard Norris, Lynn, Mass., writes: "After much suffering, I have been cured of Dyspepsia and Liver troubles

By Using

Ayer's Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken." John Burdett, Troy, Iowa, writes: "For nearly two years my life was rendered miserable by the horrors of Dyspepsia. Medical treatment afforded me only temporary relief, and I became reduced in flesh, and very much debilitated. A friend of mine, who had been similarly afflicted, advised me to try Ayer's Pills. I did so, and with the happiest results. My food soon ceased to distress me, my appetite returned, and I became as strong and well as ever."

There are grave doubts as to the river and harbor bill being passed. There is much indignation between the southern and northern members of Congress; no one is satisfied with the bill, and perhaps no bill can be prepared that will meet the views of the majority.

The "Riverside Paper Series" is a collection of novels by the best American authors, issued by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, in paper covers, printed on strong, thick paper in large, clear type, at fifty cents per volume. The numbers are issued weekly, and the list includes such works as "But Yet a Woman," "The Stillwater Tragedy," "An Old Maid's Paradise," "Married For Fun," "Hammersmith," etc. These books are just the thing for the seaside, or the satchel of the traveller by rail, and can be procured in this city at M. Goodrich's. One of the late volumes of the series is "Burglars in Paradise," a sort of sequel to Miss Phelps' "An Old Maid's Paradise," and it is full of quiet humor and gentle satire. Another is "The Man Who Was Guilty," by Flora Haines Loughead, the story of a long and earnest and at last successful attempt to "live down" the results of an early crime, there being enough love making in the book to lighten the story as it goes along.

The Salvation Army held its farewell meeting at Old Orchard last Thursday evening, Captains Pugmire and Morton leading. It is announced that "this brought the sessions to a successful close, 257 souls having been saved during the ten days meeting."

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists give notice that they have posted copies of all the Check-Lists of the City in the corridor of the City Building, and also have posted a list of Ward One at the Railroad Station, and a list of Ward Three at the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, and a list of Ward Four at the store of John J. Lasker on Pleasant Street, for the inspection of the voters of the City.

They also give notice that they will be in session at the City Building on Friday the 23d day of July, on Wednesday the 28th day of July, and on Friday the 30th day of July, 1886, from 7 o'clock A. M. to 12 M. and from 2 to 5 P. M. on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the several lists of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 2 P. M. on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election. THE TOWN DEBTS.

The forthcoming report of State Treasurer Carter will contain for the first time the financial standing of the several cities and towns. These statistics will be published under the authority of an act of the legislature approved Aug. 13th, 1885. Some years ago the state assumed the town war debts, which makes their present liability of course much smaller than it otherwise would have been. As will be seen the aggregate net debt is considerably less than four millions, while towns out of debt have total surpluses pretty well up to a hundred thousand dollars.

The following table gives the aggregate net debts of the towns in each county, the right hand column giving the aggregate surplus of the towns lucky enough to have any:

Counties.	Net debt.	Surplus.
Rockingham.....	$291,851.18	$1,775 34
Strafford.....	231,693.35	11,059.99

THE KIRMESS.

Those of our citizens who attended the Kirmess of last year, will readily call to mind how extremely graceful and attractive were the various peasant dances, so effectively given in the costumes representative of different European nations. We are glad to know that this very successful and pleasing feature is to be repeated at the Kirmess of Thursday next, with allowance for the introduction of additional details. The many ornamental and useful articles which will be exhibited for sale at the various booths, will afford an opportunity for such as may wish, to make most desirable purchases, and at the same time experience the satisfaction of realizing that they are thus contributing to the success of an entertainment, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the uses of charity in this community. We will add, that it will be perfectly practicable to procure an excellent supper at the cafe, which will open at six o'clock and continue through the evening.

MARITIME NOTES.

The sloops Atalanta, Black Cloud and Lottie, announced as the winners of the three prizes in the first class at the Annisquam regatta, failed to receive them after all, owing to some ambiguity in the wording of the sailing directions. After the race Capt. McLean of the Lottie, which was given third place, entered a protest against the Atalanta and Black Cloud for not leaving a certain red buoy on the starboard in passing; the judges had a long conference on the construction to be put on the wording of the sailing directions, and they finally voted to declare the race in the first class off, two of the judges dissenting, they being in favor of allowing the record to stand.

A change has been made in the time of the steamer Oceanic starting on her afternoon trip to the Shoals, she now leaving Appledore wharf in this city at 5:45 o'clock, instead of six as heretofore.

There is pending in Congress a bill to cut down the salaries and force at the Portland custom house. A frantic appeal is made to Tom Reed to help defeat the proposed measure, and ample promise of aid to the republican candidate is tendered. It is also suggested that some day he may want the offices for his friends. Mr. Reed smilingly rebukes the tempters, and sententiously remarks that this is a democratic chestnut which the reformers seek to have him extract from the coals of fire, and it must be in a more frigid temperature than that now enjoyed at Washington that the representative goes on the record to become a target for the administration orators of the future. We feel certain that no such attempt at false economy will be made in relation to the salaries at this port. It may be well enough for a place like Portland, where there is little to do, to have the salaries reduced, but with the small force on duty at our custom house, with the care of the adjacent ports, it is ridiculous for these sham reforms to be started. But the democratic party in some of its acts moves in a mysterious way its wonders to perform.

The Oceanic, at Star island, is having a much larger patronage than in any former season; on Sunday last there were sixty guests more than on the corresponding date of 1885, and every room is engaged for the month of August. Landlord Frisbee is deservedly popular with boarders and transients, and devotes himself to their comfort and enjoyment. The table is excellent, and visitors at other summer resorts, as well as citizens of Portsmouth, are availing themselves of the reduction of passage (including dinner) to the Shoals, for parties of five or more.

Boatswain Andrew Milne, of the United States navy, died in New York on the 18th inst. He was born in Maryland; entered the service in April, 1851, as an enlisted man, and was appointed boatswain on the 8th of May, 1861, being credited to the District of Columbia; his last cruise ended in October, 1882. He was stationed at this navy yard many years ago, and married a Kittery woman. He will be buried from the 2d Christian church, Kittery Foreside, at two o'clock this (Tuesday) afternoon.

Monday's shower was felt at the Wentworth, but passed by Rye beach. The roads were in capital condition, and in the afternoon many carriages from the beaches were in town.

George A. Marden, Esq., of the Lowell Courier, was in town on Monday. Mr. Marden is the guest of Mayor C. A. Stott at his cottage at Little Boar's Head.

The Boston Traveller says: "Mr. Benjamin C. Piper, for many years a clerk in the office of the secretary of state, died on Friday. He was an efficient officer until his health gave way. He was born in Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 20th, 1828."

The South-End base ball club will play a game at Stratham to-day.

The brickwork of the big sewer on Deer street was nearly done Monday, and the long-demoralized highway will soon be in good condition once more. The brick work at the end of the tunnel nearest Vaughan street was finished last Friday, and the work of filling the excavation there commenced. The engine and drilling gear from that end were taken last week to Eastern point, York, where Mr. Whittaker is engaged in sinking a deep well. The work remaining to be done on the sewer is the connecting with it of the brewery sewers, the Brewster street and Bridge street sewers, and the completion of the wooden outlet.

Mr. Editor: Some weeks ago the board of aldermen ordered the removal of the ancient paving stones from Market street, under the direction of the committee on streets, and also other improvements. The surprise has been why operations have not been previously commenced. But lo! on Monday morning the street commissioner's forces appeared very numerously at Noble's island bridge with the city teams, clearing up the rubbish and depositing crushed stone—just about two weeks before the municipal election. Previously the board had adjourned for two weeks, and the committee had never been called together. Ex-Mayor Treat always declined taking any responsibility under the provisions of the city charter, but evidently the present mayor takes the bull by the horns. ALDERMAN.

Editor Chronicle: I see by your paper of Monday morning that our Gas Co. propose to connect with their present system of giving us light, that of electricity. Would it not be well for our city government before contracting for lighting our city with electricity, to ascertain if this report is true? The cost of lighting our streets and roads the last year was about $4,000. Will forty electric lights do this? It would be well to go slow in this matter. Competition is the life of trade. Don't let us build up another monopoly. The Portsmouth Aqueduct is sufficient of that sort.

A CITIZEN.

A York harbor correspondent of the Boston Saturday Evening Gazette says that it is rumored that Miss Maud Banks, General Banks' daughter, who is there, "will soom make her debut as a professional upon the stage at Portsmouth, and her friends are already talking of going over in a body to give her a proper 'send-off.'"

With what alacrity SANFORD'S GINGER responds to the cry of distress. No cramp or pain has ever made a demand upon it for relief or cure that has not met with instant response.

It is a delicious combination of the imported Ginger, Choice Aromatics, and French Brandy, totally unlike and vastly superior to all other "ginger," pain cures and nauseating nostrums.

Unrips fruit, impure water, unhealthy climate, unwholesome food, Malaria, Epidemic and Contagious Diseases, Cholera Morbus, Cramps, Pains, Indigestion, Colds, Chills, Simple Fevers, Exhaustion, Nervousness and Loss of Sleep, that beset the traveller or household at this season, are nothing to those protected by SANFORD'S GINGER.

pleasant friend, for example, or to perform some slight office, such as carrying flowers or books to the sick, or to purchase some little article needed which requires no great outlay of thought. For food there should be given meat in small quantities, plenty of fish, especially shell fish, as much bread and butter as may be desired, creamed or mashed potatoes and simple puddings.

Fruit should play an important part in the dietary, and should be eaten before breakfast. Baked apples, oranges, and thoroughly ripe pears are always relished at this time. Cocoa should be used as a beverage instead of tea or coffee, although a cup of tea at 4 o'clock can be borne by persons to whom it would be injurious at any other time. If milk be liked and be digested easily, it may be freely used. My physicians order it cooked. It will usually be found that soups are not conducive, and beer and spirits should be avoided.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The England of South America.

The Chilians call their country the "England of South America." If a native makes a promise, and wishes it to appear unusually binding, he says, "On the word of an Englishman." Should he desire an appointment to be kept on the minute, he says, "Be as punctual as an Englishman."

The traveler discovers that wherever he goes in Chili the highest respect and warmest friendship are entertained towards England. The explanation of these feelings is to be found in the fact that when the young republic was struggling to throw off the Spanish yoke, many Englishmen served her with as much ardor as they would have served their native country.

The upper classes of Chili imitate the English aristocracy. Like them, they are reserved, fond of a good joke, appreciate wit, cherish family pride, and make "society" strict and exclusive. The women of this class imitate the better sort of English women, and never dress for church as if they expected to go from it to a "reception." They go in plain black, with a black mantilla over the head, and their example is followed by the women of all classes.—Youth's Companion.

The Mysteries of Japanese Lac.

The mysteries of the Japanese lac have never been mastered by European workmen. Their artists were craftsmen of untiring patience, and placed by the condition of feudal life above the needs of mere money making. They were often ennobled and always esteemed. They were the companions of princes. They did not hesitate to lavish on a sword or an ivory toggle, a screen or a minute decoration of a sword hilt, all their artistic genius in design or pictorial effect. The modern lac is an ephemeral production—thin in texture, with overlaid gilding of effective but not solid character. Its panels and cabinets, rich with incrustations, are gaudy and ill-drawn. There is nothing in which the collector so often goes astray. The old Japanese lac resists heat and cold alike. Submersion beneath the sea for months does not spoil it. It is built up slowly and defies centuries of wear.—Chicago News.

A GREAT DANGER.

The late Bayard Taylor, who probably travelled more over the surface of the globe than any living man, claimed that he could not only tell the nationality of any persons whom he met, by the way in which they conversed, but could also tell the locality of the particular country from which they came. This reminds us of an incident which occurred to the writer in conversation with Mr. Taylor at one time. He said:

"I have seen every land and people, and do not hesitate to say that for energy, intensity and enterprise, the inhabitants of America exceed any on the face of the globe. These qualities are their inheritance. Their ancestors landed upon a bleak coast in winter, with savages before them and an ocean behind, and they not only conquered the country, but even caused much of its barren soil to become richly productive. This energy, this intense push, is inherited by their descendants, and the people of America to-day are unequalled by any people in the world in the qualities above named. It is, perhaps, unfortunate that these qualities have been secured too often at the expense of health, and we find exhaustion of the physical powers, nervousness and debility more common among men and women of America than in any other locality on the face of the globe."

Mr. Taylor spoke from rich experience, and he spoke the truth.

The nervous, mental and physical exhaustion which is undergone must be replaced by blood-making, nerve-making and brain-making elements, or this state of depression will continue. Albumen in the system is precisely the element which is required; and beef, malt and hope will produce albumen quicker and in greater quantity than any other known combination. These elements have been happily combined in the great preparation, Hoptonic, and the revival of physical energies in thousands of people has fully proven its power and value.

These are not remarks given at random, but serious and earnest truths demanded by facts and confirmed by scientists. There are hundreds of men and women in their graves who might be alive and happy had they known the truths and acted upon them in time, and it is painful to think of the intense suffering, excessive sickness and vast number of deaths, all of which might have been avoided if people had only realized and known.

I am thoroughly conversant with its mode of preparation and know it to be not only a legitimate pharmaceutical product, but also worthy of the high commendations it has received in all parts of the world. It contains essence of Beef, Coca, Quinine, Iron and Calisaya, which are dissolved in pure genuine Spanish Imperial Crown Sherry."

A letter received in New Bedford dated Russell, Bay of Islands, June 17th, gives an account of a serious difficulty on board the bark Petrel of New Bedford. A consular inquiry had been held as to alleged cruelties of Captain Reed and the officers of the vessel, and the examination resulted in sending the captain and first and second officers and five witnesses to America, to be dealt with by the authorities. Mr. Stephenson, consular agent at Bay of Islands, cabled to the owners in New Bedford asking them to send officers to take charge of the vessel. The Petrel arrived at New Zealand the last of May with 850 barrels of oil. Captain Philip Reed of Westport, owner of the Petrel, says he received no cable or other intelligence of the difficulty. The sending home of the officers is a serious matter.

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

Restful Nights, Days Free From Torture

Await the rheumatic sufferer who resorts to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. That this benignant cordial and depurent is a far more reliable remedy than colchicum and other poisons used to expel the rheumatic virus from the blood, is a fact that experience has satisfactorily demonstrated. It also enjoys the advantage of being — unlike them — perfectly safe. With many persons a certain predisposition to rheumatism exists, which renders them liable to its attacks after exposure in wet weather, to currents of air changes of temperature, or to cold when the body is hot. Such persons should take a wine glass or two of the Bitters as soon as possible after incurring risk from the above causes, as this superb protective effectually nullifies the hurtful influence. For the functional derangements which accompany rheumatism, such as colic, spasms in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, imperfect digestion, &c., the Bitters is also a most useful remedy. It is only necessary in obstinate cases to use it with persistency.

A despatch from Halifax reports the drowning of fourteen sailors of the British war ship Goshawk at Port Royal, Jamaica, on the 27th ult. Nineteen had gone ashore on leave. When they were returning a storm capsized their boat, and only five were saved.

It is well known that the inhabitants of many Eastern nations shield themselves against infectious disorders by wearing Aromatic Gums on the pit of the stomach. Their instincts are right, for strong permanent odors are antagonistic to the living germs which cause disease. For this reason Allcock's Porous Plasters, being composed of fragrant aromatic gums, are the best safeguard to wear on the pit of the stomach in cholera time, or in localities where sewer gas and malaria are found. They not only prevent infection, but will cure diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera and bowel complaints.

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D."

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. "H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair-minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength are to be avoided as dangerous.

GEN. GRANT AT APPOMATTOX.

Terms of the Surrender—The Commander's Judgment—The "Side-Arms."

He had indeed long felt that when the war was ended there should be no vindictive policy toward the vanquished, and he informed Lee at once when they met that he meant to accept paroles; but the important final provision, that which gives all its peculiar character to the capitulation, was unstudied and its language spontaneous. Yet the language is as precise as words can make it, and enunciates a policy which has done as much as victory itself to secure the results of the war: "Each officer and man will be allowed to return to his home, not to be disturbed by the United States authority so long as they observe their paroles and the laws in force where they reside."

The terms, however, were not in the least the result of chance or carelessness, or indifference. They were the legitimate outgrowth of Grant's judgment—the consequence of all that had gone before—embodied then for the first time, because then for the first time the necessity for the embodiment had arrived. In this way Grant always did his greatest things. It may be strange or inexplicable, but he could not often explain his methods, nor, indeed, always his reasons.

He had at this moment no defined large views about separating the military from the civil power, far less any intent of encroaching on the domain or prerogative of politics. He did not even, like Sherman, take into consideration the fate or condition of other forces of the enemy, although he was general-in-chief; he confined himself strictly to the business before him—the disbanding and dispersion of Lee's army. He wanted to secure that neither that army nor any of its members could ever again resist or confront the national authority; and when this was determined he was unwilling to inflict on one of those members a single unnecessary humiliation or suffering. He was, I am sure, unconscious of any special magnanimity in this course. He thought nothing of himself, and little as yet of the far-reaching effect of his terms on the population of the south. What his hand found to do, it did, and no more; in peace as well as war.

The corroboration of all this is the fact that the idea of allowing the officers to retain their side-arms and personal effects was suggested to him as he wrote. He wore no sword, having been summoned hastily from his own headquarters two days before to a distant portion of the field with no opportunity of returning afterward. Lee, however, had dressed himself with care for the ceremony. His headquarters train had been burned by Sheridan in the pursuit, and Lee and his officers, able to save only a single suit of clothes, had secured the finest. In this way Lee was handsomely clad; he wore embroidered gauntlets and the sword presented to him by the ladies of Virginia. The conqueror, battle-stained, in a common soldier's coat, looked up at his foe, elaborately arrayed, and the glitter of the rebel weapon suggested to him to spare the conquered the humiliation of surrendering it. Then he wrote the line permitting officers to retain their side-arms, horses, and personal effects. This statement has been questioned, but I give it on Gen. Grant's authority. He saw and corrected the account of the interview in my history of his campaigns.

I stood near him as Lee left the room and thus happened to be the first to congratulate him upon the result. I said something about the event being one that would live forever in history. I am sure the idea had not occurred to him until I uttered it. The effect upon his fame, upon history, was not what he was considering. He was thinking of the captured soldiery returning home without their weapons, to work their little farms; of a destitute country, ravaged by war, but now to be restored.—Adam Badeau's Letter.

Taking Photographs by Lamplight.

It will require only a few years to so perfect the photographic art that we will be able to take pictures at night by the ordinary light. Already there are experiments progressing in Germany with what are called isochromatic plates for the taking of photographs by the light of an ordinary kerosene lamp, and very good pictures have been taken of both persons and objects in this way, the only difficulty being that the lamp had to be placed a little too close to the subject.

Good photographs have been taken by the electric light—I have done some

Naval Intelligence.

Paymaster Watkins, who eloped from the U. S. S. Ossipee, and was retaken and tried by court martial at Yokahama, Japan, has been found guilty of embezzlement and desertion, and sentenced to three years' imprisonment at hard labor in a prison to be designated by the secretary of the navy. He is to receive furlough pay—$1,200 a year,—during his imprisonment, at the end of which he will be dismissed from the service. Mr. Watkins was appointed assistant paymaster in the volunteer navy from Maryland on December 31st, 1863, and transferred to the regular service on July 23d, 1866. He was promoted to paymaster February 10th, 1870.

General Basil Duke, in an article to appear in the "Southern Bivouac" for August, relates the incidents of the retreat after the fall of Richmond. This war story has never yet been fully told, though it is one of absorbing interest. The paper describes the last council of war, the protection of the treasure train, and the gradual disintegration of the remnants of the southern armies. Many points of historic interest heretofore neglected are made clear in this narrative, and altogether it is a most important contribution to the history of the war.

The Mystic Veterans' Picnic.

The excursion of the Mystic Veterans took place to-day. About fifty gentlemen took passage in the steamer Mystic, which was furnished by Capt. Trefethen free of charge for the occasion. A delightful trip outside of the harbor was enjoyed by the party. The sea was smooth, the sky clear, and the temperature mild and balmy. The party were then landed at Fort McClary and dinner was furnished in Government Grove and abundantly enjoyed by all. It consisted of an elegant fish chowder, cold meats and coffee. After dinner considerable time was spent in a good old fashioned frolic, in which all present took part. The party returned to the city about 4 o'clock.

The amount of money subscribed being more than sufficient to pay the expenses of the trip, it was voted that the balance be presented to the Children's Home; such provisions as were brought home were sent to the Old Ladies Home. Capt. Marcy, who had been chosen as the president of the day, called for a vote of thanks to Capt. Trefethen, for the services he rendered, and to Sergeant Gallagher, for courtesies and assistance during the day. As a matter of history we append a list of the names of the gentlemen present.

Moonlight Festival.

The moonlight festival under the auspices of the Court Street Christian Society took place in the field on Miller Avenue, near the residence of H. F. Eldredge, Esq. The grounds were most beautifully illuminated with torches and Chinese lanterns. There was much to amuse the large number of citizens who went to the entertainment. The idea of a moonlight festival was a very novel one, and we have no doubt the proceeds to the society will amount to a handsome sum. The arrangements were carefully made and successfully carried out. There were several features for money making which attracted much attention. The music was excellent, and the entertainment particularly fine. The entertainment was given in a large tent. The refreshments were served on tables in the open air, with several side attractions, also under canvas. The society was tendered the use of the field by H. F. Eldredge Esq., whose characteristic generosity made the difficulties of the committee of arrangements surmountable.

The following are among the recent transfers of real estate in York county, as left for record in the office of the register of deeds: Kittery—Charles H. Bartlett to James D. Plaisted, land and buildings for $2000. Eliot—Thomas F. Staples to John W. Knight, small lot of land for $10. South Berwick—Samuel P. Young of York to Henry Goodwin of South Berwick, real estate in South Berwick for $100. Wells — George Getchell to James Chauncy, real estate for $335; John M. Davis to Samuel B. Farnsworth, two acres of land for $60; George C. Bragdon of Wells to Bernice L. Hatch of Cambridge, Mass., land and buildings in Wells for $275.

Berwick formerly included the present towns of Berwick, South Berwick and North Berwick, and was anciently a part of Kittery. In 1673, Berwick was a parish in Kittery, and called the parish of Unity. The two towns of Kittery and Berwick were called the two plantations of Piscataqua and Newichawanneck. The late Dr. Usher Parsons, in his life of Sir William Pepperrell, says that mills were built in the present territory of South Berwick, as early as 1624. The town of Berwick was made a separate corporation in 1713. South Berwick was incorporated February 12th 1814; North Berwick, March 22d, 1831. When forces were raised in New England for the capture of Louisburg in 1745, Berwick furnished 150 men for Pepperrell's regiment, being the entire militia force of the town. Captain Moses Butler was the commander of one of the companies; who the other commissioned officers were, we cannot say. Kittery furnished 450 men for the same expedition.—Biddeford Journal.

Charles Kerson, a Swede, a laborer, while confined in Saco jail for intoxication, on the 18th inst., attempted suicide with a pair of scissors. He cut his wrist, head, face, and throat, but was discovered by Jailer Fenderson in time to save his life.

Richard Norris, Lynn, Mass., writes: "After much suffering, I have been cured of Dyspepsia and Liver troubles

John Burdett, Troy, Iowa, writes: "For nearly two years my life was rendered miserable by the horrors of Dyspepsia. A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming 'smaller by degrees, and beautifully less.' I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

POWDER FOR BUNKER HILL.

[From the New York Times.]

A great many accounts have been published of the taking of Fort William and Mary at Newcastle, N. H., December, 14, 1774, but the latest, and one of the most incorrect, is in an article by Mr. Ballard Smith, entitled "The Gunpowder at Bunker Hill," published in the July number of Harper's Magazine. I will point out a few of his inaccuracies.

I. The taking of Fort William and Mary was by no means the first overt act of the Revolution or of "treason," as Mr. Smith calls it. As early as June 9, 1772, Capt. Abraham Whipple, of Rhode Island, afterward commodore, captured and destroyed the British ship Gaspee about seven miles below Providence, off what is now called Gaspee Point. This vessel was commanded by William Duddingston, a lieutenant in the English navy, who had made himself obnoxious to the people of Rhode Island by boarding all ships entering or leaving port, detaining them without pretext, stopping market boats, making illegal seizures, plundering along shore, and violating the charter of the colony by acting without showing his commission. This capture has been considered one of the first blows struck in the colonies for freedom, and the wounding of the commander the first blood shed in the struggle for independence. (See Arnold's "History of Rhode Island," volume II, 312—320.)

I give another instance. When the letter of the Earl of Dartmouth respecting the military stores was laid before the general assembly of Rhode Island, that house immediately ordered (Dec. 5, 1774,) that all the cannon and ammunition at Fort George, except three guns, should be removed to Providence by Col. Nightingale, and there kept in his charge. This was done the next day, (Dec. 6,) and more than forty cannon, with a large amount of powder and shot, were conveyed to a place of safety. (Arnold's "History of Rhode Island," volume II, 343—4.)

The action of Rhode Island in dismantling Fort George was at once communicated to the people of Portsmouth, N. H., and hastened the taking of Fort William and Mary, which had been previously planned. The latter, however, was more strictly a movement of the populace, and its great importance cannot be denied.

II. The seizure of the fort at Newcastle was not solely due to the patriotic citizens of Durham. It was a widely concerted plan, in which prominent representative men from the chief towns in the province took part, such as John Langdon, of Portsmouth; Josiah Bartlett, of Kingston; Nathaniel Peabody, of Plaistow; Nicholas Gilman, Nathaniel Folsom, and Dr. Giddinge, of Exeter, &c.

Thirteen men went from Durham under the command of John Sullivan, afterward general, but at that time a practitioner of law in Durham and a major in the New Hampshire militia. Among them were Alexander Scammell, Winborn Adams, John Griffin, (all of whom became officers in the continental army,) and Ebenezer Thompson, who at that time was a prominent member of the general assembly of New Hampshire and afterward a member of the provincial congress, councilor of the state, member of the committee of safety, and a judge for many years. Capt. John Demerit also went with them to represent the town of Madbury. They went down the Oyster and Piscataqua rivers the night of Dec. 13th, and at Portsmouth joined a much larger company. Hon. Woodbury Langdon, in a letter of Dec. 17, 1774, says: "Some hundreds, if not thousands, of men went to the fort, as it is said, and have taken thence all the arms and powder, fearing that the king's troops might deprive the province of their arms, ammunition, &c., as has been reported is intended." (Letter to Webster and Eastman, published in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register.)

Another letter from Portsmouth, dated Dec. 16, 1774, says: "Two hundred men assembled and went to the castle in two gondolas, who on their way were joined by 250 more, and demanded the surrender of the fort, which Capt. Cochran refused, and fired three guns, but no lives were lost, upon which they immediately scaled the walls, disarmed the captain and his men, took possession of ninety-seven barrels of powder, put it on board the gondolas, brought it up to town, and went off with it some distance into the country." (See "New Hampshire Provincial Papers," Vol. VII., 423.)

In Gov. Wentworth's official proclamation concerning the affair he says "Several bodies of men" took the fort and carried away the powder. ("New Hampshire Provincial Papers," VII, 423.)

Mr. Brewster, in his "Rambles About Portsmouth," says this expedition was first planned by Capt. Thomas Pickering, of that town, and that he was the real leader. At all events he was the first to scale the walls, and to him Col. Cochran, the commander, surrendered his sword.

Mr. Amory, in his life of Gen. Sullivan, says: "Major Sullivan planned the attack with Thomas Pickering and John Langdon," which seems very probable.

The adjutant-general's report of New Hampshire, Vol. II, 263, says the band was "under the command of Capt. Pickering."

III. The ammunition from the fort was not all stored in Durham, but was distributed among different towns of the interior. A letter to Major Cilley from the committee of safety at Exeter, dated Aug. 7, 1775, (nearly two months after the battle of Bunker Hill,) says: "You are desired as soon as possible to apply to the selectmen of the several towns in this colony with whom was lodged the powder taken last winter from Fort William and Mary, take an account of what is now in their custody, respectively, and request of them forthwith to convey the whole of it to Col. Nicholas Gilman at Exeter." (New Hampshire Provincial Papers, VII, 537.)

A large part of the powder was undoubtedly brought to Durham, however, and at first concealed under the meeting house, which stood on a high bank overlooking Oyster river, but it was soon removed to a less accessible place in Madbury, where Capt. Demerit had a magazine built for it communicating with his own cellar.

IV. Mr. Smith quotes very incorrectly from the statement of Eleazar Bennett, who belonged to the party that went from Durham. Mr. Bennett's account, given when he was about 100 years old, was written down by the Rev. Alvan Tobey, of Durham, and published in the Congregational Journal, in February, 1852. It does not mention Paul Revere's coming to Durham. In fact Paul Revere never came here. He did go to Portsmouth, however, to carry the news of the dismantling of Fort George. Gov. Wentworth, in a letter to Gov. Gage dated Dec. 14, 1774, says: "Yesterday in the afternoon Paul Revere arrived in this town express from the committee in Boston to another committee in this town," &c. (New Hampshire Provincial Papers, VII., 420.)

Nor does Mr. Bennett mention Major Langdon and Thomas Pickering, except to state that the party from Durham was joined by John Langdon and another party at Portsmouth.

V. The bridge across the Piscataqua, at the mouth of Oyster river, leading from Durham to Newington, and opening a thoroughfare to Portsmouth, had not even been thought of in 1774. It was not built till twenty years later; that is, in 1794. And it was not carried away by ice till the middle of this century.

VI. The gentleman whom Mr. Smith characterizes as "Old John Demerit" was at that time just fifty years of age and the leading man in Madbury, where he had been for several years one of the selectmen. He was also a justice of the peace and a captain in the New Hampshire militia. In 1776 and 1777 he represented Madbury in the general assembly of New Hampshire at Exeter. And the fourth Provincial congress at Exeter voted, Nov. 7, 1775, "That Capt. John Demeritt be first major of the second regiment of militia in this colony"—no doubt in recognition of his services at Fort William and Mary and his care of the gun powder.

VII. All the commissions held by the citizens of Durham "connecting them in any way with the royal government" were not burned on the common, if any were, for I have one in my possession, signed by Gov. John Wentworth, empowering John Sullivan and Ebenezer Thompson, among others, to administer to all officers, civil and militiary, the oaths appointed by parliament, &c., and the latter with at least one of the others continued to exercise his duties under royal commission as late as April 15, 1775, as I have documents to prove. And this without his losing the confidence of the people in his devotion to their cause.

As to other statements in the articles in question, such as the hauling down of the King's colors at the fort by Col. Scammell, and the settlement of New Hampshire by needy sons of the cavaliers sent out with Capt. John Smith, &c., it is hardly worth while to discuss them at all. MARY P. THOMPSON.

The rapid sale which is being made of tickets to the Kirmess is certainly flattering evidence of the popularity of this extremely novel entertainment. We learn from one who has been so fortunate as to witness the rehearsal of some of the dances which are to be given, that this important feature of the evening is certain to prove an immense success, being sure to merit the highest commendation. A distinguishing characteristic of the Kirmess, for which it is indebted to its eastern origin, may be claimed to be the charming grace and beauty of the flowing Oriental costumes which are its natural accompaniment.

Intelligence has been received of the death in Calcutta of Rev. C. H. A. Dall, for more than thirty years the missionary there of the American Unitarian association. Mr. Dall, who was the only missionary sent by the association to foreign lands, has been very successful in work, having established many schools and exerted in other ways a widespread influence for good. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Caroline H. Dall of Washington, who is well known by her contributions to periodical literature, and a son, Professor William Dall of the Smithsonian Institution. Rev. Mr. Dall was at one time minister at large in this city.

Decidedly the finest specimen of yarrow that we ever saw, raised near the South road, was placed on our desk Tuesday by a Nautical Farmer. INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers good words in that way myself—but the trouble with the electric light is that you miss the soft shades and lines and can not work as quickly. As I said, there will be night pictures taken before long; but I do not see what good can be accomplished, as the morning and middle of the day, when people are fresh and feel good, are the best times to have photos taken, and not the night, when people are worn out.—Globe-Democrat Interview.

Printing from Chinese Blocks.

A Chinese block is engraved on a hard native wood with a close grain, cut in a different direction to the boxwood prepared for English engravers. The Chinese printer inks the block with a brush —the ink being a suitable compound largely composed of India ink. To secure an impression soft paper is laid on the block, and a dry brush is passed over the back of the paper, which is printed on one side only.—Exchange.

A Coffin Fair in Russia.

In Russia, a coffin fair is held once a year. Every peasant who has an aged parent buys a coffin. The present is always acceptable, for the receiver feels assured that he will have a Christian burial, and is proud of the son who thus cares for his last resting-place.—Good Cheer.

Spirit Made by the Moors.

The Moors make extensive use of a spirit prepared from the water in which comb is boiled in treating beeswax. The water, being impregnated with honey, is allowed to ferment, and is then distilled; the spirit is called maharga. It is flavored with anise seed or naffa—that is, fennel acid.—Chicago Herald.

Traveling on Sleeping-Cars.

A physician, referring to the custom of traveling on sleeping-cars with the berths made up with their heads toward the engine, said: "It is certainly bad for the brain of the sleeper as it is not natural, and it is no wonder that so many travelers, especially those who have been on the road exclusively, experience bad effects from it. Take infants in baby-carriages and no same woman will think of trundling along so the child goes head first. They always—except the young and inexperienced mother—push them feet first. Physicians invariably advise such locomotion. It is the same thing on the cars, and no one should hesitate about having his berth made up so as to move along feet first. It is much better for the brain.—St. Paul Globe.

The Milk of the Reindeer.

The extreme richness of the milk of the reindeer, that feed on the wild mosses of Sweden, has led to an examination of the moss as an article of food. These researches have resulted in the establishment of a number of moss-dealers in Russia and Sweden, and a prosperous and growing interest has been developed. The moss employed yields, on the average, as much alcohol as good grain, and three times as much as potatoes. The supply is practicably inexhaustible, as it is spread over vast tracts, extending from the Baltic to Behring straits.—Chicago Herald.

The power to earn is a boon. The will to save is a virtue.—Signor Max.

Restful Nights, Days Free From Torture

Await the rheumatic sufferer who resorts to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. That this benignant cordial and depurent is a far more reliable remedy than colchicum and other poisons used to expel the rheumatic virus from the blood, is a fact that experience has satisfactorily demonstrated. It also enjoys the advantage of being — unlike them — perfectly safe. With many persons a certain predisposition to rheumatism exists, which renders them liable to its attacks after exposure in wet weather, to currents of air changes of temperature, or to cold when the body is hot. Such persons should take a wine glass or two of the Bitters as soon as possible after incurring risk from the above causes, as this superb protective effectually nullifies the hurtful influence. For the functional derangements which accompany rheumatism, such as colic, spasms in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, impeded digestion, &c., the Bitters is also a most useful remedy. It is only necessary in obstinate cases to use it with persistency.

The police of Warsaw, Russia, surprised a body of nihilists holding a secret meeting, and attempted their arrest. The nihilists resisted desperately and a terrific fight ensued, in which two police officers were killed and several wounded.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of several directors and officers of the defunct Provident savings bank of St. Louis, Mo., for receiving deposits, knowing the bank to be insolvent.

It is well known that the inhabitants of many Eastern nations shield themselves against infectious disorders by wearing Aromatic Gums on the pit of the stomach. Their instincts are right, for strong permanent odors are antagonistic to the living germs which cause disease. For this reason Allcock's Porous Plasters, being composed of fragrant aromatic gums, are the best safeguard to wear on the pit of the stomach in cholera time, or in localities where sewer gas and malaria are found. They not only prevent infection, but will cure diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera and bowel complaints.

A courier who arrived at Santa Maria, Texas, July 20th, from the Mexican side, brings news that several women were outraged and men were robbed of horses and rifles in the Pelada ranch by bandits under Antonio Milstead, who styles himself general. BENTON'S HAIR GROWER.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp; should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHTY PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow Hair in 60 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.
Unlike other preparations, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.
It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.
The Hair Grower is a hair food, and its composition is almost exactly like the oil which supplies the hair with its vitality.

THE GROWTH OF NEWSPAPERS.

A Few Items of Interest Gleaned from the Pages of the Directories.

The wonderful growth of American newspapers is shown by a comparison between the directories published in 1776 and in the present year. The one contains in its sixteen small pages a list of thirty-seven newspapers which were published in this country 110 years ago. The other is almost as large as an unabridged dictionary, and in its 2,000 pages contains the names of 14,160 newspapers and periodicals of all classes. Of this large list, only seven were found in the directory of 1776. The net gain of the year has been 666. The daily newspapers number 1,216, a gain of 33. There are about 1,200 periodicals of all kinds which presumably enjoy a circulation of more than 5,000 copies.

The increase in the rural weekly press, comprising about two-thirds of the whole list, has been most marked in states like Kansas and Nebraska. Kansas is also accredited with the greatest gain in daily newpapers. In Massachusetts the weekly press is growing, but magazines and monthly publications are losing ground. The tendency of this latter class seems to be toward New York city, as at least twenty-three monthly periodicals have been established here during the year.

Among the many newspapers published in this country, almost every social movement and industrial interest finds expression. A glance at the long list reveals many curious facts. There are about 700 religious and denominational newspapers, [illegible] one-third of which are published in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago. New York is far ahead in this respect, while it will be a surprise to many to know that Boston is behind Chicago.

Three newspapers are devoted to the silkworm; six to the honey bee; thirty-two to poultry; eighteen to dentistry; and nine to phonography. There are three publications issued in the exclusive interest of postage stamp collectors, and one of dancers. The prohibitionists have 129 papers, and the liquor dealers 8. The organs of women's suffrage number 7, of candy makers 3, of gastronomy 3, and gas 2. Of the foreign newspapers, there are about 600 in German, and 42 in French. New York, New Orleans, and Worcester, Mass., each has four French publications. Two dailies are in Bohemian. Besides these, there are papers in the Swedish, Finnish, Polish, and Welsh languages. There is one publication in Gaelic, one in Hebrew, one in Chinese, and one in the Cherokee language.—Scientific American.

Passengers can now take a train up the Riga, because it was one of the most popular of ascents, and its popularity was largely due to the facility with which the ascent was achieved. The great size of the mountain, its bulk and extent, made the necessary gradients less steep and the line thus larger, the zigzags more frequent, but the ascent less sheer. Pilatus will be a much more arduous piece of engineering, but many difficulties have now been mastered which seemed insurmountable a few years ago.

On the whole the Riga railway was not the success it was expected to be. On the level railways have indeed supplanted coaches, but on the mountain-side the difficulty itself is one of the attractions of the ascent. The Italian climate does not favor pedestrianism, and the crater of a volcano commands universal interest. To these double causes must be ascribed the construction of the railway up Vesuvius. But in Switzerland the popular ascents still remain uncontaminated by the aid of the locomotive. Pilatus has been selected, no doubt, from its proximity to Lucerne, and the true "hat" of the great mountain will be found in a few years to be a thriving Swiss hotel. The railway will take more than two years in construction.—Foreign Letter.

The Fun of Collecting Specimens.

Reader, do you know the fun of collecting "specimens?" Do you know the pleasure of breaking into hard ledges of stone, to steal some secret of its structure? Do you comprehend the glory of knowing the names of these boulder stones and their history? how they were made; whence they have traveled, and what is their designation? Well, that is where science begins. Your boy comes home with his pockets full of stones. You wish he had thrown them at your neighbor's hens. But it is in this way that geology has its rise.—Cor. Globe-Democrat.

The Thirteenth of the Name.

The baby monarch of Spain is the eleventh European sovereign who, in historical times, has been labeled with the questionable number thirteen. As his companions he has an emperor of Constantinople, a king of France, two kings of Sweden, and six popes of Rome.—Chicago Tribune.

The Manufacture of Kaleidoscopes.

Kaleidoscopes are made to sell at from 5 cents to $5 each, the latter (made in Providence R. I.,) being used a great deal by carpet designers and for like purposes. In a factory in New York a reporter found five girls at work before a long desk, this being their system of operations: The first young woman wraps black paper about the glass reflectors which produce the optical illusion. These strips of glass, when thus arranged and —A little boy was trudging along the street with a slate under his arm, when an old lady stopped him and said kindly: "That is right, anxious to learn and are fond of going to school. Here's a nickel for you." "Thank ye, mum," said the little boy. "Been buying a new slate. I see." "Yes, mum; it's for me fadder." "For your father?" "Yes, mum; he keeps a saloon on Second Avenyer."

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint, then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. Only one pill a dose.

Solicitor General.

It is stated that the president is inclined to appoint the Solicitor General from some northern state, and that Hon. William H. Clifford of Maine is likely to receive the appointment. Mr. Clifford would prove a valuable officer in the department of justice. He possesses a familiarity with the rules and mode of practice in the federal courts gained from years of professional labor largely in the courts of the United States in patent causes. As Mr. Clifford is orthodox in his politics, well [illegible] as a lawyer and honorable in his profession, the public will incline to regard the selection as one of the best that could be made.

A New Railway Between Boston and New York.

There has been of late an advance in the market price of New York & New England stock. It is proposed to build a road from Danbury, Conn., a point of the N. Y. & N. E. road, 180 miles from Boston, to connect at Branxdale with the lines of the Suburban Transit roads to enable passengers to be landed at the one hundred and twenty-fifth street station in New York city of the Second Avenue elevated railroad, whence they can go through to the battery or as far down town as they may wish. Freight cars can be placed on boats and sent to any of the piers of the East and North rivers. A mortgage has been issued to the American Loan & Trust Co. to secure $8,000,000 of six per cent bonds, payable in 1926, the proceeds to be used in constructing and equipping a double track road from New York city to Danbury, fifty-four miles. This will make the distance by this route between New York and Boston 234 miles, the same as by way of Springfield, or two miles longer than by the Shore line. The distance over the Air line is 220 miles. As the N. Y. & N. E. R. R., now using the Air line, runs the quickest trains between Boston and New York, the plan of course will be to run the fastest trains over the new line. A corporation which extends its road between these two cities, and is not obliged to adapt the time of its trains to the convenience of the New York & New Haven road and its connections, can of course have better facilities than can a line composed of different roads running in connection. The efforts of the N. Y. & N. E. R. R. to establish and maintain an independent line to New York will be appreciated by the people of New England, and with some proper connection with the lines running easterly from Boston the success of the long-desired facility can but be assured. The management of the New York & New England road have for some time past seemed to be alive to the fact that quicker time and better facilities for travel between Boston and New York were possible, and with the new enterprise well in hand there can be no doubt that they will secure the greater part of the all-rail travel between these two cities.

A Hard Outlook.

A despatch from St. John's, Newfoundland, says: "Extreme penury and suffering exist among the people all along the northern coast of Newfoundland and Labrador. The ice is firm for 300 miles off the coast, keeping the temperature down to winter cold. No fishing has been possible, and the fishermen are starving. The fish oil works are idle, and oil which had been stored is being used as fuel. A number of starving men from Indian harbor and Sandwich bay have arrived here to implore food for their families. They came all the way on the floating ice. Two died soon after landing. There will be no summer, and of course, no crops. People are killing and eating dogs and horses. Labrador will be depopulated unless help comes."

Church Trouble.

There is a split in the Second Advent church at Manchester. At a meeting of the members held one evening not long ago considerable interest was manifested in regard to retaining the pastor, Rev. Mr. Baker, for another year. Residents of Goffstown and Pembroke, and one lady who was spending the summer at Alton Bay, were sent for and appeared. When the vote came to be taken there were thirty-four who favored his staying, and twenty-four who wanted him to go. The pastor then arose and resigned, and his resignation was accepted, after which the thirty-four who voted with him also asked to have their names withdrawn from the church books. These thirty-four included all the officers of the church except one, and on the 20th inst. the members remaining met and elected new officers. The two factions are known as unionists and rebels, the former being those who supported the pastor and the latter those who were adverse to him. The affair is a most unfortunate one, and many members of the church on both sides greatly regret that it reached such an intense degree of feeling.

Gaining Ground.

The Manufacturers' Gazette, of Boston, has the following: "The New Hampshire fire losses for the past six months are given in a contemporary as eighty-four, of which two are saw mills, one a woollen mill and two shoe factories, the remainder dwellings, barns, etc. From our own construction and manufacturing reports covering the same period, we find that there have been built eight new shoe shops, two woollen, three hosiery and seven sawmills, two machine shops, with negotiations now pending for five shoe factories, three tanneries and currying shops, [illegible] pulp mills and a woollen factory, so that New Hampshire's industrial interests continue to thrive, if some do burn."

Miss Florence A. Ham of this city is visiting Mr. D. A. Ordway and wife, of Battle Creek, Mich., at their home. Miss Ham left this city at three o'clock in the afternoon on the 8th inst., and arrived in Battle Creek the next day, after a ride of twenty-five hours. The Ordways are natives of this city.

Messrs. James G. Ward and Charles W. Kingsbury started on a trip to Montreal, Tuesday. Mr. True W. Priest also went on the same trip.

Capt. John G. Moses will start from this city this morning, on his annual trip across the Atlantic ocean by steamer from Boston.

Envelopes addressed to Treasurer C. M. Gignoux, of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial fund, and containing a subscription paper so worded that any person desiring to contribute to the fund has merely to put down the sum and sign his or her name, have been left at the houses of citizens generally.

A Story of Thomas B. Aldrich.

["Town Talk" in New York Star.]

Crossing City Hall park one morning, he saw a large crowd assembled there, and went up to investigate the cause. Immediately the crowd scattered and fled in all directions, leaving Aldrich to confront alone an angry bull which had broken loose and was making a somewhat active promenade through the city. Not having been in Spain up to that time, Aldrich was in no mood for a bull fight, and at once strategically availed himself of the shelter of the nearest tree. "The tree," he said, "was about as large round as a piece of spaghetti, but I got on one side of it and the bull on the other, with his head down. I hung on to the tree, not daring to let go. The bull kept sliding round and round; I did the same; and we kept going in a circle till I was so dizzy that I almost fell over the bull's back. But fortunately, at last, a policeman came up and twisted the bull's tail; and then you should have seen the bull turn and toss that policeman over the post and chain fence. It was 'Ireland's opportunity' for me, though. I left the maccaroni tree at once, and didn't stop running till I got to Canal street. What fun the other newspaper men made of me in their papers the next morning."

—A father had been lecturing his young hopeful upon the evils of staying out late at night and getting up late in the morning. "You never will amount to anything," he continued, "unless you turn over a new leaf. Remember that the early bird catches the worm." "How about the worm, father," inquired the young man, "wasn't he rather foolish to get up so early?" "My son," replied the old man solemnly, "that worm hadn't been to bed at all. He was on his way home."

—"So your sister is married?" "Yes, and she did very well—splendid. You have heard of Vanderbilt?" "Oh, yes. Did she marry into that family?" "Well, yes, so to speak. She married a nephew of Vanderbilt's chief cook. He is the driver of a street car."

THE KIRMESS.

It is, perhaps, unnecessary to inform our readers that the Kirmess opens at Miss Morgan's seminary this evening. The sale of tickets, which has been very brisk, will continue at Grace's drug store during the day, and to-night they may be obtained at the door of the seminary. The details incident to the final arrangements have been completed, and those who have secured seats may promise themselves a most enjoyable entertainment, the proceeds of which will be devoted to charitable uses. Coffee and ices will be served at the cafe, or supper if desired; we can not pretend to enumerate the many tasteful and attractive articles which will be on sale at the various booths. Last evening the final rehearsal was held, and the plans for illuminating the tent were perfected by Mr. McIntire, who has kindly undertaken to furnish a powerful calcium light for the occasion. We anticipate a brilliant success for the Kirmess which shall be the worthy reward of the committee of ladies who have given to its details so much energetic and persevering effort.

BASE BALL.

A very interesting game was played at the Plains on the afternoon of the 21st inst., between the Athletic club of this city and a nine from the practice ships at the navy yard, the attendance of spectators being very large, and including many ladies. The game was won by the Athletics, only six innings being played. The following is the score:

PICNIC ITEMS.

It is Sergeant Weitzel, U. S. A., who is in charge of the government grounds and property at Fort McClary, and to whom the Mystic Veterans unanimously voted their acknowledgements for courtesies heartily extended them on the occasion of their picnic in the beautiful "Government grove" back of the fort on Tuesday of this week. Sergeant Gallagher, now retired or about to be, was so many years in charge of the fort that the name of one naturally brought up the name of the other; hence it was an easy matter for the reporter, in "writing up" the picnic, to get the name of Sergeant Gallagher in the place which should have been occupied by that of his courteous and pleasant-mannered successor.

Besides the picnic of the Mystic Veterans at Fort McClary, Kittery Point, on Tuesday of this week, there were a number of smaller parties enjoying an outing at points both up and down the river on the same day, and the Sunday schools of the Episcopal parish had a greatly-enjoyed picnic at Bay View grove, Stratham. On Wednesday the Court street Christian society and Sunday school picnicked at Bay View grove; the Adventists had a picnic at Wallis' sands, Rye, going and returning in barges; and a quite large private party had a chowder in a grove on the bank of the river, above Freeman's point. To-day, if fair, the Methodist society and Sunday school will have their annual picnic, at Bay View grove.

Capt. Wm. Ross, who was treasurer of the Mystic Veterans' picnic, found that after paying all bills he had left in his hands $11.83 to give the Children's Home, according to the vote of the picnickers; he thought even money would look better, so he made it $12 and handed it over to the treasurer of the Home. That's the kind of treasurer to have—one who will do the work without pay, and make up out of his own pocket any little deficit which may occur.

Capt. H. W. Trefethen having extended an invitation to the inmates of the Old Ladies' Home to enjoy his hospitality on the good steamer Mystic for a short run on the briny deep, the matron was much pleased, and accepted on behalf of the old ladies, the trip to take place as soon as details can be arranged.

LIGHTING THE STREETS.

The following is the text of the proposal made to the city by the Portsmouth Gas Light company, by F. J. Philbrick, treasurer, in regard to street lights:

The company will furnish gas for one hundred and six street gas lamps as now lighted by the city, including lighting the lamps, cleaning the lanterns and thawing out the pipes in cold weather, it being understood that the city shall have the lamps extinguished by the watchmen as done at present, and that in every other respect the gas company shall have entire charge of the gas lamps and lighting of the same, for the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars for one year, commencing August 1st, 1886. If desired, they will furnish electric lights for street lamps as soon as they have completed arrangements for so doing.

A new five horse power engine was hoisted into the third story of Association building on Wednesday of this week by men from the Machine shop, to be used in running stitching machines under the direction of Dr. Fay and another gentleman, for whom the room has been fitted up for this purpose.

The police force are taking numerous deserters from the government ships at the navy yard and marine barracks. They enjoy taking the reward much better than taking the prisoners.—Times.

The last man-hole of the big sewer, at the junction of Vaughan and Deer streets, was finished on the 21st inst., and filled in around; the temporary bridge at that point was removed, and travel is now unobstructed there. About ten days more will see the whole job finished, and the contractor and the dwellers on Deer street will alike rejoice thereat.

Among the other attractions at the picnic of the St. Mary's Benevolent Association of this city at Pinkham's grove, Dover point, on the 4th of August next, will be a game of base ball between the Portsmouth and Dover clubs, for a purse of $15 offered by the society, and an additional purse of $25 raised by subscription.

George A. Goodall, manager of the York Harber house at York harbor, has put on the route between that place and this city a very handsome new four-seated wagon built by Long of Amesbury, Mass. Mr. Charles Matt. Young of Cider hill is driver.

At the car shops of the Western division of the Boston & Maine railroad in Salem, are two new baggage cars nearly completed, and one combination smoking and mail car, all three designed for the White Mountain division of the road. At this season nearly all the passenger cars are in service; one smoking car is being extensively overhauled, and a few other passenger cars are in the hands of the workmen.

Henry Jordan of Pittsburg, Pa., connected with Forepaugh's circus as ticket seller, was arrested in Bath, Me., for swindling in making change, and was taken before the police court and bound over to the August term of the supreme court in $200. There are several charges against him. Complaints of swindling by ticket sellers and side-show men in making change have been numerous almost everywhere that Doris' and Forepaugh's circuses have exhibited this season, this city being the only exception so far as we are aware; there may have been similar cases here, but the only one reported was where the chief engineer of a lemonade stand, who received a silver dollar from a lady, returned change for a half-dollar only, and was driven off the grounds in consequence. The method of swindling seems to have been pretty much the same everywhere, and is what the fiskirs call "the doubling-back racket," which consists in so doubling up one or more bills of a number handed out in change that both ends of the doubled bills will be counted, a five-dollar bill thus doing duty for ten dollars. In dozens of cases the aggrieved parties have started in to make it hot for the swindlers, and in every instance reported the money has been recovered; but doubtless only a small proportion of the cases have been heard of, as many persons would submit to the loss of small sums rather than acknowledge that they had been taken in by so transparent a fraud.

Workmen were busy on Wednesday, the 21st inst., repairing the south mill-bridge, Mr. Smart's heavy black horse, valued at over $200, having broken through there in the morning on that day, to his serious detriment. Needed repairs were also being made on Liberty bridge, and were in a good state of forwardness.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records.

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and be understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers fastened together, form the body of the kaleidoscope. The next girl simply inserts the united reflectors into the pasteboard cover and then passes the octagonal pasteboard tube to her neighbor. Number three adjusts the brass ring which secures the glass disks in the end.

Between the disks or plates are placed the scraps of colored glass, the beads and various trinkets which tumble about as the kaleidoscope is revolved, and when reflected by the mirrors form themselves into ever-shifting, fantastic forms. The other young women are armed with hammers to break the colored glass into fragments. The colored glass is obtained from the waste scraps, purchased very cheap at stained glass manufactories.—Chicago Herald.

India's Reptiles and Venomous Vermin.

Poisonous reptiles are so numerous and so quick to improve every opportunity to enter one's house in India that no one can relax his watchfulness for a moment without being placed in danger of his life. For instance, no one would think of getting into bed without first looking for what may be and frequently is ensconced between the cool sheets. No one would spring out of bed in the night without first striking a match. Even the bath is not a luxury entirely devoid of danger. To-day a snake is found in one's shoe; to-morrow in the bath sponge there is a scorpion. The next day a centipede is found under the flower-stand, and the next there is a scorpion in the novel one has been reading, or a snake on a shelf or hidden away in one's napkin at dinner.—Foreign Letter.

The Roll of the Ocean Wave.

It has long been a question of doubt as to how far beneath the surface the roll of the ocean could be felt. A diver at work on the Oregon at a depth of 120 feet found it so heavy that he could not keep his position while making fast to a trunk which was to be hoisted up.—Philadelphia Call.

Strength of the French Army.

The following are the latest figures of the strength of the French army. They are taken from the book, "Avant la Bataille," which was published recently by the "Patriotic League," and has been a sort of nine days' wonder in Paris. There are eighteen corps d'armee, comprising 450 battalions of infantry, 153 squadrons of cavalry, and 324 batteries. The total effective force is said to be: Officers, 18,738; men, 671,292; horses, 200,093; guns, 1,944; carriages, 38,754.—Detroit Free Press.

Another Form of Code-Signaling.

Steno-telegraphy is one of the most interesting among the many methods devised for increasing the capacity of telegraph lines. It may be said to be another form of code-signaling in which an abbreviated sign may indicate a word or even a sentence. The manipulation on this system naturally requires long practice, which is one of its drawbacks, but the results obtained compare quite favorably with those of other fast systems.—Frank Leslie's.

The first mention of rice trade in print was a notice of its operations in Hungary in 1703.

A GREAT DANGER.

The late Bayard Taylor, who probably travelled more over the surface of the globe than any living man, claimed that he could not only tell the nationality of any persons whom he met, by the way in which they conversed, but could also tell the locality of the particular country from which they came. This reminds us of an incident which occurred to the writer in conversation with Mr. Taylor at one time. He said:

"I have seen every land and people, and do not hesitate to say that for energy, intensity and enterprise, the inhabitants of America exceed any on the face of the globe. Those qualities are their inheritance. Their ancestors landed upon a bleak coast in winter, with savages before them and an ocean behind, and they not only conquered the country, but even caused much of its barren soil to become richly productive. This energy, this intense push, is inherited by their descendants, and the people of America to-day are unequalled by any people in the world in the qualities above named. It is, perhaps, unfortunate that these qualities have been secured too often at the expense of health, and we find exhaustion of the physical powers, nervousness and debility more common among men and women of America than in any other locality on the face of the globe."

Mr. Taylor spoke from rich experience, and he spoke the truth.

The nervous, mental and physical exhaustion which is undergone must be replaced by blood-making, nerve-making and brain-making elements, or this state of depression will continue. Albumen in the system is precisely the element which is required; and beef, malt and hops will produce albumen quicker and in greater quantity than any other known combination. These elements have been happily combined in the great preparation, Hoptonic, and the revival of physical energies in thousands of people has fully proved its power and value.

These are not remarks given at random, but serious and earnest truths demanded by facts and confirmed by scientists. There are hundreds of men and women in their graves who might be alive and happy had they known the truths and acted upon them in time, and it is painful to think of the intense suffering, extensive sickness and vast number of deaths, all of which might have been avoided if people had only realized and known.

Restful Nights, Days Free From Torture

Await the rheumatic sufferer who resorts to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. That this benignant cordial and depurent is a far more reliable remedy than colchicum and other poisons used to expel the rheumatic virus from the blood, is a fact that experience has satisfactorily demonstrated. It also enjoys the advantage of being — unlike them — perfectly safe. With many persons a certain predisposition to rheumatism exists, which renders them liable to its attacks after exposure in wet weather, to currents of air changes of temperature, or to cold when the body is hot. Such persons should take a wine glass or two of the Bitters as soon as possible after incurring risk from the above causes, as this superb protective effectually nullifies the hurtful influence. For the functional derangements which accompany rheumatism, such as colic, spasms in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, imperfect digestion, &c., the Bitters is also a most useful remedy. It is only necessary in obstinate cases to use it with persistency.

It is well known that the inhabitants of many Eastern nations shield themselves against infectious disorders by wearing Aromatic Gums on the pit of the stomach. Their instincts are right, for strong permanent odors are antagonistic to the living germs which cause disease. For this reason Allcock's Porous Plasters, being composed of fragrant aromatic gums, are the best safeguard to wear on the pit of the stomach in cholera time, or in localities where sewer gas and malaria are found. They not only prevent infection, but will cure diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera and bowel complaints.

At Wilton, Me., July 20th, Thomas Vachon, a Frenchman thirty-two years old, and Charles Gould, twenty-two years old, were drowned in North pond. Vachon got beyond his depth, and called for help. Gould went to his aid, and in a struggle both sank. The bodies were recovered.

ANSWERED.

When shall we know each other, dear?
To-morrow—bye and bye—another year?
'Tis hard to wait!

When shall we know each other, love?
In age, when worthy lives shall prove—
Ah! that were late!

Shall it not be till one must kneel,
Shedding hot tears the other can not feel
And blaming fate?

Nay then! By quivering lip and dewy eye,
my own,
I know you now, as I am known;
My wife, my mate.

SAVAGES' SYSTEMS OF NUMERATION.

An Indian Tribe Which Can't Count Two —Deceiving an Explorer.

I don't know how far the Damaras themselves can count. The Chiquitos of America, a very low Indian tribe, can't count beyond one. For any larger sum than that their simple language used terms of comparison alone—as many as one's eyes, as many as a crow's toes, as many as the fingers on one hand, and so forth up to six or seven. The Tasmanians could get as far as two. Beyond that they stopped short. Their simple scheme of enumeration was merely this: One, two, a great many. The Australian black fellows in Queensland go a step farther; they reckon thus: "One, two, two-one (3), two-two (4), and after that they say "more than four," meaning thereby an indefinite number.

One South African tribe easily beats this rudimentary record and knows how to count up to ten. But eleven, both hands and one over, it regards as the ne plus ultra of human computation. When a British detachment once marched against it, the scouts brought in word to the elders of the tribe that an immense army was coming to fight them—"an immense army; eleven white soldiers!" On the other hand, some savages have really very advanced systems of enumeration; for example, the Tongans, whose native enumeration goes up as far as 100,000. Even this degree of proficiency, however, did not quite satisfy the devouring mathematical passion of Labillardiere, who asked them what they called ten times that number, and so on, until he had finally made them give him names for all the subsequent decimal stages, up even to one thousand billion.

The polite Tongans, anxious to oblige a benevolent and scientific gentleman in so unimportant a matter, proceeded at once to supply him with words, which the unsuspecting explorer immediately wrote down, and duly printed as mathematical terms in the accounts of his travels. But, alas for the duplicity and the unscrupulousness of savages! The supposed numerals in their higher ranges were really the rudest and naughtiest words in the Tongan language, with which, as missionaries subsequently discovered, the evil-disposed Polynesians had successfully imposed on the bland and childlike innocence of a scientific stranger. Such are the dangers of leading questions addressed in an imperfectly understood tongue to the wicked minds of the children of nature. The children of nature promptly respond in the precise spirit of an east-end Arab.—Cornhill Magazine.

Practical Joke of the Thracians.

The ancients used to indulge in practical jokes to a considerable extent; for instance, the Thracians, at their drinking parties, sometimes played a game of hanging. They fixed a round noose to the bough of a tree and placed underneath it a stone of such shape that it would easily turn round when any one stood on it. Then they drew lots, and he who drew the lot took a sickle in his hand, stood on a stone, and put his neck into the halter. The stone was kicked away, and if he could out himself down with the sickle, well and good, but if he was not quick enough, he was hanged outright.

The Doctrine of Practical Life.

It is as much success to kill a rabbit as it is to kill a deer. Let the young man remember that. For that is just what young men forget. The doctrine of practical life, of business, of bread-getting—not of book-writing—is, do the next thing! Indeed, that is what we are all doing. We are all pegs in the wrong holes, and restless. Shall we jump across God's infinite key-board at one bound; or shall we hop off one leg into the next vacant hole, and into the next, and thus toward our ambition? Let us hop, says practical genius.—E. Hough.

House Where Robert Burns Died.

The house in Dumfries in which Robert Burns died has been recently repaired in consequence of its dilapidated condition. For some reason or other the woodwork of the bedroom in which the poet breathed his last was removed. This has been secured by Mr. Eliot Stock, who proposes to bind in it the fac-similes of the first edition of "Burns' Poems" which he is about to publish, and of the surplus to make cabinets in which to issue the large-paper copies of the reprint.—Tribune.

Separating Aluminum from Corundum.

As an instance of the need of one portion of our country for every other portion, I may refer to corundum, which is now mined in North Carolina, near Ashville, to be sent to Lockport, N. Y., a distance, I should think, by rail, of 1,500 miles. Some young men in Cleveland have invented a process of separating aluminum from corundum, the latter containing 50 per cent. of aluminum, which, while the most generally distributed substance or element on the globe, has been hitherto inseparable in quanti-

At Newport, July 21st, Thomas Anderson, sixty-seven years old, cut his throat with a razor, nearly severing his windpipe and puncturing the jugular vein. He was in poor health and about to become a county charge. He is a Scotchman by birth, served in a regiment from New York in the Mexican war and in the Thirty-seventh New York during the war of the rebellion. He never asked for a pension.

New Hampshire Military.

The annual report of Adjutant General Ayling shows the strength of the New Hampshire National Guard to be 113 commissioned officers and 1097 enlisted men. General Wheeler in his report of the armory inspection states that the general results are exceedingly satisfactory, that commendable progress in essentials has been the rule, and that lack of financial support by the state is the only drawback to New Hampshire's possessing a force which in every unit shall be of ideal effectiveness so far as is possible with citizen soldiers.

New Hampshire Democratic Committee.

A meeting of the democratic state committee was held in Concord on the evening of the 21st inst., when addresses were delivered by Colonel Thomas Cogswell of Gilmanton, candidate for governor; Rev. Luther F. McKinney of Manchester, the candidate for Congress from the first district; Hon. Harry Bingham of Littleton, J. C. Moore of the Manchester Union, Colonel F. G. Noyes of Nashua and others, all of whom spoke hopefully of the outlook, and predicted the success of the party in the coming campaign. The second congressional democratic convention will be reconvened in Concord on Aug. 4th, to nominate a candidate to succeed Colonel John H. George of Concord, declined. The committee organized permanently, as follows:

Chairman, C. F. Stone of Laconia; secretary, L. B. Brown of Concord; treasurer, Hon. John M. Hill of Concord; executive committee—Rockingham county, Hon. F. Jones of Portsmouth; Strafford, Hon. J. F. Cloutman of Farmington; Belknap, C. N. Busiel of Laconia; Carroll, Hon. J. W. Sanborn of Wakefield; Merrimack, Hon. A. W. Salloway of Franklin; Hillsboro, Denis F. O'Connor of Manchester; Cheshire, C. F. Rowell of Keene; Sullivan, Hon. Harry Bingham of Littleton; Coos, Hon. I. W. Drew of Lancaster.

New Hampshire Patents.

The following list of patents granted July 20th, to citizens of New Hampshire, is specially reported by Franklin H. Hough, solicitor of American and foreign patents, 925 F street, N. W., Washington, D. C.:

No. 345,946. Charles S. Bacheldor, assignor of one-half to G. E. Kent, Pittsfeld, shuttle-operating mechanism for looms.

No. 345,035. G. S. Foster, Concord, barrel-hoop machine.

The whole number of patents granted to citizens of the United States for the week ending July 20th was 402.

Naval Intelligence.

Commander Henry L. Johnson, recently court martialled at the Charlestown navy yard, has been sentenced to suspension from rank and duty for five years on furlough pay, to hold his present number on the navy register during that time, and to be publicly reprimanded in general orders.

Defaulting Paymaster Watkins, of the U. S. S. Ossipee, who was court-martialled at Yokohama and sentenced to three years' imprisonment, arrived at San Francisco on the 21st inst.

Secretary Whitney, in a general order approving the finding of the court-martial in the case of Comdr. Henry L. Johnson, says: "It is apparent that Commander Johnson has reason to congratulate himself that he is not subjected to a sentence much more severe than the court saw fit to impose, but, while approving the sentence as it stands, I consider it my duty to admonish this officer that the comparative lenity of the sentence must not be regarded by him as in any manner condoning the offenses of which he has been found guilty, and which merit, and hereby receive, the emphatic condemnation and rebuke of the department."

The democratic New York World remarks that the official decapitation of a single one of the numerous offending office holders would exercise a more restraining influence over the heads of departments than a whole volume of written "orders." This is frank, but not half as candid as the other democratic paper which maintained that the president's order was intended to apply only to republicans who remained in office under the democratic administration. But who believes in this order? People by this time, who perhaps in the early part of the administration believed that the president was in earnest as to civil service reform, etc., now are in accord with the United States senator who after a call on the president was asked by one of the cabinet what he thought of Mr. Cleveland. "Well," replied the noble senator, "if he was not such a hypocrite he would be a grand good fellow."

The Leech Lake Indians, at Lake Winnebagoshish, near the source of the Missouri river in northern Minnesota, are said to be suffering severely, being near the point of starvation. If something is not done at once a revolt is expected.

In Marseilles, France, mobs attacked the offices of the royalist papers. The police interfered, and a fight ensued in which several on both sides were wounded.

It is reported that Sir John A. Macdonald is soon to resign the premiership of Canada.

Mrs. Getchell, formerly of Waterville, Me., now living at Los Angeles, California, was at the laying of the corner stone of Waterville college in 1820. She was then a young girl of sixteen. Now in her 82d year she was present at the ceremonies of laying the corner stone of a Baptist college at Los Angeles.

INVESTMENTS.

I am prepared to furnish the most desirable investments in County Bonds and Guaranteed Farm Mortgages, paying 6 and 7 per cent semi-annually. On Farm Mortgages, only from 25 to 33 per cent of the actual cash value of the property is loaned, and the title, location, quality of land and future prospects of the property are personally looked up. Farm Loans are, when negotiated by experienced and responsible parties, the most profitable security offered, especially for those having small sums to invest from time to time. The Loans I offer are First-Class in every respect. Principal and interest when due, paid here without expense to the holder.

I have these Loans in sums from $300 to $5,000.

THE KIRMESS.

The Kirmess on Thursday evening drew a great throng of people to Miss Morgan's seminary, including many persons from the beaches, and a generous sprinkling of naval cadets. From five to eight o'clock the patrons of the Kirmess, getting more and more numerous every moment, circulated through the rooms, admiring the flower pagoda, sampling the excellent coffee and delicious ices, partaking of genuine supper or purchasing some of the innumerable handsome and useful articles for sale at the booths, and at very reasonable prices. At eight o'clock the people flocked into the brightly lighted tent, and the scene after they were seated was worth the price of admission, without any further display; but for nearly two hours a dozen or so of pretty and graceful young ladies, in the costumes of various nations, entertained the company with a series of fancy dances, some of the figures being especially pleasing. At the close of the costume dances, general dancing was indulged in.

The Kirmess, including the tent entertainment, will be repeated this evening, and tickets can be procured at Grace's drug store during the day.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS.

The democratic caucus of ward one was held Thursday evening, and nominations made as follows:

For Aldermen, John E. Locke, William E. Littlefield and J. Frank Magrew;

Common Councilmen, Michael Crowley, F. J. Haddock, Daniel J. Casey, Charles M. Newton, Albion Littlefield;

Assessors, Moses H. Goodrich, William Ward, Henry R. Stoddard;

Overseer of the Poor, Charles H. Garrett.

BACK PAY.

The following letter from Hon. Martin A. Haynes to Col. Wm. H. Sise explains fully the position of the bill recently passed by the house, in regard to the payment of mechanics and laborers for over-work done on navy yards and other government works, under the eight-hour law which was passed during Grant's administration and up to a recent period was persistently violated by the several government departments:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22.

My Dear Colonel:—I have been in hopes, week from week, since receiving your favor of the 3d ult., that I should be able to report to you a favorable result on the bill in regard to the eight hour law, in which so many of our people are interested. The bill passed the house long ago, and has been favorably reported by the senate committee. It has been twice reached on senate calendar, but went over on opposition of Senator Cockrell. I expect to go home next week, but before I go will again see Senator Mahone, who has it in charge, and urge that he press it to a conclusion. You can so inform the men. We have just passed joint resolution fixing July 28th, for date of adjournment.

Very truly yours,
M. A. HAYNES.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

THURSDAY, July 22d.

Thomas Philbrick, for an assault, was sent to jail for thirty days, and ordered to pay costs, $6.90.

Daniel Bowen, a marine, for assaulting a police officer, was held in $100 for a higher court, and went to jail in default of sureties.

Mr. A. E. DeWolfe of Nashua, reporter for the Boston Globe, was in town Thursday, and gave us a call.

Ex-Gov. Frederick Smyth and wife, of Manchester, were in this city on Thursday, and on their way to the Wentworth to pass the night stopped for an hour at Lincoln hill, where the ex-governor was in years gone by many times a welcome guest of the late Hon. Frank W. Miller.

The Maine delegation to the National Grand Army Encampment at San Francisco passed through this city on Thursday, having with them the tattered battle flag presented to the gallant 2d Maine regiment by the loyal ladies of California the day before the first battle of Bull Run. There were about 125 persons in the party, including ladies.

A very interesting game of base ball was played at Stratham on Tuesday of this week between the South-end club of this city and a nine of Stratham, the game being won by the South-end boys.

Capt. Joe. Haley brought in from Elvin Newton at Lunging Island, Shoals, on Thursday, ten barrels of mackerel, which were sold in the local market at $6 per barrel.

W. J. Sampson & Co. are painting Main & Winchester's buildings in this city. On Thursday morning they commenced work on the exterior of the brick block on Bow street.

The 2d Christian society of Kittery had a lawn party Thursday evening, on the grounds of Mr. Nathan Junkins.

Dr. Benedict on Thursday went on a much-needed vacation, his health having suffered from long and close attention to his profession. Dr. Paine has the care of his patients during his absence.

George W. Rand of New York is making his annual visit at the Oceanic. Seventy-six pounds was the exact weight of a noble cod that George hauled in over the boat's side one day this week. He knows how to bait for the big fish. Hon. Roland G. Usher of Massachusetts is at the Oceanic.

William Clark, who forty years ago, under the town organization, was a night watchman, day officers being very scarce then, died Thursday morning, at the age of seventy-eight years.

Another work of art from the marble shops of Hon. John S. Treat has just been set up in the M. Parry Jones lot at the south cemetery, over the grave of the late Mrs. Jones. It is a fine Italian marble tablet, the whole about four feet in height, of gothic pattern, heavy columns, and panels, with rye and wheat cut on the face, and raised letters "M. L. J." underneath, and an inscription on the back.

Mr. Charles Cook of South Berwick, of Atkinson & Cook's minstrels, was in town to-day. He reports that Miss Maud Banks, daughter of General N. P. Banks, the "Bobbin Boy," will make her debut as a professional actress at Music hall, Portsmouth, August 23d, having signed a contract with the firm at York beach, where she is spending the summer. General Banks and many distinguished friends will be present. The debutante will probably appear either in "Ingomar" or "The Lady of Lyons."—Dover Democrat, July 20th.

It is stated that an appropriate reception will be extended to Rev. Eugene M. O'Callaghan of St. Mary's Catholic church of this city in September, on his return from his tour in Europe. Father O'Callaghan is travelling in company with Father D. W. Murphy of Dover and Father Barry of Concord.

Mr. Andrew P. Wendell and family went to Salisbury, Mass., on Thursday last, to pass the time until September in Mrs. Wendell's ancestral home.

Miss Martha S. Ricker of this city is spending several weeks on a visit to Mrs. George Purrington of Farmington, Me. Mrs. Purrington, formerly Miss Sarah Bailey, was for some years assistant teacher of the Portsmouth high school, and was one of the most successful and popular teachers the city has ever had.

"Harper's Magazine" for August is received by Moses Brothers and Mercer Goodrich, and is now ready for delivery to subscribers or for sale by the single number. An article of special interest is "The Transatlantic Captains," by C. A. Dougherty, illustrated with twenty-nine portraits of steamship captains, including one of Captain Redford W. Sargent of Kittery, commander of the American Line steamship Indiana, plying between Philadelphia and Liverpool.

The post-office at Mount Delight, Deerfield, this county, has been discontinued, and mail matter for that office will be sent to Deerfield Centre.

The members of the Veteran Association of the Strafford Guards, which organization was stationed at Fort Constitution, Newcastle, during the war of secession, on the 20th inst. received the following circular signed by I. B. Littlefield, president, and George A. Webster, secretary of the association: "The second reunion of the Strafford Guards Veteran Association will be held at Fort Constitution, on the 28th day of July, 1886. It is desirable that every veteran member of the Strafford Guards during the stay at Fort Constitution at the time of the rebellion should again assemble at the venerable and memorable spot to talk over events of the long ago, and enjoy a pleasant time together, and you are most earnestly invited to attend the reunion. Please send a reply to the secretary at once, that the association may know how many to make provision for."

E. Z. C. Judson, better known as "Ned Buntline," whose death was recently announced at the age of sixty-four years, led an adventurous life. His father was a Philadelphia lawyer, and he ran away from home when eleven years old, going "around the Horn" as cabin boy; at thirteen he was made a midshipman in the navy for gallant service. He took a leading part in the Astor place opera house riots, and was sent to the penitentiary for three years; from that time forth he never touched liquor. During the civil war he was chief of scouts, and had the rank of colonel. But it was as a writer of stories of adventure that he was best known, and it is said he received as high as $60,000 a year for the product of his pen. He will be personally remembered by many persons in this city as the manager of the company in which Buffalo Bill first appeared here, on the old Temple stage, with Texas Jack (J. B. Omohundro) and Madame Moriacchi, in a "Wild West" drama written by Buntline, and in which he had a prominent part.

Mr. Editor: The ugly bulge in the new wall of the road by the south cemetery is very unsightly, it projecting into the road at least six feet. There seems to be no reason for this divergence from a straight course. X.

Editor Chronicle: The toe-catching excrescences placed on the sidewalk of the north mill-bridge are not so thick as stated by another paper, which said they are two-inch planks; in reality they are but 7-8 boards, but as Mercutio would say, they are enough. Give us, Messrs. City Officials, a decent pathway across the bridge, so that pedestrians can get over without incurring so much danger of stubbing their toes and falling down; a clean, new sidewalk is what is needed, and the sooner it is laid the better it may be for the city, as well as for those who have to cross the bridge. FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!
ILSLEY & MOORE,
No. 3 Pleasant St.,
NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights in the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records. WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests. W. N. ILSLEY, W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.
DENIAL!
I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers ties from the sand or clay with which it was imparely mixed. You could throw it on top of the highest blast furnace on the globe and it would not melt at all. The new blast furnace at Lockport is to melt it by electricity. Yet even now they do not undertake to separate it, except from corundum.

Aluminum is a remarkable metal, not known till 1828; not handled till 1854; it gives tremendous tensile property to iron and copper, makes wrought iron adapt itself for castings, and a little of it has all the influence of gold in arts; by itself it looks like lead or tin, but it is hardly heavier than wood. The young men who invented this process have spent $30,000 at it.—George Alfred Townsend.

A Minister's Crushing Repartee.

I never heard of a finer piece of wit and repartee than was told me the other day by a minister from the south, involving two of his brother ministers, whom I will call White and Green. Rev. White had recently been honored with the title of D. D., and really deserved it, not only for his learning but for his piety, which was of a particularly marked and gentle type. Rev. Green was of a jealous disposition and something of an upstart, and on meeting one day with Rev. White undertook to belittle his new honors by telling him that the title of D. D. was conferred so indiscriminately and so frequently nowadays that it didn't amount to a great deal, anyway. If this indecorous and unbrotherly assault offended or nettled Rev. White it was not the least visible, and to this day no one knows whether he was even conscious of the crushing repartee which he then got off. He assented in the mildest and most dispassionate manner imaginable to what Rev. Green had said, and then added, in a sort of absent-minded may: "As you say, the title has got to be so common that a minister who hasn't got it isn't anybody at all."—Chicago Journal.

Conscientious Pupils in the School Room.

One of the most serious trials of the teacher, after all, is the painfully good and painfully literal boy. A reading class was at work in a Boston school not long ago, and the piece selected was an "Address to the Mummy in Belzoni's Museum, London." A pupil, one of those serious, conscientious fellows, was called upon to read the notes on the piece at the bottom of the page. In these occurred the name Cheops, and the pronunciation was spelled and inclosed in brackets. This is how he read it: "According to Herodotus, the great pyramid, so-called, was built by Cheops (pronounced Keops)." Perhaps it was another type of a child who was requested to give five important uses of rivers. This is one use he ingeniously manufactured: "When you lose a hat off in the water you can go out in a boat and get it."—Boston Budget.

The "Sink" of the San Lorenzo.

A veritable "sink," akin to that of the Humboldt river, in Nevada, is in process of formation at the mouth of the San Lorenzo in California. Where formerly a large stream cut its way through the shifting sands to the ocean, but a small stream, easily stepped over, can be seen. —Chicago Times.

Surest Tranquilizer of the Nerves.

The surest tranquilizer of the nerves is a medicine which remedies their supersensitiveness by invigorating them. Overtension of the nerves always weakens them. What they need, then, is a tonic, not a sedative. The latter is only useful when there is intense mental excitement and an immediate necessity exists for producing quietude of the brain. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters restores tranquility of the nerves by endowing them with the vigor requisite to bear, without being jarred or disturbed unhealthfully, the ordinary impressions produced through the media of sight, hearing and reflection. Nay, it does more than this—it enables them to sustain a degree of tension from mental application which they would be totally unable to endure without its assistance. Such, at least, in the irresistable conclusions to be drawn from the testimony of business and professional men, litterateurs, clergymen, and others who have tested the fortifying and reparative influence of this celebrated tonic and nerive.

BOUNTY-JUMPERS ON A TRANSPORT

Experience with a Ship Load of Men Who Had Enlisted for Pelf.

Money was plentiful and whisky entered through the steamer's ports, and the guards drove a profitable business in selling canteens full of whisky at $5 each. Promptly the hold was transformed into a floating hell. The air grew denser and denser with tobacco smoke. Drunken men staggered to and fro. They yelled and sang and danced, and then they fought and fought again. Rings were formed, and within them men pounded each other fiercely. They rolled on the slimy floor and howled and swore and bit and gouged, and the delighted spectators cheered them to redouble their efforts. Out of these fights others sprang into life, and from these still others. The noise was horrible. The wharf became crowded with men eager to know what was going on in the vessel.

A tug was sent for, and we were towed into the river, and there the anchors were dropped. Guards ran in on us and beat men with clubbed rifles, and were in turn attacked. We drove them out of the hold. The hatch at the head of the stairs was closed and locked. The recruits were maddened with whisky. Dozens of men ran amuck, striking every one they came to, and being struck and kicked and stamped on in return. The ventilation hatches were surrounded with stern-faced sentinels, who gazed into the gloom below and warned all of us not to try to get out by climbing through the hatches. Men sprang high in the air and clutched the hatch-railings, and had their hands smashed with musket-butts. Sentinels paced to and fro along the vessel's deck, and called loudly to all row boats to keep off or they would be fired upon. They did not intend that any fresh supplies of whisky should be brought to us. The prisoners in this floating hell were then told to "go it," and they went it.

We had been searched for arms before we entered the barracks at Albany. The more decent and quiet of us had no means of killing the drunken brutes who pressed on us. There was not a club, or a knife, or an iron bolt that we could lay our hands to. I fought and got licked; fought again and won, and for the third time faced my man, and got knocked stiff in two seconds. My face resembled a raw ham. It was a scene to make a devil howl with delight. The light grew dimmer and dimmer, and then the interior of the hold was dark, except such portions as were dimly lighted by the bars of light that shot through the ports, and that which was reflected down the hatches in square columns. We fought and howled and swore with rage and pain. Through it all the foul smell was overpowering. The deadly, penetrating odors of ulcerous men, who suffered from unnamable diseases, of stale tobacco smoke, the sickening fumes of dead whisky, and the smell of many unclean ruffians made the air heavy with a horrible stench. Many recruits lost their bounty money. They were robbed and beaten almost to death. Exhaustion quieted the devils down during the night, and then we slept on the filthy floor. There was not a bunk in the entire hold. The next morning we awoke with sore heads and faint stomachs, and, under orders, washed out the vast room as well as we could. —Frank Wilkeson in Chicago Times.

Teaching the Beaux Small Talk.

A certain young lady living in Washington earns a fine salary by teaching American small talk to those young attaches who are great beaux in society. Her plan is simple enough. Her pupil calls, is received, and converses with his hostess teacher for two hours. The talk is confined to drawing-room topics. This wicked young teacher taught six young fellows precisely the same round of pretty and witty phrases, and at a certain grand ball they were hovering around one of the youngest and most popular of the Washington girls, and each and every one was saying the same things to her.—Washington Cor. New Orleans Picayune.

Collection of Boot and Shoe Heels.

An old bachelor in Berlin has for many years past been engaged in forming a collection of boot and shoe heels, of which he has now over 1,000, which are exposed to view in a hadsome glass case, and numbered and catalogued with the dates and names of the original owners. The notion was first suggested to him on the 5th of June, 1861, when on a visit to the ancient castle of Kinast in company of a beautiful Swedish lady, who lost the heel off one of her boots. That particular boot heel became the first and most valued item in the entire collection.—Chicago Herald.

The Throat of the Bull Snake.

Professor Theodore Gill, of the Smithsonian Institution, says of the bull or pine snake, which is found in many parts of the country: "This reptile has become notorious on account of the sound it emits. It is very much like the low bellow of a bull, and to this the snake owes one of its names. This is caused by the fact that the epiglottis, an organ absent or represented only by a tubercle in all other serpents, is abnormally developed in the bull snake."—Chicago Ledger.

The Voice of the People.

The people, as a whole, seldom make mistakes, and the unanimous voice of praise which comes from those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, fully justifies the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine. Indeed, these very claims are based entirely on what the people say Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for them. Read the abundant evidence of its curative powers, and give it a fair, honest trial.

An Ancient and Honorable.

We saw recently in a New York paper the statement that but few of the horses that served with the army in the rebellion survived, though the mule was still largely exempt from the death roll. One of the veteran equines was brought home by the gallant Col. Patterson of the famous Second New Hampshire Volunteers. The horse is known as "Old Buck," named perhaps from its buck skin. Twenty-two years ago, in 1864, at Yorktown, Va., Patterson, who went out with the second as lieutenant of Company H in 1861 and was made a captain in 1862, having been further promoted to be a field officer, required a horse, and purchased Old Buck of Major John F. Langley of the 12th N. H. regiment. This horse was then called eleven years old, so that the acknowledged age is now thirty-three years. Major Langley promised Major Patterson to give him two hundred dollars for his horse if he would take him home to the Granite State, but when the horse reached Concord that sum was no price for the valuable animal in Col. Patterson's estimation. The horse has helped Marshal Patterson in his haying this season, and jogs about the streets of Concord with a reliability known only to the owner of an ancient and time-honored steed of this character.

But it is on state occasions that Old Buck comes to the front and goes through his best paces. General Patterson was a good fighter and a thorough soldier, and on occasions of processions at the capital he is often selected as the chief marshal, —and of course no better choice could be made. Then Old Buck, with renewed youth, comes prancing down Main street with all his war paint, "with soul (if we can borrow sufficient imagination for the simile) in arms and eager for the fray." To see Old Buck go up and down the line, to witness his wheel at the slightest hint from his rider, his quiet wink at the discharge of musketry, as if that was an old and familiar sound, to see him nod at the drum major as the column advances, as if he were saying, "Well, old boy, here we are again once more," and when at the head of the line, to behold the proud, martial bearing, the soldierlike step, even the switch of the tail, as if by regulation tactics, all this is better and far more enjoyable than the beholding of the entire number of the distinguished guests in carriages, judges, members of the legislature, and of the common council et id omne genus, which make up the lengthened personnel of a civic procession.

As we witnessed Old Buck on the day of the dedication of the Webster memorial statue, all the pomp and circumstance of the occasion seemed to be eclipsed by the revived memories of the heroic scenes through which the horse and his gallant rider had passed in war times. The steed is as familiarly known to the people in Concord as is the eagle on the State house or the clock on the Board of Trade building, and we doubt at times if he does not incite nearly as much admiration on parade days as does the brave but modest rider who bestrode him through so many hours in the campaigns of the civil war.

A Maine Romance.

A romantic tale comes from Bingham, a farming town near Bangor, Me. Mr. Abram Savage fell in love with pretty Miss Chadbourn, thirty-two years ago, and they became engaged, Savage going to the west soon after his engagement, to seek his fortune. He settled in Nevada, grew rich and prosperous, and apparently forgot his sweetheart, who first pined, then grew resentful, and finally married William Bassett out of spite. The union was happy at first, but Bassett went out to California, became faithless, and at last they separated by mutual agreement, and Mrs. Bassett opened a boarding house at Foxcroft. Mrs. Bassett made a visit to Bingham a little while ago, met a friend of the long-absent Savage, and told him all that had happened to her. This friend wrote to Savage, who had by this time become worth $1,000,000, and he immediately came back, proposed to his old sweetheart, was accepted, and last week the couple were married and started for Nevada to be happy ever after.

A canvass of Massachusetts republican papers show that Congressman Long is the favorite of a large majority as candidate for United States senator.

The poetical works of the late King Louis II, of Bavaria, are unique. Only one copy was printed by the king's order, and up to the time of his death it had been seen by no one except the king and the printer.

John Bard, who was chief engineer of the New York elevated railroads when they were built, has been in an insane asylum at Flushing, L. I., since 1882. He is worth fully a million dollars, and efforts are now made to procure his release on the ground of partial recovery.

Through the energetic efforts of Mr. Roswell P. Flower it really begins to look as if electric wires in New York would be put under ground.

The newspapers which have been investigating the increased cost of student life at Harvard, find that it is due more to the foolish indulgence of rich parents than to the circumstances. But the effect is the same, and poor boys are being crowded out because they cannot associate with their fellows on equal terms.

The bad feeling growing out of the enforcement of the prohibitory law in Atlanta, Georgia, continues to increase. Half a dozen "blind" saloons have already been started, one of them over the office of the chairman of the police commission. The stand taken by the city authorities is that the county had no right to issue the quart licenses under which a number of houses are now selling, and the arrest of such dealers has been ordered. The young men of the city have organized an anti-prohibition society, which has grips, signs, and pass words. They intend to fight the prohibitionists.

We clip the following item of news from an exchange of the 22d: "Mrs. Scranton, of Stoneham, Mass., was fatally bitten by a Newfoundland dog, and she is in a serious condition."

—"Didn't you see Flora Flummery, Belle? That was she that just went by with the St. Bernard." "Of course I saw her." "Why, what is the matter? I thought you were friends yet." "So we are, my dear child, but I cannot afford to speak on the street to a girl who wears a blue gown with a brown dog. It would be really too absurd, don't you think so yourself?"

—"Well, how did you like the sermon to-day?" "The sermon?" "You were at church, weren't you?" "Why, yes; certainly." "Then you can tell how you liked the sermon, I suppose? You heard it, didn't you?" "Heard it? Certainly not. I belong to the choir."

THE BEST

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. FROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, July 23d.

George Givens, a boy accused of larceny, was sentenced to thirty days in jail, the sentence on application of the boy's mother being changed to a term of three years at the State Industrial school.

Thomas Massey of Epping, a French Canadian, complained of for keeping spirituous liquors for sale, was held in $200 for the supreme court, and in default of sureties was committed to jail.

THE KIRMESS.

The second edition of the Kirmess, on Friday evening, was successful to an unanticipated degree, the attendance not being very greatly below that of the first evening, and much greater than was expected. The sale of fancy articles was lively, and the tent entertainment even better than on the first night, the addition of the "Three little maids from school"—three tiny damsels as pretty as little fairies—being an immense hit.

MARITIME NOTES.

The Cape Ann Advertiser says that some excitement was occasioned at the Atlantic Halibut Co.'s wharf in Gloucester on the 22d inst. by the crew of the schooner Mary S. Hontvet, of this port, "refusing to take out a fare of halibut which the skipper had sold to the company at six and four cents per lb. for white and gray. The crew victual the vessel, sharing with the owners on fifths, and claim a right to have a voice in disposing of their catch, and thought the price too low. The skipper claimed that he had got the best price he could, but the crew refused to take out the fish, and telegraphed to Portland for an offer."

It was reported on Friday that the schooner Agnes E. Downs, of this port, Levi Downs master, went into Boston the previous day with a $1000 fare of mackerel.

The seats of the ladies' room at the Boston & Maine railroad station in this city are being put in order at the Salem car shop. They will soon be returned, and doubtless present a more inviting appearance than before their removal.

Capt. J. Albert Sanborn of this city has an engagement with the La Anna Mining Co. to go to French Guiana, South America, to put a mine located there in operation. After fulfilling this engagement, he has a similar contract with the St. Elie Mining Co. in the same country. He expects to leave this city on the 14th of next month.

Mr. C. Morris Tredick of Boston, and family, are spending the vacation season in this city.

A farmer named Berry, living in Greenland near the Eastern railroad station, on Friday while hauling hay put his two children on top of the load, and while absent a moment the horses started to run, throwing off both the children, one of whom was very seriously injured, the other escaping with slight harm.

At a meeting of the democratic city committee, Friday evening, it was decided to hold the democratic caucus for the nomination of a candidate for mayor at the court house on Friday next, July 30th, between the hours of four and nine o'clock P. M.

William Joy of Salem, Mass., a seaman on the practice ship Jamestown, now at this navy yard, went to Dover on Wednesday of this week, in company with two shipmates, sampled the beverages sold in that city, was conducted to the police station, and on Thursday handed over $7.99 as the price of a night's lodging, etc. After settling his hotel bill he hunted through various saloons for his mates, until finally his attention was attracted by a bicycle standing near the post-office, and he thought he would take a ride. He mounted on one side, and dismounted much more quickly on the other; then the machine kicked up behind and stood him on his head, threw him in the gutter and sat upon him, barked his nose and his elbow, stood on his stomach, and otherwise maltreated him for a half hour, in presence of a large crowd of citizens who were afraid to interfere, until he was at length rescued by a policeman and stowed where bicycles came not. On Friday he made another contribution to the city treasury. He thinks Dover is no kind of a place for fun.

Israel Kimball, Esq., of Washington, D. C., chief of the tobacco division of the internal revenue bureau, is passing a few days in this city with his family.

Among the recent transfers of real estate in York county, as left for record in the office of the register of deeds, were the following: South Berwick—Moses Bennett to Oliver Boston, five acres of land for $100; John Thurell to Nathaniel B. Thurell, real estate for $200; Oliver Boston to Thomas L. Bennett, two lots of land for $145. Kennebunk—Alexander Grant of Malden, Mass., to Ezra A. Stevens, Jr., of the same place, real estate in Kennebunk for $1; E. A. Stevens, Jr., to Alexander Grant, real estate in Kennebunk for $1.

Rev. C. D. Hainer of this city is to pass his vacation at Mopang lake, fifty miles beyond Bar Harbor, where a cottage has been secured. Mr. Hainer will there meet his five brothers (all ministers, by the way,) and with them camp out a portion of the time, their families occupying the house. On Sunday, Aug. 1st, the five brothers will occupy one pulpit.—Journal.

Hon. Marcellus Eldredge and family, accompanied by Mr. Daniel E. Leavitt and Hon. John H. Broughton and their wives, started on a trip to the Moosehead lake region of Maine on Friday.

By the giving way of a scaffold in the barn of S. A. Hatch, at Greenland, several persons were hurt. The scaffold was seventeen feet from the floor, and Miss Ada Seavey had a rib broken and was internally injured by the fall; George A. Hatch, who also fell with the scaffold, was not hurt; H. S. Baketel had his back lamed by a blow from a board.

The barn swallows have built their nests under the eaves of the barns and stables at Kittery Point and other places along the seashore more numerously this year than ever before. Many of the farmers persist in destroying the nests, alleging that the birds soil the hay; seemingly they are ignorant of the fact that they devour immense numbers of flies and mosquitoes, which greatly annoy the stock. The cats, too, make away with many of the birds, particularly the young.

A person visiting that beautiful part of Kittery, "the Point," cannot fail to notice the many improvements made there recently. Several new houses have been built, old ones painted in esthetic colors, and their parterres adorned with pretty flowers.

The steamer James Sampson makes her trips from the landing at the foot of Daniel street to Newcastle, Kittery point and Pocahontas point according to programme. Capt. Duncan is attentive to his passengers, and understands the river; consequently his boat is well patronized. The round trip to Pocahontas point is one of the prettiest jaunts that can be taken.

"It is proposed in England to license the baby carriages. In this country the baby carriage has too much license now." So writes a cross-grained old-bachelor editor, who never tumbled over a baby-carriage of his own in the front entry.

Information reached Dover on the 22d inst. that Asam Niles of that city, driver of the band wagon of Forepaugh's circus, was fatally injured at Fredericton, New Brunswick, on the 21st, by being run over by a circus wagon.

—"Here is a list of books to take to the mountains or seaside," remarked Mr. Snooper, looking up from his paper, "and they have actually omitted the most important book of all." "What book have they omitted?" asked Mrs. Snooper. "The pocketbook."

—"Ah," said Jehokus, taking up his friend's baby, "he has got his mother's eyes—and my hair," he added, as the infant prodigy grabbed him by the foretop.

—A young man who was appointed conductor of a car in Cincinnati astonished one of his fellow conductors on the morning he was to take out his first car by the number of fares his punch marked. It was ascertained that he and his wife had amused themselves the evening before punching newspapers to make ornamental hangings for the china-closet.

—Husband—"A Wall street man, it is said, has just paid $34,000 for a seat in the stock exchange." Wife—"What dreadful extravagance! Considering the few hours each day that are given to business in the stock exchange, I should think that sensible people, rather than spend so much money, would prefer to stand up."

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records.

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and be understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers

JOSEPH P. MORSE,

Something for Boils and Carbuncles.

It is stated on good medical authority that the application of a solution of menthol in ether applied to carbuncles, boils or other inflammatory troubles, will, in many instances, entirely avert them. The solutions that have been used vary from 10 to 50 per cent. of menthol, and application is made by a camel's hair brush to the affected portion.—Chicago Journal.

Had Been an Anxious Hour.

He had been out for a day's fishing, and as he proudly displayed the contents of his basket to his wife, she exclaimed:

"Oh, John, aren't they beauties! But I've been so anxious for the past hour, dear!"

"Foolish little one!" said John, caressingly; "why, what could have happened to me?"

"Oh, I didn't worry about you love; but it grew so late I was afraid that before you got back to town the fish-markets would all be closed."—Harper's Bazar.

The Heroism of Remaining Unknown.

It is an old truth that sudden wealth means sudden vulgarity, and there is a great deal of sudden wealth in New York. When a fresh merchant prince can't get in his winter coal on Fifth avenue without hiring a brass band and gathering a crowd; when the most conservative belles support the society bulletins, and the mere going to church Sunday is converted into a torch light procession and parade on the avenue, with relays of shorthand costume reporters and lightning sketch artists, you can see how even domesticity and devotion are matters of public opinion. If I were a rector in some quiet church corner, and nothing can be more jolly, I would preach a series of sermons on the heroism of never being heard of.

There was a man pointed out on Wall street the other day as great but unsuccessful to a group of brokers, and somebody instantly echoed the feeling of the company by saying: "Why, he must be modest." He was. Our pharisees, it is true, do not make long prayers on the street corners, but they hire a hall and send out complimentaries all the same. —Nim Crinkle's New York Letter.

Posthumous Poem by Victor Hugo.

Under the title "La Fin de Satan" a posthumous poem by Victor Hugo recently appeared in Paris. The work is described as partly philosophical and partly religious. The theme is the entry of Christ into Jerusalem, the scene in the prætorium and the release of Barabbas. Barabbas wanders about Jerusalem and at nightfall finds himself in Golgotha before the cross, when, overcome by a feeling of awe at the magnitude of the sacrifice, he soliloquizes in a passage described as of surpassing power and beauty.—Chicago Journal.

A GREAT DANGER.

The late Bayard Taylor, who probably travelled more over the surface of the globe than any living man, claimed that he could not only tell the nationality of any persons whom he met, by the way in which they conversed, but could also tell the locality of the particular country from which they came. This reminds us of an incident which occurred to the writer in conversation with Mr. Taylor at one time. He said:

"I have seen every land and people, and do not hesitate to say that for energy, intensity and enterprise, the inhabitants of America exceed any on the face of the globe. These qualities are their inheritance. Their ancestors landed upon a bleak coast in winter, with savages before them and an ocean behind, and ever not only conquered the country, but even caused much of its barren soil to become richly productive. This energy, this intense push, is inherited by their descendants, and the people of America to-day are unequalled by any people in the world in the qualities above named. It is, perhaps, unfortunate that these qualities have been secured too often at the expense of health, and we find exhaustion of the physical powers, nervousness and debility more common among men and women of America than in any other locality on the face of the globe."

Mr. Taylor spoke from rich experience, and he spoke the truth.

The nervous, mental and physical exhaustion which is underground must be replaced by blood making, nerve-making and brain-making elements, or this state of depression will continue. Albumen in the system is precisely the element which is required; and beef, malt and hops will produce albumen quicker and in greater quantity than any other known combination. These elements have been happily combined in the great preparation, Hoplonic, and the revival of physical energies in thousands of people has fully proven its power and value.

These are not remarks given at random, but serious and earnest truths demanded by facts and confirmed by scientists. There are hundreds of men and women in their graves who might be alive and happy had they known the truths and acted upon them in time, and it is painful to think of the intense suffering, extensive sickness and vast number of deaths, all of which might have been avoided if people had only realized and known.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

Michael Tobin and Levi Jewett, two of the crew of the Gloucester schooner Lizzie J. Greenleaf, got astray from the vessel on the Grand banks while attending trawls on July 9th, and after being in their dory four days were picked up when almost dead by a French barque, and landed at St. Pierre, Miquelon.

William Hunter, second assistant secretary of state, and the oldest official in continuous service in the United States, died in Washington on the 22d inst. of a complication of diseases incident to his age.

More cases of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, &c., can be cured in less time, with less medicine, and for less money, by using Carter's Little Liver Pills, than by any other means.

All the striking soft-coal miners in the mountain district near Huntington, Pa., numbering about 1500, resumed work at the old rate of wages on the 21st inst., after being idle six months.

James Pyle's Pearline for all uses in kitchen as well as the laundry, in place of soap, is fast growing in favor. Be sure and take none of the dangerous imitations having the same outward appearance, or with similar sounding names. Nothing answers like Pearline.

It is reported that Mr. Manning's health is so much improved that he will be able to resume his duties as secretary of the treasury in October.

Not a particle of calomel, nor any other deleterious substance, enters into the composition of Ayer's Pills. On the contrary, this medicine is carefully compounded from the curative properties of purely vegetable substances. Try it.

Mrs. Fannie Crocker, wife of Capt. Niles Crocker of Rockland, Me., hung herself July 22d at the house of Mrs. George Stephens of Dresden Mills, where she was visiting.

Pain in the back is caused by sore and tired muscles. A Hop Plaster gives instant relief. 25c.

On our 5th page to-day will be found a striking and instructive illustration of the comparative worth of the various kinds of baking powders now in the market.

Why buy a doubtful thing when the Hop Plaster is the strongest and best porous plaster made. 25c.

The 19th annual convention of Young Men's Christian Associations and Evangelical churches of New Hampshire will be held in Dover from Sept. 30th to Oct. 3d, inclusive of both dates.

If you wish to restore the bloom to your wasted cheek, and so improve your health that plumpness and strength will succeed emaciation and debility, purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This remedy will benefit you more surely and speedily than any other.

Thomas Carey of Charlestown, Mass., fell from the train carrying G. A. R. delegates from Boston to San Francisco, at Albany, N. Y., July 22d, and went through a bridge into the river; drowning before a boat could reach him.

I have been a Hay Fever sufferer for three years: have often heard Ely's Cream Balm spoken of in the highest terms; did not take much stock in it because of the many quack medicines. A friend persuaded me to try the Balm, and I did so with marvellous success.—P. S. Geer, Syracuse, N. Y.

Mattie Randall, fifteen years old, was found dead near her home in Morris, Conn., July 22d, with a terrible gunshot wound in her breast. A gun, said to belong to a young man named Charles Lockwood, who has been paying marked attentions to the girl, was found near her body.

Every woman who suffers from Sick Headache, and who dislikes to take bitter doses, should try Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are the easiest of all medicines to take. A positive cure for the above distressing complaint; give prompt relief in Dyspepsia and Indigestion; prevent and cure Constipation and Piles. As easy to take as sugar. Only one pill a dose. 40 in a vial. Price 25 cents. If you try them you will not be without them.

Citizens of Helena, Montana, are arming against the threatened invasion of Callesfel Indians.

"I have no appetite," complains many a sufferer. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives an appetite, and enables the stomach to perform its duty.

BENTON'S HAIR GROWER.

All who are BALD, all who are becoming BALD, all who do not want to be BALD, all who are troubled with DANDRUFF, or ITCHING of the scalp; should use Benton's Hair Grower. EIGHTY PER CENT of those using it have grown hair. It never fails to stop the hair from falling. Through sickness and fevers the hair sometimes falls off in a short time, and although the person may have remained bald for years, if you use Benton's Hair Grower according to directions you are sure of a growth of hair. In hundreds of cases we have produced a good growth of Hair on those who have been bald and glazed for years, we have fully substantiated the following facts:

We grow Hair in 80 cases out of 100, no matter how long bald.

Unlike other preparations, it contains no sugar of lead, or vegetable or mineral poisons.

It is a specific for falling hair, dandruff, and itching of the scalp.

DOUBLE AND TRIPLE STRENGTH.

When the skin is very tough and hard, and the follicle is apparently (through disease) closed, the single strength will sometimes fail to reach the papilla; in such cases the double or triple strength should be used in connection with the single, using them alternately.

Price, Single strength $1.00; Double strength $2.00; Triple strength $3.00. If your druggists have not got it we will send it prepaid on receipt of price. BENTON HAIR GROWER CO., Cleveland, O.

A Fool and His Money Soon Part.

How true some of those old sayings are. A friend of mine paid a travelling quack $50 to cure him of scrofula, from which he had suffered two years. He gave him a bottle of stuff which only aggravated the disease. When he went to consult him the second time, the quack had left for parts unknown. Upon learning the circumstances I recommended Sulphur Bitters. Five bottles cured him.—Editor Journal and Courier.

In the divorce court at London, July 23d, the case of Crawford against Crawford and Dilke was given to the jury, who returned a verdict finding Mrs. Crawford guilty of adultery with Sir Charles Dilke, and granting Mr. Crawford a divorce. The jury were absent twenty minutes only. Sir Charles Dilke has ordered the sale of his house at Chelsea; he will leave England, and reside permanently in the south of France. The rehearing of the case was evidently only an attempt to whitewash Dilke.

THE ERUPTION OF ETNA.

Extract from a Private Letter Written by a Bold Sight-Seer.

You have probably heard of the eruption of Etna which is going on. I left Palermo Saturday, and came here to see it. We left here about 3 o'clock (six of us, English) Saturday afternoon, and drove to Nicolosi, whihh we reached about 5 o'clock, and got mules and went up to the scene. There were crowds of people going there, but we took a different road and went up much higher than the general crowd. We had a guide with us, and after about three hours' climbing we got to within a couple of miles of the crater itself. It is at the side of Etna, you know, not near the top, that this eruption has broken out, and we got on to a bit of high ground overlooking the whole scene. It was still daylight when we got up there, so that we saw the whole thing by daylight. We then settled ourselves down to dinner, which we had brought with us from Catania, and of course it was soon dark, and here we were comfortably 'feeding' before the most glorious and indescribable sight I ever saw in my life.

It is perfectly impossible to describe it, as no one can have any conception of what it is like until they saw it, and also until they see it from where we did, which was on high ground overlooking nearly the whole of it. At the top is this enormous crater throwing out flames and throwing up stones hundreds of yards, with a continual roar like any number of battles going on, and just below is another mouth from which the lava comes, traveling at a tremendous pace. It divides into several streams and follows the valleys. Now imagine from where we were that night, with our backs to Catania, what we saw. On the right this enormous flame going hundreds of feet into the air, making the whole sky bright red, and all down past us from our right and extending down miles to the left streams of red-hot lava moving downward in a mass for miles, and looking like an enormous sea of red-hot coke. The width across the lava where we were was, perhaps, three or four miles, and it started about two miles above us and flowed some four miles or so below us, so you must imagine a sea of angry, red-hot lava five or six miles long and three or four wide and about thirty or forty feet deep, but all of it bright red. You can judge whether it was a sight worth seeing. I would not have missed it for worlds.

The lava is not liquid, as many people suppose, but consists of many millions of large and small blocks of rocky-looking stuff rolling onward. We saw one huge rock of old lava standing in the middle of the stream of lava, which was divided by it and ran around it; the rock was about the size of, say, Quidenham church, and this rock suddenly split into two parts, the smaller half crumbled up, and the other half was carried bodily down with the stream slowly and steadily. We watched it until we left, and it moved about three-quarters of a mile in about three quarters of an hour. We waited there until nearly midnight, as we could not venture down until the moon got up, and then we reluctantly left this magnificent sight, which, as I tell you, no description can give you any idea of. As we went up we had all gone into a little house to see it, and walked round it, and thought it was unpleasantly close to the lava. Well, as we came down this house was in flames and caught by the stream. In many places we had to take different paths, so quickly had the lava spread as it came down, and from below it is awful (quite close to it) to see this mass thirty or forty feet high coming slowly toward you.

I brought a piece of red-hot lava down with me, which the guide got hold of for me, as I could not get it myself; it was so fearfully hot I could not go close enough. We put wire round it and I carried it down on the end of my stick. In fact, we each brought a bit down, and also some ashes or cinders which rained down on us whenever the wind was our way. We got back to Cantania at about 4:15 a. m. We were up near the crater nearly four hours. We saw other people go up to see the lower end of the lava, stay there a few minutes and go down again; but the way to do it is to go right high up, arriving by daylight, and then stay there to see it by night and watch the changes going on. It was glorious. —Cantania Cor. London Times.

ONE WHO KNOWS NOSES

Writes Pointedly About the Different Kinds of Facial Protuberances.

A man's nose or a woman's nose is something of which the owner is sensitive. The nose is geographically situated in the middle of the face, between and below the eyes, and its base is a level with the bottom of the ears. It is a very handy part of the physical make-up, and it is indispensable. Considerable attention is paid to this all-important member, too, and it is very particular and hard to please. Thousands of men are employed in southwestern France and other countries in making delicate perfumes just to please this particular member of the body.

No two noses are alike. There is always some distinguishing mark or outline, yet the noses of the world are classified into four general divisions, the Roman, Grecian, equiline, and pug. An inch on a man's nose is a good deal, too, and has considerable to do with the owner's dignity of expression, and has something to say about the qualites of mind to be found in the owner. Whatever shaped nose is planted on our face, we have to wear it. It is decidedly not like

The people, as a whole, seldom make mistakes, and the unanimous voice of praise which comes from those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, fully justifies the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine. NEW YORK LETTER.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

The Son of Portsmouth Exonnat, Dr. Peduzzi—Pleasant Memories of Fifty Years Ago, in Portsmouth—Good Authorities for the Wage-Workers—Gladstone, Bright and Beecher—The Liquor Interest Working Its Own Overthrow.

NEW YORK, July 23d, 1886.

Curiously, in a three-minutes' drive on an avenue in Brooklyn one encounters the drug stores of Peduzzi, Cutts, Barnabee and Annable. We have believed that Portsmouth had a sort of proprietorship in these names. Our friend, Dr. George Peduzzi, whose grand-father so many of us old boys so sweetly recall, continues the same enthusiastic aeronaut. He thinks that of the conditions of successful air-navigation are near at hand, and that electricity and aluminium will be the chief agents in all future ballooning. If it is accomplished within the coming ten years, it will appear to the men whose "three score and ten" commenced in the eighteen hundred and twenties, that they were born, had lived, and would probably die at about the right time. Much had been brought about before that period; but what vast strides have been made in it. And yet, all of change is not improvement. The hideous locomotive has supplanted that charming old relic, the stage coach—and we believe that no Portsmouth man's life can be thoroughly rounded if he has not been driven to Boston by one of those Monarchs of the Whip, over roads, and through towns and villages, nowhere else known. And what monarchs, indeed, were the old drivers! Lordly, and yet courtly—plucky and trusty—oracles in all worth knowing, yet with ears wide open, and lips chirily closed—talked little, but to a purpose—their stories always fitted to the auditor and occasion. I was seated on the box of one of those chariots—for they did seem like chariots fifty years ago—while Mr. Annable was blacking his boots before taking the reins for the day's journey. He had neglected to black the heels, and I told him of it. "Ah, my boy," said he, "a good Christian never looks behind him!"

And there are other changes—the handiwork of the locomotive—that cannot be reckoned as improvement. Fifty years ago, from Spring Hill to South Mill the whole water-line was a scene of active, busy thrift; vessels of all sizes and pursuits lining the wharfs, two and three abreast, warehouses full and filling, trucks and drays plying the streets all the year around, grocers and chandlers made happy in selling honest goods in an honest way. What it is at this time, goes without saying.

New York city carries the honor today of finding the first convictions of an anarchist and a boycotter. There have been volumes written upon the relations of the wage-workers and their employers. I think that the causes and cures can be stated in a score of words; the causes being the cupidity of capital and the stupidity of labor. The remedies are contained in the speech of Chauncey Depew, president of the New York Central railroad, who employs more men than any other man in the country, and in the recent charge of Justice Barrett of the Supreme court of this city. Depew says to Capital, "Go down, and among your men find their value and needs to you and them—and pay them commensurately." Justice Barrett says, among other good teaching to the Workingmen, "Organise, in every way calculated to advance your interests; and, in the conduct of your organizations, employ and heed the counsel of one or more honorable lawyers, who will wisely advise you to a lawful and prudent management."

The cost, in treasure and suffering, of the recent tie-up of the Third Avenue railroad in this city, to the company, to the men and their families, and to the public, can hardly be computed, and yet every dollar and every moment of discomfort could have been saved to all of them, if the cool judgment of Depew and Barrett had prevailed. At the beginning of the year, the friendship of the public was, to a man, behind the men; and at that time they did secure to themselves all that they demanded. To-day they have lost that entire support, and have placed themselves in a position almost defenceless against the invasions of their employers, that have already commenced. This is neither fair nor desirable. The blunders of the men, that have been so fatal to them, are inseparable from the guidance of an association of so crude and inexperienced an element. Success and power are hazardous factors, and need an intense conservation in their control. The Third Avenue company was inimical to the association to which their men belonged, and they meant to crush it. By the employment of mean and unworthy measures, they did crush it. The men, elated by a success six months previous, made new and unwise demands; ordered needless and fruitless strikes; forfeited the confidence and good feeling of the people, and are at this time a thoroughly defeated class. The future is full of result to them and their fellows in the country. The action of the Cleveland convention, and the general acquiescence in it, and in the administration of Mr. Powderly, are encouraging indications that better judgment and methods are to obtain with them. When this happens, a great power will be theirs; and if given the right direction—will direct!

The other two issues—Home Rule in England, and Anti-Rum Rule in America, have a partisan, for or against, in every man, and most of women in our three big cities. The recent elections in England will terminate either in a wise settlement of the problem, or in an increased agitation dangerous to all factions. It becomes difficult for the layman in political economy to find judgment, when the high priests are at such variance. The names of Gladstone and Bright stand for all that is best in British politics, and every friend of Great Britian will sincerely lament their difference. Our dear Bro. Beecher is a most uncertain layman, and is recently indulging in another coploussness. He leaves Brooklyn, choked with tremendous utterances of Home Rule, and upon arriving abroad is "overcome" upon hearing Gladstone. He is now perched "upon the fence," and is "overcome" with a stolid silence, born of the Lecture Bureau. It would work a great unfairness to subject the modern dominies—who have $500 for a night, ride bicyles through Great Britian for three months, umpire for championships in skating rinks, apologise for excise commissioners and attend to other worldly pursuits—to the hard religious ethics of our once saintly Elder Marks of our once Old South.

If the liquor interest, now so large and powerful, wishes its own destruction, it is now taking the right measures to bring it about. The persistent violation of a wise and wholesome excise law—a law that protects it better than it does the community; the impudent encroachment of the rum-shops into localities, where such encroachment is needless and offensive; the threats of a further political action and control, making the courts, police, excise commissioners, and the mayors its facile instruments, have stirred the best elements of both parties to a deep and determined resolve for its defeat. G.

While Louis E. Becker, watchman of the American Wood Pulp company's factory at Secaucus, N. S., was carrying a can of dynamite to the company's stores, he stumbled and fell. A deafening explosion followed, and a portion of the building was carried away. Becker was blown to atoms, fragments of the remains being found 100 yards away.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Unknown to Others

THE BEST

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with Scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It is my opinion that this medicine is the best blood of the day." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and unable to obtain relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles, am greatly benefited, and believe it to be the best of blood purifiers." R. Harris, Creel City, Ramsey Co., Dakota, writes: "I have been an intense sufferer, with Dyspepsia, for the past three years. Six months ago I began to use

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

MAN DROWNED.

A boat containing James Mates of this city, and Hans Carlson and three other seamen of the U. S. S. Constellation, was capsized about 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the pool near Marston's island, on the Little Harbor branch of the river, and Carlson was drowned. The others were rescued by Albert Fernald, George A. Mudge and others, Mates being nearly dead when picked up.

MARITIME NOTES.

The cat-boat Psyche, Capt. C. Gilman, arrived at Fernald's wharf last Friday afternoon from Lowell, Mass. She reports that the canal locks at Lowell, on her passage through, were opened for the first time in eighteen months, and those at Lawrence had not been opened for more than half that period. This is probably the first direct communication with Lowell entirely by water for many years. The boat's company consisted of the captain, mate and one passenger.

The new schooner Clara B. Kennard, Capt. James B. Freeman, arrived at this port on Saturday at noon from North Weymouth, Mass., where she was built, and proceeded up the river to load with bricks for Boston. She was rigged on the stocks, and was ready for sea when launched; she is quite a large vessel for a bricker, is painted white, and looks well. She was followed in by the old Triton, which was commanded many years by Capt. Freeman, and in which he made many highly successful trips; the contrast in the appearance of the two vessels was quite striking. The brickers Gurnet and J. Chester Wood also arrived on Saturday, from Boston.

The steamer Mystic, Capt. Trefethen, went to the Shoals on Sunday with the mail and papers, and as many passengers as she could conveniently carry.

Steamer James Sampson, Captain Duncan, went to Kittery Point on Sunday with a good number of passengers.

During the delightful weather of Sunday the boats in the harbor were most generally employed.

The Rhode Island prohibitory law is being felt very plainly by the breweries in this city.

The 10:55 A. M. train from Boston, Saturday, consisted of a baggage car, four Pullman cars and four ordinary passenger coaches; the engine drawing it was taken off on account of a hot journal, and the engine Newington put on to haul it to Portland. The train was followed at short intervals by two others, one for Portland and the other for North Conway.

The guests at the Wentworth are unanimous in their expressions as to the very excellent manner in which the hotel is managed by Mr. Hill. The hotel in its table and general arrangements is pronounced all that could be desired. The number of guests this season has been in excess of the number at corresponding dates of previous years.

Mr. George Watkins of the New York Sun is in town on his usual summer vacation.

It is rumored that in case of the reelection of the present municipal government Thomas Entwistle is likely to be appointed city marshal and Joseph B. Clarke an assistant, these gentlemen having previously been proved very efficient officers.

Over 200 shares of Eastern railroad stock sold at 88 1-2 in Boston on Saturday, and over 100 at 89. Portland, Saco & Portsmouth stock brought 129, and 4 1-2 per cent bonds of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway road brought 104 1-2.

Mrs. Douglas Olive of Cambridgeport, Mass., formerly Miss Marion Ricker of this city, is at hotel Wingate for a stay of several weeks, with two children and nurse.

A fine specimen of that beautiful plant, the night-blooming cereus, bearing two fully-blown flowers, was to be seen last Saturday evening at the house of Mr. Donold Macdonald on Edward street, and was greatly admired. The stalks bear several other buds, which bid fair to arrive at perfection within six weeks.

Mr. Howard D. Lowd, for many years past order clerk with Tiffany & Co., New York, arrived in this city Saturday on a brief visit to his relatives and friends here.

The Pepperell Manufacturing Co. at Biddeford pays a dividend of $30 a share, and the Laconia Co. pays $12 a share, Aug. 2d.

Burglars broke into the store of Emery & Batchelder, tin and hardware dealers at Sanford, early in the morning on the 23d inst., and blew the safe open, completely destroying it. The thieves, evidently frightened, decamped without securing any booty.

The Boston Transcript of Friday last said: "The departure of a novel conveyance from Hancock street yesterday attracted considerable attention. Evangelist Pierson, accompanied by his wife and a number of other Christian workers, started for Old Orchard in his spacious gospel carriage, which contains a cabinet organ, writing desk, easy chair, seats for a score of people, and a portable platform for speaking. A cornet soloist is included in the party. Upon the front of the carriage is the word 'Go' in gilded letters, indicating the motive of the trip —'Go preach My gospel.' It is proposed to hold services in the various cities and towns through which the gospel carriage passes."

What Does He Mean?

Mr. Cutting, an American citizen and editor of a paper at El Paso, Texas, having crossed the Mexican side was arrested and imprisoned for something he had printed in his paper which displeased the Mexicans. It is stated that Secretary Bayard has sent to the Mexican government a peremptory demand for Mr. Cutting's release. Can it be possible that Mr. Bayard has so far forgotten his previous custom as to have acted in this matter without first asking permission of the Mexican minister?

The Payne Case.

A majority of the senators have gone upon the record against the investigation as to the means by which Payne upset the democratic programme, and became elected a senator. The ground is that there is not seen before the investigators any evidence that Senator Payne by his own act bribed any one to vote for him. No one supposes that he did this. Again, the honest democrats were not bribed to vote in the legislature, but in the caucus, for which there is no punishment by the senate. Some of the republicans seem to regard the Payne purchase as a crime against the democratic party and not against the election laws, and to have voted accordingly.

The Recent Order as to Office Holders.

The last mugwump who has had, up to now, implicit confidence in the political integrity of Mr. Cleveland, will be puzzled at the way the democratic state convention in Vermont on the 22d inst. was manipulated by the federal office-holders, notwithstanding the recent order of the president. All the leading government officials of the state, excepting Smalley, served as field officers; with postmasters, the internal revenue collector and deputies, postoffice inspectors, Burlington custom house officers and other federal office-holders in attendance as delegates.

The democracy of the Green Mountain state have little else to do than to enjoy the offices and run the convention. The office-holders had it all their own way as to resolutions, which expressed satisfaction with the administration. No half-halting generalities were on the list. No spirit of criticism was "fostered," but the one hundred office-holders who constituted a very large proportion of the assembled democracy gave the key note to the other delegates, who were kept well in hand by Chairman Hiram Atkins, and all with one accord carried the flag and kept step to the music of Cleveland and Civil Service Reform!

The resolutions of course favor a license law, and any other impossible enactment at the hands of the Vermont democracy. The convention in its composition was either a rebuke to the president for interfering with the vested rights of democratic politicians, or else the delegates were previously notified by Hiram that the president was in favor of his recent order as to office-holders but opposed to its observance! This convention has exceeded all others in Vermont in the number of office-holders under the federal government who were delegates. But these men can now afford to attend conventions, and if the administration is to be endorsed it is quite necessary that they should be on hand.

Mrs. Josephine Omohundro, widow of the famous scout J. B. Omohundro, better known as Texas Jack, died at her residence in Eastern Billerica, Mass., July 23d, aged forty-three years. She was born in Milan, Italy, and as "the peerless Morlacchi" achieved the highest honors as a danseuse and pantomimist in the leading theatres of Europe. She was the leading actress in the dramatic company in which Buffalo Bill and Texas Jack first appeared on the stage, under the management of Ned Buntline, who also died a few days ago.

Rev. Johannes Van Den Brock, pastor of the Armenian Holland church of Paterson, N. J., has been arrested on a warrant issued for mayhem, alleged to have been committed on John Hartman, one of the pastor's flock who had discovered Van Den Brock in suspicious relations with a certain widow. The arrest was made in the basement of the house where the woman lived.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records.

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers a hat, which, if it does not suit us, can be thrown aside. The nose is mighty and will prevail, and it will do no one any good to attempt to cut off his nose to spite his face.

There is a certain individuality about the nose which makes itself felt. The Grecian nose is the ideal nose, clear cut with a delicately and perfectly chiseled nostrils, which indicate refinement and symmetry of intellect. We find this nose on Venus, Apollo, Mercury, and other Greek idealizations. Alexander the Great was a Greek, and wore a Grecian nose with Roman modifications. If you are a student of history, you will remember that Alexander was an aggressive man; he had the independence to introduce innovations, to depart from precedent and the established policy of Greece and wage aggressive wars in foreign countries to extend the domination of his country. His nasal modification was the work of aggression in the upper part.

The Roman nose comes next; it is not so well chiseled and finished at the end, and indicates that the owner loved knowledge, not for its own sake, but for the valuable assistance it gave in securing power. Aggression and self-defense are well marked, and are really the characteristics of the Roman nose. Julius Cæsar had such a nose, and he used it as a moral battering-ram—"but Cæsar was ambitious."

I admire a large nose, and a large Roman nose indicates push and enterprise. Look at the men who wore such a nose. There were Washington, Napoleon and Lincoln, all wearing such an agressive nose. The battle of Waterloo was a battle of noses, Napoleon's Roman nose versus Wellington's nose, which indicated intellectual combination and perseverance. Napoleon's big nose was able to stand the shocks of that famous battle, but Wellington's synthetical nose sniffed the victory from afar, and kept the Iron Duke holding out until Blucher came and saved the day. So you see what an important part the nasal appendage plays.

You will rarely find intellectual strength in the head whose frontispiece is a low-bridged nose. The servility of the African is read in his low-bridged nose with turned up end. Weakness of intellect lies there, as in a child, with its soft, cunning little nose. The projection of the end of the nose indicates the interrogating mind and conversation. You will find it in the inquisitive child generally.

The equiline nose you will find in the Hebrews, and it has signs of defense, protection and aggression. The breadth indicates the love of money-getting. It is a form of nose which was found in the ancient Assyrians. I could go on and name great men whose characteristics are well known and you would find that the nose was the tale-bearer of the workings of the mind.—"Venerable Sage" in Toledo Blade.

ON THE INCREASE.

(From the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal.)

The greed of distillers has urged them to push their distillations so as to get as much whiskey from the grain as possible. From the old-time standard of one gallon and a half they have increased the product to three, then to four, and some distillers boast of getting even five gallons of whiskey from a bushel of grain. This increased product is obtained by raising the temperature until both the volatile and the essential oils from destructive distillation are thrown off, and consequently an increased percentage of fusel oils (deadly poison) is found mixed with the whiskey and cannot easily be gotten rid of. This fusel oil will seriously damage the stomach of those who drink it; or if the stomach escape, this poison affects the kidneys, producing glandular degeneration, a form of Bright's disease, which is to-day alarmingly prevalent and on the increase. Fusel oil is closely allied to creosote in its characteristics and its effects on the human system. It is a corrosive poison, that, in its concentrated form, will immediately kill if swallowed, or if allowed to linger in the tissues does destructive work upon the delicate vital organs." The discoverers and only manufacturers in the world of an absolutely pure whiskey, entirely free from fusel oil, pledge their article to be not only a distillation from malt—the malt supplying the food quality—but by a costly process of redistillation it is rendered so entirely devoid of any poisonous principle, that the most distinguished chemists certify "that no trace of fusel oil is to be found in it." By this process the fire that crazes the brain and vitiates the blood is also eliminated, but at the same time none of its delicate aroma is lost—none of its valerianates are destroyed—and its strength remains the same with its full flavor. It is not to be considered even a mild stimulant, as it remains a strong intoxicant. It is not a medicated whiskey, but a pure whiskey for medicinal use, demanded by the medical profession; hence the Duffy's pure malt whiskey is not only a standard of the pharmacopœia, but, as a beverage, it is the preferred and most popular among the best and oldest whiskies in the market.

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY WILL GET BY CONSULTING THIS MAP THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, is initial and terminal point, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of railways, transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted roadbed, composed of a track of continuous steel rails, substantially built culverts and bridges, rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it, the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air brakes, and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and Peoria, Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Leavenworth and Atchison are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and unsurpassed Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

The Favorite Short Line Route

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Northern Iowa and Minnesota. It is the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Lafayette, and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Thomas Richardson of Bowenville, Mass., became angered because his sweetheart, Sarah A. Bishop of Fall River, discharded him. Last Saturday night at 11:30, at the "Grove" in Fall River, where Miss Bishop was out walking with William K. Russell, he shot the girl in the left wrist, Russell in the left hand and neck fatally, and Jesse Siddons, who interfered, in the head. He then attempted to shoot Officer Murphy, and shot himself in the left hand, the officer knocking his hand up as he had the muzzle placed at his head. Richardson was locked up. Siddons is dangerously wounded.

Surest Tranquilizer of the Nerves.

The surest tranquilizer of the nerves is a medicine which remedies their supersensitiveness by invigorating them. Overtension of the nerves always weakens them. What they need, then, is a tonic, not a sedative. The latter is only useful when there is intense mental excitement and an immediate necessity exists for producing quietude of the brain. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters restores tranquility of the nerves by endowing them with the vigor requisite to bear, without being jarred or disturbed unhealthfully, the ordinary impressions produced through the media of sight, hearing and reflection. Nay, it does more than this—it enables them to sustain a degree of tension from mental application which they would be totally unable to endure without its assistance. Such, at least, in the irresistable conclusions to be drawn from the testimony of business and professional men, litterateurs, clergymen, and others who have tested the fortifying and reparative influence of this celebrated tonic and nerive.

Colonel Noyes, president of the recently held democratic state convention, has received a letter from Hon. W. E. Gladstone acknowledging the receipt of the home rule resolutions adopted by that body.

Do not suffer from sick headache a moment longer. It is not necessary. Carter's Little Liver Pills will cure you. Dose, one little pill. All druggists sell them.

Sergeant Connell of the Greely Arctic expedition brings serious charges against Lieutenant Greely, which are flatly denied by Sergeant Fredericks, one of the survivors.

Mrs. Chas. Smith of James, Ohio, writes: I have used every remedy for sick headache I could hear of for the past fifteen years, but Carter's Little Liver Pills did me more good than all the rest.

An incipient riot developed in Lowell, Mass., Sunday night, when several policemen attempted to make an arrest. A crowd of roughs numbering fully 300 assailed the officers with sticks and stones, and followed them to the station house.

"For economy and comfort, we use Hood's Sarsaparilla," writes an intelligent Buffalo, N. Y., lady. 100 Doses One Dollar.

A Fool and His Money Soon Part.

How true some of those old sayings are. A friend of mine paid a travelling quack $50 to cure him of scrofula, from which he had suffered two years. He gave him a bottle of stuff which only aggravated the disease. When he went to consult him the second time, the quack had left for parts unknown. Upon learning the circumstances I recommended Sulphur Bitters. Five bottles cured him.—Editor Journal and Courier.

The new Catholic church at Gloucester, Mass., has been consecrated by Archbishop Williams.

Greater benefits may be derived from the vacation season if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. An increase of appetite, vigor, and buoyancy of spirits attend the use of this medicine.

A burglar who was trying to force an entrance into a residence on Clifton street, Malden, Saturday night, was captured.

A BATTLE-SCARRED RAT-CATCHER

Talks About the Habits and Peculiarities of the Pestiferous Rodents.

"Where do the rats come from," said the rat-catcher. "Originally from the sewer, and when the cellar floor is not made of cement or stone they are sure to get into the house. When the track is once opened they keep it well beaten. They go from the cellar all over the house. The lead pipes in the wall make excellent ladders for them to climb. They are excellent climbers. When a house is to be cleaned the pipes are greased, if they can be got at, so as to keep the rats in one part of the house. If this can not be done, then wire nets, with sharp-pointed sides, are hung directly near the holes. These tickle their whiskers, and when they raise the net and pass under it they can not get back to the hole. In this way they are all corralled in one place. It takes time, as they are cute, and some of the old fellows can not be led into any sort of traps. If there is anything in their way they will go a mile out of their course to get around it. When they get in places where I can not reach them with the tongs I generally shoot them with a small pistol. Some of the old fellows have a fancy of settling in the ceiling and are the hardest to get at. The best thing I know of with which to treat these obstinate citizens is a good dose of burning cayenne pepper. This suffocates them, if they get a large whiff at the start, and then the house suddenly becomes filled with sewer gas, which disappears as soon as the carcasses dry up and blow away. Rats breed rapidly, and if all of them are not destroyed they will quickly overrun a house again.

"Ever been bitten? A hundred times and more. The bite does not usually amount to anything. Rats have two motions of the jaw in biting. The first is soft and delicate, and the teeth just scratch the object they have hold of. Then follows a quick, sharp powerful action of the jaw, and the slender teeth sink up to the gums and stay there. This bite is dangerous; the first nip amounts to nothing. If the teeth have gone deeply into my hand I always suck the wound. This seems to keep the swelling down, but always a good deal of pain follows. My arm has swollen sometimes when a hungry fellow has given me a nip to twice its natural size. It's strange, but there is no harm in the bite of a well-fed rat. A frightened rat will fight, if cornered, and viciously, too. The way to grab rats so that they can not bite is to seize them with a strong grip just back of the neck. They will howl like stuck pigs, but can not get away and are entirely under control.

"I used to have ferrets to clean out houses, but gave them up long ago. They are too expensive and are difficult to handle, and if savage will bite worse than a rat. An extra number have to be kept on hand in training all the time, for when turned loose in the house where the rats are large one or more will be killed. They are just like rats in their habits and about the same size, and with a good-sized rat it is only a question of which gets the best hold first. Neither will let go. I have had ferrets' teeth fastened in my fingers, and their jaws were set so firmly that they had to be pried open with an iron bar.

"What is done with the rats? They are either drowned or sold to dog-fanciers, to train dogs to catch them, or for use in some of the sporting-houses at rat baits. Some of the choice ones may get into the mysterious dishes served up in Mott street, in the Chinese colony. The business, however, is growing less every year. Every house has its own trap, and on every shelf is a piece of some well-advertised rat poison. This is undermining the business, and where formerly I could get $50 or $100 for keeping a house clear of these mischievous visitors, I am glad now to do the same work for $10 or $20. There are only three or four professionals in the city. One of them still uses the ferrets, but he was telling me the other day that he had so little use for them that they die on his hands."—New York Tribune.

The Five Kinds of Canal-Boats.

"There's five kinds of canal-boats," said an old boatman. "First there comes the 'bullheads.' They are those big canal-boats with a cabin over the whole deck. They won't carry any more dead weight than the others, but they are more roomy for light, bulky freight because there is more room between the keel and deck. Then comes the 'lakers.' This is a 'laker,' lake boat, some calls them. They are the big boats, with a cabin aft and stable and bunks forward. Scows are canal-boats with the whole deck open and covered with leanto hatches like hot-houses, only there ain't no glass. They have a cabin aft and forward, too. They are the most profitable, because they load anything from coal to dry goods and fruit. The whole deck being open they load easy-like. Then there are 'lemon-squeezers,' them canal-boats cut in two in the middle so as to make two sections, so as to go easily into small locks on some canals. They are very few of them nowadays. The lumber boats are shallow and carry their loads mostly above deck. Some captains own only one boat, some two, and some three. Two boats is the best. We tie them together. When a man has three boats he ties them all together. It takes two mules to pull one boat and three to pull two. They put six and eight on three boats."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Why is it

That the sale of Hood's Sarsaparilla continues at such a rapidly increasing rate? It is,—1st: Because of the positive curative value of Hood's Sarsaparilla itself. 2d: Because of the conclusive evidence of remarkable cures effected by it, unsurpassed and seldom equalled by any other medicine. Send to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., for book containing many statements of cures.

Rev. W. W. Downs, the odoriferous pastor of the Bowdoin square Baptist church, Boston, and his followers, on Sunday formally "expelled" from the church and its membership over sixty "disorderly members" who would throw stains on the good names of Mrs. Taber and Mr. Downs.

The Latest Naval Scandal.

Last December the secretary of the navy received through the state department a copy of charges prepared by Mr. James W. Siler, the United States consul at Cape Town, South Africa, against the purchasing officer of the United States steamer Juniata, for collusion with a ship chandler at Cape Town. Again in April last similar charges were forwarded against the paymaster of the United States steamer Lancaster, the flagship of the South Atlantic squadron. Both complaints were referred to Capt. Edward E. Potter, the temporary commanding officer of the squadron, for investigation. As the secretary of the navy has not heard from Captain Potter, it is not known whether the allegations are sustained or not, and until he does receive the report there is no thought of any court-martial being ordered. It is said at the navy department that the charges are specific, yet the reputations of the two officers against whom they are alleged are among the best in the navy. The paymaster of the Juniata was J. Goodwin Hobbs, and of the Lancaster, Charles P. Thompson.—Army and Navy Journal.

Concerning these charges a Washington despatch of July 24th says:

Naval officers generally express sympathy for Paymasters Thompson and Hobbs, who are charged by Consul Siler of Cape Town with being in conspiracy with a Cape Town merchant named Grady to defraud the government. Many letters have been received at the navy department, all expressing opinions reflecting severely on Siler. Paymaster Hobbs, in a letter to a friend in this city, says that when he reached Cape Town on the U. S. S. Juniata, Siler recommended Grady as a man to buy goods from. Not content with this recommendation, the paymaster called for tenders from several of the leading merchants, and finding that Grady was the lowest bidder, purchased stores for the ship from him. He also had the market quotations of the place from the time he was there, and found that the prices paid to Grady in many instances were lower than the quoted prices, and never higher. He claims that Siler asked Grady for a percentage on the supplies furnished the Juniata, and that Grady refused on the ground that he was making no money on the contract, and hence the desire of Siler to ruin Grady's business and to injure all the paymasters purchasing from him.

Mr. Siler may be an honest and trustworthy man, and the accused paymasters all wrong; but a consul's accusation, unsupported by other evidence, will never be accepted as conclusive by any one who is aware how many confounded scoundrels there are and always have been in the United States consular service. A barrel of flour, half a dozen smoked hams and a two-gallon jug of old Monongahela was a big price to pay for a good many of them, twenty-five years ago.

Picayune Statesmanship.

Commenting on Secretary Bayard's whining complaint that the whole fishery trouble might have been settled weeks ago but for the obstructive policy of the republican senate, which refused to give him and the British minister the commission they asked for but which the American fishermen and citizens generally did not want, the Biddeford Journal says:

Such an attempt to make political capital out of a grave matter like this, as the Portland Advertiser remarks, is "small business," mighty small business; it is more than that; it is wicked trifling with a question of serious importance to a hundred thousand American citizens directly, and to the entire country, indirectly. It is a virtual admission by Mr. Bayard that he has purposely neglected to seek a settlement of the fishing trouble because the United States senate refused to adopt his idea of appointing commissioners. This is a fair sample of the picayune statesmanship which is now turned out from the state department, once filled by Daniel Webster and Wm. H. Seward.

If a republican secretary of state had made such a shameless admission, a howl would have gone up from every democratic threat in the nation—"Impeach him! Impeach him!"

The Mexican War Cloud.

A despatch of July 25th from El Paso, Texas, says:

The excitement on both sides of the river, among Mexicans as well as Americans, has been so great that both governments have concluded, for the purpose of allaying it, to conduct further negotiations secretly and without publicity. For that reason Consul Brigham had no further official advices yesterday on the all-absorbing subject of the Cutting imprisonment. Meanwhile, soldiers continue in Paso del Norte, Mexico. There was a report current here in El Paso yesterday to the effect that the arrest of Medina, who caused Cutting's arrest, and who was guilty two days ago of a disturbance of the peace, during which Consul Brigham's clerk was insulted and threatened, was only nominal, and while it was pretended that he was in jail, he was in reality hid away in an obscure building. It was, however, given out publicly that he was confined in cell No. 7 in the same jail with Cutting. This materially aided in allaying the excitement on the Texas side of the river, just then at fever heat. The truth is, he spent one night in jail. The next day he was tried and found guilty of creating a disturbance, and fined. Cutting was brought before Judge Costeneda last evening and informed that his case had become of such national importance that it would have to be transferred to the First District court, where sentence would be pronounced at some future day. Consul Brigham tried to learn when the trial would take place, but could get no satisfaction. It is now thought that Mexico is determined not to give Cutting up. It is rumored on the streets of Paso del Norte that a train load of troops, with a park of artilliery, is approaching the city from Chihuahua. The situation begins to look very serious.

A Frightful Story.

Advices of the 25th inst. say that along the northern coast of Newfoundland 150 persons have already died of starvation. Fully 2,500 more are on the verge of death. There is no sign of the ice breaking up for 400 miles. Relief from the government will be afforded. In one settlement of forty-two persons twenty-four have died. In the month of June in another village of sixteen families, comprising fifty-three persons, eleven died from cold and destitution. In another settlement of twelve families, containing seventy-two persons, thirty-two have died. Winter began with these unhappy mortals last October. Hon. A. F. Widdell of the Newfoundland government laid a pitiful story of starving fishermen's families before the Dominion government at Ottawa on the 24th.

The Indian guide and government interpreter who has just returned from Cape Chidley (the extreme northwestern point of Labrador reached by stage,) gives a heart-rending account of the horrible destitution and suffering, which the Esquimaux and Indian farmers are enduring along the Labrador coast. On Cape Chidley, 240 souls are distributed over an area of several miles. The entire food supply gave out early in March. The seal catch was very small, and as the season wore on the seals failed to come near enough to shore to be caught. The cold was intense, and many of the older people died of exposure and lack of nourishment. On June 12th, when the guide left, the mercury stood at eighteen below zero, and had been lower. The ice for several hundred miles was solid for a depth of from ten to 100 feet, and snow was piled mountain high. At least eighty persons had perished since March 1st between Cape Chidley and Cape Mugford, and only four survivors were found in the rude shanties along the coast. They accompanied the guide to Cape Mugford. The bodies of eighteen victims were found, frozen stiff. The clothes had been taken from them, evidently to help keep life in the bodies of the miserable survivors, who in turn had died while out fishing or after seal. Seventeen bodies were found along shore. Twenty-four persons, including six women and three small children, are known to have perished at Cape Mugford, where on June 29th there were only twenty barrels of meal and forty barrels of corn flour. The potatoes had been gone since early in May. There were less than 100 quintals of fish and no clothing in store at all. The residents, numbering about 300 persons, were worn and pinched from famine and cold. In the outlaying districts at least one-half of the population had succumbed to the grim destroyer. There was no sign of the ice breaking up, and the natives had nothing to exchange for food and clothing. Seventy-five Esquimaux from Astoria, six miles from the Cape, made an attack on the stores at Mugford. The men were rendered desperate by their suffering and that of their wives.

Now is the time for Secretary Bayard to disclose some more statesmanship. Let him hurry up and demand a commission with Mexico.

The adjournment of Congress is looked for on Aug. 2d. For all the good it has done, it might have adjourned before it assembled.

The house passed the naval appropriation bill on the 24th inst.

THE BEST

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with Scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It is my opinion that this medicine is the best blood of the day." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and unable to obtain relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles, am greatly benefited, and believe it to be the best of blood purifiers." R. Harris, Creel City, Ramsey Co., Dakota, writes: "I have been an intense sufferer, with Dyspepsia, for the past three years. Six months ago I began to use

Blood

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

It has effected an entire cure, and I am now as well as ever."

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

MONDAY, July 26th.

Charles E. Gray, proprietor of the hostelrie on Three-tree island, was before the court on a charge of assaulting and battering Charles Ackland, a seaman belonging to one of the United States ships now in this port. From the evidence it appeared that the complainant and a shipmate about midnight on Sunday visited the island and demanded admission to the establishment, failing to get which they pounded on the door, and finally proceeded to harvest the clothes hanging on a line to dry, which last business led to the assault complained of. Gray was discharged.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, July 26th.

There are not many guests at the beach. The Boar's Head hotel numbers only fifty; at the low price of board in June it was full; the full quota of help at that house is forty.

At the Union house there are fifty guests, and every spare room is engaged. Several noted people are there, who usually located at the beach. This place presents the most lively appearance of any for miles around.

A fraudulent attempt to get money was recently made, and successfully, at Exeter. A female with a paper wished to raise money "for a poor widow who had lost a cow which was her only support," intimating that she (the widow) lived in this town. She raised twenty-five dollars. One of the most prominent men who generously contributed came to this vicinity, calling on several whose names were upon the paper, and found they knew nothing of the poor widow or the paper. ——.

A Collision.

Early Sunday evening, Mr. G. W. Dobbins of this city and a lady were driving toward the Wentworth house on the Sagamore road, and when their horse was walking past the cemetery they were startled to see a horse attached to a buggy coming round a short turn in the road just ahead of them, at a terrible rate, the horse being on the dead run and his driver laying on the whip with a will. Mr. Dobbins reined his horse as far out of the road as possible, but as the approaching team turned the corner, the carriage swung to one side and collided with Mr. Dobbins team. Both carriages were overturned and considerably smashed, and the occupants thrown out. Mr. Dobbins and lady were not injured beyond one or two slight bruises. Mr. Dobbins on striking the ground jumped to his horse's head and held him so securely that he did not run. The occupants of the other carriage, (two young men said to belong in Exeter, giving the names of George Clark and Joseph Williams) were not so fortunate. One of them was taken from beneath the feet of Mr. Dobbins' horse insensible, and the other received severe bruises. Mr. Dobbins returned to this city and procured another buggy and proceeded to enjoy the evening ride. The two young men tied their carriage together and started for Exeter. We do not know whether they got there safely or not. Mr. Dobbins wrote this morning to Mr. Towle of Exeter, to whom the runaway team belonged to see if the men are responsible for the damage done to his carriage. One of them is said to be a native of Portsmouth, now employed in Exeter.—Times.

The barbers of the city are reported as having all agreed to close their shops at six o'clock every Thursday evening, commencing this week.

It is reported that Mr. Richard I. Walden, a typo and an original democrat, is likely to be nominated as alderman by the democrats of ward four. He has served his time justly and lawfully in the common council, and as nothing can be said against his democracy or his previous career, of course he would be elected in that ward if nominated.

It is said the store in the southwest corner of Mendum's block on Pleasant street, formerly occupied by the Custom House Exchange, will be opened as a meat store by Mr. Christopher Smart as soon as it is ready for occupancy.

Daniel Clark, who did business all last winter in the buying of fish at Commercial wharf, it is to be hoped with fair success, is at present engaged in the purchase of fish from the small boats, for the pleasure of causing a little trade, as he says.

Capt. Nason, of the gondola Sturgeon Creek, on Saturday brought down from Rowe's brickyard in Eliot for B. J. Trefethen, and landed at Eldredge's wharf, 6000 bricks. Dr. Ed. S. Fay has been up to Eliot and bought 40,000 bricks for the Electric Light Co. of Portsmouth, which the captain has engaged to freight down. He says now he means to call the gondola the "Electric Light."

The body of Hans Carlson, the seaman drowned off Marston's island Sunday evening, was found about 11:30 o'clock Monday forenoon by Joseph D. Cornelius and Joseph S. Holmes, and brought to the police station, where it was viewed by Coroner Whittier, and afterward convened to the navy yard.

A gentleman in this city received on Monday from Postmaster Pearson of New York a circular which formed a portion of the mail matter forwarded from Queenstown, Ireland, per steamer Oregon, March 7th, and which was recovered from the wreck July 1st and 4th. The direction on the envelope was chafed somewhat, but there was just enough left of the writing to decipher the designation, while the enclosure was in perfect condition.

The brickers Lillie, Estella, D. K, Ham, Hattie Lewis and Satellite sailed on Monday for Boston.

Mr. Wm. W. Doyle, the well-known plumber, took passage on the schooner Flying Cloud, Capt. Caswell, on Monday morning, for a pleasure trip. May he find "pease."

Chandler Shapleigh, Esq., of Eliot, brought in some green corn on Monday—the first of the season.

Capt. Edward Jameson is occupying the wharf belonging to the estate of John Dixon, for the purpose of drying fish.

The atelier of John Bellamy, the skillful carver on the premises of the late Sir William Pepperell at Kittery Point, is much visited by artists. Among his admonitions posted up is this: "You will please recollect that the world will go on just the same after you are dead as before." But he says that many do not believe it.

J. Foster Shores, Esq., with Geo. Wm. Ballou & Co., bankers, of New York, arrived home in this city last Saturday night, on his first vacation for four years.

Counterfeits of the United States silver dollars are being circulated. They are an excellent imitation, and have the ring of a good coin. They have the date 1882. One figure eight is a little imperfect, and the milling is deeper and sharper than that of the government dollar, as it extends across the full thickness of the piece. It must be examined carefully in order to detect its worthlessness.

The troublesome dearth of small bills caused by the silver-dollar men in their endeavor to force the Bland lie into universal use, is soon to be terminated, the Treasury department having made all necessary arrangements for issuing the new $1, $2 and $5 silver certificates, contemplated by the paragraph in the sundry civil bill on that subject. A contract for the paper has been made with Crane & Co. of Dalton, Mass. The paper will be the same as that used for national bank notes. The bureau of engraving and printing has completed the designs for the certificates, and they have been approved by the acting secretary of the treasury. As soon as the bill is signed the printing of the certificates will begin at once.

The Maine Union Holiness Association holds its first annual convention at Ocean Park, Old Orchard, this week, beginning Tuesday and continuing through the week. Among the workers are Rev. Messrs. F. E. Davison, A. P. Tracy, B. Minard and T. P. Adams, Brothers A. A. Allan and Frank Jones of the "Bailey Band," and others. Services are held morning, afternoon and evening of each day. The object is the promotion of scriptural holiness. All persons are cordially invited to attend the convention.

A meeting of the creditors of the York Woollen Manufacturing company, of South Berwick, was held July 21st. The liabilities figured up about $8,000, including a mortgage upon the building. Frank Hale, who is the principal creditor, offers to compromise for eighty-three cents on the dollar if released from all liability. Mr. Carpenter will endeavor to secure assistance to enable him to accept this offer. It appears that the firm have been selling goods for less that the cost of manufacture.—Kennebunk Star.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records.

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers

Not Worried About the Dog.

A cute little girl of 3 is the delight of a Washington boulevard family for her prettiness as well as for the bright and odd things she says. The other day a company of militia passed down the street in front of her home, and her minute black-and-tan barked furiously through the window pane at them. The little girl arose in alarm and said: "Shut the door, mamma! Fido will bite the army!"—Chicago News.

"Well let me hear you repeat his defiance to Macduff." "Oh, I never got so far as that; the audience always made me quit before I got to that part."

—"Mollie, I wish you would be a better little girl," said a fond father to his little daughter; "you have no idea how sorry I am that mamma has to scold you always." "Don't worry about it, papa," was the reply of the little angel; "I am not one of those sensitive children. Half the time I don't hear what she says."

Surest Tranquilizer of the Nerves.

The surest tranquilizer of the nerves is a medicine which remedies their superseniveness by invigorating them. Overtension of the nerves always weakens them. What they need, then, is a tonic, not a sedative. The latter is only useful when there is intense mental excitement and an immediate necessity exists for producing quietude of the brain. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters restores tranquility of the nerves by endowing them with the vigor requisite to bear, without being jarred or disturbed unhealthfully, the ordinary impressions produced through the media of sight, hearing and reflection. Nay, it does more than this—it enables them to sustain a degree of tension from mental application which they would be totally unable to endure without its assistance. Such, at least, in the irresistable conclusions to be drawn from the testimony of business and professional men, litterateurs, clergymen, and others who have tested the fortifying and reparative influence of this celebrated tonic and nerive.

It is stated that Senators Harrison, Hawley and Manderson will delay the confirmation of Fitz John Porter's nomination as much as possible.

A Fool and His Money Soon Part.

How true some of those old sayings are. A friend of mine paid a travelling quack $50 to cure him of scrofula, from which he had suffered two years. He gave him a bottle of stuff which only aggravated the disease. When he went to consult him the second time, the quack had left for parts unknown. Upon learning the circumstances I recommended Sulphur Bitters. Five bottles cured him.—Editor Journal and Courier.

Cholera, dysentery and diarrhœa come with the summer imprudence in fruit diet. Infection and sudden checks of perspiration cause these complaints. On the first symptom take four or five Brandreth Pills and drink plentifully of hot water, and you are safe. If you wish to render the body a fortress against disease, take one or two Brandreth Pills every night for ten days and thus remove from the bowels all irritating substance and purify the blood.

I have been a periodical sufferer from hay fever, (a most annoying and loathsome affliction,) since the summer of 1879, and until I used Ely's Cream Balm, was never able to find any relief until cold weather. I can truthfully say that Cream Balm cured me. I regard it as of great value and would not be without it during the hay fever season.

An Overcrowded Profession.

"What proportion of the young men who register as students are eventually admitted to the bar?" was asked a well-known lawyer the other day. "It would be impossible to give figures," he answered, "but it is safe to say that the proportion is a very small one. The great trouble for many years past has been that boys are brought up to look upon a trade as a degradation. If they show any considerable amount of smartness at school, fond and doting parents insist upon it that they must study a profession. Now, in most cases they are doing their children a grievous wrong, especially when it is necessary for them to earn a living at an early age. A boy graduating from the high school in the senior class most always wants to be a lawyer; it is, he thinks, the most gentlemanly of the professions and the easiest to learn. Some friends will probably get him in a position in a lawyer's office, where he will earn $3 or $4 a week with the privilege of studying. If he has any talent for it and his parents have any money he is all right, but if either of these conditions are wanting his whole life runs a chance of being spoiled. By the time he has studied for two or three years he often finds out that he can not live on the paltry salary he is drawing, and even should he pass his examination and become a full-fledged lawyer, unless he has some money to live on till he gets a practice his case is not at all bettered.

"I have known at least a dozen young men who commenced to study law when they were about 16 years old, and, who, by the time they arrive at the age of 19, found that they had wasted a valuable portion of their lives and had really nothing to show for it. Nothing was left but to fight out life's battle on another plane. One young man I knew became an attorney and then committed suicide. A few are fortunate enough to get places with men who will take an interest in and really help them, but these cases are as one to five hundred.—Philadelphia Press.

A Spider's Telephone.

While a gentleman was watching some spiders it occurred to him to try what effect a tuning-fork would have on the insects. He suspected that they would regard the sound just as they were in the habit of regarding the sound made by a fly. And sure enough they did. He selected a large, ugly spider that had been feasting on flies for two months. The spider was at one edge of its web. Sounding the fork, he touched a thread at the other side of the web, and watched the result. Mr. Spider had the buzzing sound conveyed to him over his telephone wires, but how was he to know on which particular wire the sound was traveling? He ran to the center of the web very quickly, and felt all around until he touched the thread against the other end of which the fork was sounding; then taking another thread along, just as a man would take an extra piece of rope, he ran out to the fork and sprang upon it. Then he retreated a little way and looked at the fork. He was puzzled. He had expected to find a buzzing fly. He got on the fork again and danced with delight. He had caught the sound of the fly, and it was music to him. It is said that spiders are so fond of music that they will stop their spinning to listen, and a man once said that when he retired to his room for quiet before dinner and played the flute, large spiders would come onto the table and remain quite still, "running away as fast as their legs could carry them" directly he had finished.

Dan Sickles Surprised the Dog.

General Daniel E. Sickles, who, for some reason or other, prefers crutches and an empty trouser's leg, was an object of especial regard during the pageantry. "Oh, Dan's a hero, I guess," said an old campaigner, "and I fit into his division, but just the same I've got somethin' ag'in him. See that dog?" and he pointed to a brute of particularly mean aspect and slinking manner. "He ain't got no spirit—you can see that, eh? Of course. Well, that was once the breeziest, sassiest, proudest dog that ever gnawed a bone. I loved that dog like a father. Well, I brought him to town for Decoration Day. In Broadway we met General Sickles. I stooped to look at him for I hadn't seen him in ten years. He was swinging along on one leg and two crutches. The dog scrutinized him a minute, and must have thought to himself: 'There ain't no danger in a man with one leg, 'cause he can't kick out with the only foot he's got to stand on.' So he giv' a yelp an' a snap at Sickles' heels—I mean heel. Good Lord! The General just swung himself on his crutches, like the pendulum of a clock—kicked plump from his shoulders, as 'twere—and the dog was knocked about half a block. He sneaked back to me, but didn't bring a mite of his usual air. He ain't come to himself yet, an' he never will. A whole lifetime of astonishment was kicked into him in that one instant, and his mind is all gone. I shall shoot him when I get home if he don't die of softening of the brain sooner."—N. Y. Letter in the Albany Journal.

A Connecticut Gipsy King.

One of the most singular men in the State of Connecticut, writes a New Haven correspondent of the New York Herald, is Prince Williams, the celebrated gypsy king, who is now taking to the road again, after spending the winter at his residence on Whalley avenue in this city. He is a veritable prince among the gipsies, and he is said to be immensely wealthy. His usual headquarters are in Boston, but last winter he passed here, where he has a large barn, with about twenty horses,

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

The pain and misery suffered by those who are afflicted with dyspepsia are indescribable. The distress of the body is equalled or surpassed by the confusion and tortures of the mind, thus making its victims suffer double affliction. The relief which is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla has caused thousands to be thankful for this great medicine. It corrects the causes of dyspepsia, and tones up the digestive organs. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Fighting a Boycott.

A correspondent of the Boston Journal, writing from Salem, Mass., says:

It is evident that the first resistance to the boycott in Massachusetts in the courts is coming in Salem. Messrs. Charles Harrington & Co. yesterday took legal counsel, and it is stated that complaints will be sworn out against members of the executive board of District Assembly 77, Knights of Labor, and warrants asked on the ground of conspiracy and intention to defraud and injure the firm in the sale of its goods. The "rigorous enforcement" of the boycott is to be met by as strong a prosecution of the law against those who enforce it. The result will be watched with great interest by every manufacturer in the state. The Salem leather men propose to try the issue as to whether they shall have a free market for their products or not, and to test the question whether Massachusetts is behind New York in her statutes intended to protect the rights and liberties of her business men. It appears, therefore, that Salem is to be the battle ground upon which manufacturers and Knights of Labor will test the question of their rights under the laws of the commonwealth. * *

The first notice of the boycott on Charles Harrington & Co. was given February 10, 1886. The men went out on the strike December 15, 1885, and the whole trouble hinged upon the discharge of a workman employed for years by the Messrs. Harrington, and with whom the firm were under a contract to employ him for a year, simply because this workman through the wishes and influence of his family would not join the Knights of Labor. The firm had acceded to all other requests made at the time, but this one.

According to this correspondent the strike at the start and the subsequent boycott were not to enforce any claim or to defend any right of labor against capital, but to curtail the freedom of the working man by establishing the rule that he has no right to earn a living unless he earns it in the exact manner the labor organizations may dictate. The tyranny of a mob is more oppressive than the tyranny of an autocrat, and we doubt if the condition of the working men will ever be permanently improved through their practical enslavement as individuals.

Recently an agent of N. W. Green of Boston has been in Laconia claiming royalty and making collections on a patent driven-well system extensively used in that section. Many have paid the agent. On Saturday a large number of well owners met and organized, as suits are threatened by the agent. The meeting was largely attended, and a citizens' meeting will be called for July 31st to organize for mutual protection.

Perley Wiggin, aged about twenty-two years, son of George W. Wiggin of Exeter, died from lockjaw on Saturday, July 24th, from the effects of being drawn into a tile machine in a brickyard about ten days previous, the flesh of one arm being torn into shreds at the time.

Ephraim O. Foss died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. John Haskell of Nottingham, July 25th, aged eighty-five years. He was born and lived all his life in Barrington until two years ago, when he went to live with his daughter. At the age of twelve years he commenced hauling wood to the Dover market, and for seventy years, until 1883, he claimed never to have missed hauling his load every week day during that time, with the exception of 204 days when the weather was too stormy. He kept at the business until he was compelled in '83 to cease on account of ill health. During the seven decades he claimed to have hauled and sold 21,000 cords of wood.

Mrs. Polly Leavitt, widow of Thomas Leavitt of Hampton, died at Exeter on Saturday last, at the age of eighty-eight years. Years ago she was landlady of the old Winnicumet hotel, Hampton beach, noted as a resort for sportsmen who then frequented that beach in large numbers every spring and autumn in quest of sea fowl. On the same spot now stands the Hampton Beach hotel, kept by her sons.

John Littlefield of Wells was taken before Judge Emmons in the Saco Municipal court last Monday on a search and seizure complaint. Littlefield is a man apparently about eighty years old. He keeps a variety store in Wells, and complaints had been made that he sold liquor. Last Saturday Sheriff J. W. Small of York county and Officer Seavey of Saco went to his place of business, and instituted a search. After working for about two hours a very ingeniously concealed cupboard was discovered, containing a number of jugs, and Littlefield was arrested and taken to Saco for trial. Judge Emmons found him guilty and fined him $100 and costs, which he paid. The costs amounted to $14 57.

Rev. Father Walsh, late of Bangor, Me., who was recently appointed pastor of the newly created Catholic parish of South Berwick, said mass there for the first time last Sunday forenoon, in Newichawanick hall. There was a large attendance of parishioners.

The Biddeford Times of July 24th says: "Near what is known as 'Ferry Landing,' and within a stone's throw of the water's edge, is a grave yard, in which some of the headstones bear dates as far back as 1733. The lot, which is the property of the city of Biddeford, is sadly in need of attention. Winds, weather and water have prostrated most of the headstones, and in several spots the sand has blown away to such an extent that bones and skulls are scattered about on top of the soil. The committee on streets accidentally learned of this state of things on their visit to the Ferry yesterday."

Last Saturday afternoon about five o'clock, as Darius Frost was on the way from Dover to join his wife at York beach, when near the Great Works woollen mills in South Berwick one of the wheels of the buggy in which he was riding collapsed, and he was thrown heavily to the ground, the horse running away but being soon caught. Mr. Frost was senseless when picked up, and a surgeon from South Berwick village reported that he had three ribs broken and was badly bruised, but would probably come out of the affair without any serious permanent injury.

William B. O'Keefe, of Salem, Mass., and Peter McGeough, of Lynn, members of the executive board of the district assembly, Knights of Labor, have been arrested at Salem on a charge of conspiracy to injure the business of Charles Harrington & Co.

A Panama despatch says "It is stated unofficially that Senor Valmacedo, liberal, is elected to the presidency. The elections have been bloody beyond precedent. Upwards of forty lives have been lost."

Henry Lamont, formerly a wholesale confectioner of Bath, Me., shot himself dead on the 24th inst.

Col. W. H. Bolton, chief of the division for handling second-class matter at the Chicago post-office, and John I. Stewart, the weigher, have been arrested for alleged embezzlement, extending over several years. The amount is said to exceed $100,000, and other officials will probably be implicated.

No money is being voluntarily contributed to the congressional campaign committees.

English opinion seems to approve the finding of the jury in the Crawford divorce case.

A desperate character undertook to rob Mrs. Pincin, of East Monmouth, Me., of pension money, but she presented a pistol, and the fellow beat a hasty retreat.

Small pox is raging at Santiago and other places on the Pacific coast.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PERLE, Salem, Mass.

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It is my opinion that this medicine is the best blood of the day." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and unable to obtain relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles, am greatly benefited, and believe it to be the best of blood purifiers." R. Harris, Creel City, Ramsey Co., Dakota, writes: "I have been an intense sufferer, with Dyspepsia, for the past three years. Six months ago I began to use

KITTERY, ME., July 24th.

No town in this county pays more for the support of free schools than the old town of Kittery. Our school houses are commodious and comfortable, and the most of them fairly furnished. We have a free high school, where our sons and daughters may obtain a good business education, or fit for higher institutions of learning, some of our young ladies and gentlemen having done so. Within a few years several of our young ladies have taken a course in the Normal schools of our state, and ranked as scholars among the first. It is well known that the principals of these schools have many more applications every year for teachers than they can supply, but these gentlemen do not assume that these teachers, though familiar with the best methods, and while teaching model classes under them have been taught to expect friendly and intelligent criticism, will go into a mixed school and manage with the ease of an experienced teacher, though the latter may be of less attainments. Agents here who have hitherto engaged Normal graduates have looked for perfection in discipline, and if these teachers have sought advice of either agent or committee it has been at once bruited abroad that they have failed, and if the term in session has not been cut short they have not been engaged another term. Our experienced teachers are without doubt among the best, but how did they become so? Only by the kind and judicious forbearance of the school committee, who were too sensible to expect from the best scholars model schools until they had learned to see their own mistakes, and profit by them.

A year ago a young lady graduate of Gorham, who fitted at our high school, taught the summer term of one of our mixed schools, and we have not learned that the committee made any adverse report of it; yet her second or fall term was abbreviated, and when the annual report came out an allusion was made to some trouble, and she renounced the business in disgust. The present year the same district has had another Normal graduate, a fine scholar likewise, who after closing a brief term we learn is also to be decapitated. Another young lady, who had the best report in town last year, whose school was under the immediate supervision of the chairman, is to resign,— a sort of weak compromise with narrow prejudice.

Now we would ask of school committee and school agents if these young ladies had a fair and impartial trial? In old times when trouble arose, the agent notified the school committee, and a day was set to investigate the matter; then the teachers knew who their friends were. The way of doing things now is more quiet, but a thousand times more injurious.

It is high time that this matter was carefully considered. If our Normal schools are not sending out well-trained teachers, let us then give our voices and votes against such an additional expense; but if these schools are worthy of our support, and I for one believe them to be, let us sustain with fair treatment the teachers sent out from them, for as far as can be learned young Normal teachers have had more than average success, and the frequent applications to Normal principals by those who appear to have failed in Kittery show our school officers in a light far from enviable.

HARRY.

Miss Annie E. Smart left this city on Saturday last for a few weeks absence. Miss Smart has not been in robust health lately, but her friends hope she will return much improved.

A special train of eight passenger coaches passed through this city at about eight o'clock Tuesday morning, with about 400 picnickers from Dover, bound to "The Willows," Salem harbor, Mass.

Mr. Edward S. Smart, of Boston, is spending a three weeks vacation at the home of his parents in this city.

The Strafford Guards Veteran Association, and friends, from Dover, will arrive in this city by special train this morning, and proceed by steamer to Fort Constitution, where they will have a picnic and reunion in memory of the time when the fort was garrisoned by the Strafford Guards during the rebellion.

A time-honored democrat informs us that never in the history of our city politics since the formation of our city government has there been seen such a willingness,—nay, desire on the part of the democrats as is seen now to serve in the city government. To become an alderman—to participate in what is expected to become, if certain projects work, with a "unanimous" city council, a generous "boodle," seems to be the desire which animates the political heart of the reformers. The rush is almost unseemly, but these opportunities are not frequently enjoyed.

Professor J. K. Paine of Harvard college, and Mrs. Paine, T. O. Langufeldt and I. M. Gougengigl, Boston artists, Dr. Samuel Gross and wife, Judge Joseph Allison, Mrs. Gillies Dallett and two daughters, of Philadelphia, Baron Ernst Von Schernberg and Baroness Von Schernberg, Judge J. K. Ware and wife of Fitchburg, Dr. G. P. Colton, Mrs. S. G. Ward of New York, Wm. G. De Ford and wife of Baltimore, Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett are among the recent distinguished arrivals at the Appledore house.

Thrown overboard: It is understood that Freeman Pearson, Esq., of the common council, need never again seek an election to any municipal position in the gift of the so-called democratic party, because he had the audacity to oppose the sale of the remainder of the city farm and the almshouse, and made an attempt against the removal of the deserving poor to Brentwood. The fishing schooner Agnes E. Downs, Levi Downs master, took into Boston on Monday a $1,200 fare of mackerel.

It is reported that the Boston & Maine railroad will build 300 feet of coal pockets on Noble's island.

Evangelist Pierson's "gospel carriage," before reported as having started from Boston on the 22d inst. for Old Orchard, Me., arrived in this city shortly before noon on Tuesday, and attracted a good deal of attention as it stood on the Parade.

Elvin Newton, at Lunging island, Isles of Shoals, has of late been engaged in baiting Georges banks fishermen with herring and small blue-backs. On Monday he sent 2,000 good mackerel to Boston.

Some mackerel are being brought in to the local market. They are not plentiful, but there are many tinkers.

The Riverside base ball club of this city will play the Great Falls club at Pinkham's grove, Dover point, Tuesday of next week, for a purse of $15.

Charles McEvoy, a boy living on Hancock street, fell from a gate Monday evening, dislocating his left arm and breaking the shoulder blade.

J. T. S. Libby, publisher of the Dover Republican, was held in $200 on Tuesday, on a charge of criminal libel on O. F. Howe.

The new mowing machine—Brown's endless cutter-bar—will be run at the Hayes farm to-day and to-morrow, and all interested are invited to see it work.

A steam launch for the private use of Wm. H. Goodwin, Esq., of Boston and Gerrish's island, arrived here on Monday.

Mrs. Sheehan, long a resident on Penhallow street, died on Tuesday at the advanced age of ninety-six years. She has been very active up to a very recent date.

Joel Wilson has accepted the office of collector of customs of the port of York, and filed his official bond.

OUR DAILY BREAD.

Heavy and sour bread or biscuit have a vast influence through the digestive organs upon the measure of health we enjoy. How important to our present happiness and future usefulness the blessing of good health and a sound constitution are, we can only realize when we have lost them, and when it is too late to repair the damage. And yet, notwithstanding these facts, thousands of persons daily jeopardize not only their health, but their lives, and the healths and lives of others, by using articles in the preparation of their food the purity and healthfulness of which they know nothing. Perhaps a few cents may have been saved, or it may have been more convenient to obtain the articles used, and the housekeeper takes the responsibility and possibly will never know the mischief that has been wrought. Paterfamilias may have spells of headache, Johnny may have lost his appetite, Susie may look pale; if so, the true cause is rarely suspected. The weather, the lack of outdoor air, or some other cause, is given, and the unwholesome, poisonous system of adulterated food goes on. Next to the flour, which should be made of good, sound wheat and not ground too fine, the yeast or baking powder, which furnishes the rising properties, is of the greatest importance, and of the two we prefer baking powder, and always use the Royal, as we thereby retain the original properties of the wheat, no fermentation taking place. The action of the Royal Baking Powder upon the dough is simply to swell it and form little cells through every part. These cells are filled with carbonic acid gas, which passes off during the process of baking.

The Royal is made from pure grape acid, and it is the action of this acid upon highly carbonized bicarbonate of soda that generates the gas alluded to; and these ingredients are so pure and so perfectly fitted, tested and adapted to each other, that the action is mild and permanent, and is continued during the whole time of baking, and no residue of poisonous ingredients remains to undermine the health, no heavy biscuits, no sour bread, but if directions are followed, every article prepared with the Royal Baking Powder will be found sweet and wholesome.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records.

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests.

W. N. ILSLEY,
W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers more or less valuable. He is about 50 years of age, and is a tall, strong, swarthy man, with an eye like a lighted cigar. He has a beautifully ornamented wagon, in which he lives on the road. It cost nearly $1,200, and is a marvel of gilt and mirrors. He is worth from $100,000 to $150,000, and when on his trips takes with him his entire family, consisting of seventeen children and twenty-six grandchildren. He owns large and well cultivated farms in East Hartford, and also in Glastonbury, and has one of over four hundred acres about ten miles out of Boston, Mass. It is said that he is absolutely invincible in a horse trade, and that no native-born Yankee has ever brought him into camp in the sale or exchange of horses.

A Remarkable Dog.

Plimpson B. Kelley, a well-to-do farmer who resides near Fairfield, Ind., tells the following:

"A few days since I heard my dog barking violently in the woods near my house. Thinking he had some animal treed I hastened to the spot from whence the sound proceeded, but could see nothing of the dog. Presently a furious barking and howling was set up, and what was my astonishment to see Racer holding a big ground-hog in the top of a pig-nut hickory tree, about fifty feet from the ground. Directly the dog's hold broke and the woodchuck ran out on a dead limb, which broke, and the limb and woodchuck came rattling down to the ground. The animal ran up on a stump and I dispatched him with a club. My dog was still up in the tree, and how I was to get him down was a puzzler. I started off toward home, and there sat the dog in the top of that tree, whining as if his heart would break. I couldn't climb the tree, so I went to the house and got a basket and rope and started to one of the neighbors for help. Just as I got the gate open along came the dog, showing every sign of the greatest delight. The tree stands on the hillside, leans just a little, but not enough for any dog to run up it. How he got up there and back again is a mystery."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Dr. Munford, proprietor of the Kansas City Times, who was shot in a street-car and badly wounded by an infuriated lawyer, has had some experience in the same line. He entered the Confederate army when a youth, and in one of the battles of the Southwest was terribly wounded. For years he was no better than a living skeleton, but good nursing and surgery saved him, and he finally took up journalism in Kansas City. He bought the Times when it was in a bad way financially, and he has built it up to a profitable property.

Surest Tranquilizer of the Nerves.

The surest tranquilizer of the nerves is a medicine which remedies their supersensitiveness by invigorating them. Overtension of the nerves always weakens them. What they need, then, is a tonic, not a sedative. The latter is only useful when there is intense mental excitement and an immediate necessity exists for producing quietude of the brain. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters restores tranquility of the nerves by endowing them with the vigor requisite to bear, without being jarred or disturbed unhealthfully, the ordinary impressions produced through the media of sight, hearing and reflection. Nay, it does more than this—it enables them to sustain a degree of tension from mental application which they would be totally unable to endure without its assistance. Such, at least, in the irresistable conclusions to be drawn from the testimony of business and professional men, litterateurs, clergymen, and others who have tested the fortifying and reparative influence of this celebrated tonic and nerive.

It would be interesting to know whether Mr. Cleveland regards the detailing of department clerks to do the work of the democratic campaign committee as coming within that "quiet and unobtrusive exercise of individual political rights" which is "the reasonable measure of their party service."

A Fool and His Money Soon Part.

How true some of those old sayings are. A friend of mine paid a travelling quack $50 to cure him of scrofula, from which he had suffered two years. He gave him a bottle of stuff which only aggravated the disease. When he went to consult him the second time, the quack had left for parts unknown. Upon learning the circumstances I recommended Sulphur Bitters. Five bottles cured him.—Editor Journal and Courier.

Greater benefits may be derived from the vacation season if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. An increase of appetite, vigor, and buoyancy of spirits attend the use of this medicine.

The Scotch crofters inhabiting the island of Tiree, one of the inner Hebrides group, are arming themselves to resist the military. Cholera, dysentery and diarrhœa come with the summer imprudence in fruit diet. Infection and sudden checks of perspiration cause these complaints. On the first symptom take four or five Brandreth Pills and drink plentifully of hot water, and you are safe. If you wish to render the body a fortress against disease, take one or two Brandreth Pills every night for ten days and thus remove from the bowels all irritating substance and purify the blood.

ENGLISH CARRIAGES.

Those Used on State Occasions by Queen Victoria and the Lord Mayor of London—How They Are Built.

During the reigns of Anne and of the first two Georges most persons of rank and wealth had carriages. State carriages of great men of the Georgian time are well illustrated by that of Lord Darnley, now at South Kensington. The frame-work is admirably carved, and the top covered with leather, and with gilt coronets at the angles. The panels are gayly painted, and the hinges and other metal work are modeled in bronze. The reader will remember carriages like it in etchings and pictures of Hogarth. Sedan-chairs carried by two men have been in use down to recent times. Persons of rank went to drawing-rooms and court receptions with a string of Sedan-chairs, accompanied by footmen, each containing one of the ladies of the family. Such a procession has been described to the present writer by an eyewitness as nothing uncommon eighty years ago. The tops of the sedan-chairs are hinged—are, in fact, lids which shut down over the front and sides, and keep them together when closed.

There are, besides the speaker's coach already noticed, two other state carriages in London, both built in the last century, those of the lord mayor and her majesty the queen. The former was first used during the mayoralty of 1757. The framework is carved in bold acanthus work, after the pattern of the Italian acanthus carving on looking-glass frames, etc., of the day. The upper panels are of plate-glass. The royal state coach is of later date—more fanciful in structure. The bed of it is composed of four tritons, who support the body on massive cables of carved oak. The driver's box is planted on the two front figures, and he has a carved scallop shell for a footboard. The body is composed of eight palm trees, with trophies on the four angles. A crown surmounts the center, upheld by three boys, representing the three kingdoms, and holding the sword of state and other insignia. The panels are of beveled Vauxhall plate-glass. The painting represents groups of allegorical figures—Britannia, victory, abundance, and the virtues. It is drawn by eight horses, but it has not been used since the death of the prince consort. It was designed by Sir W. Chambers, and the decorations were superintended by Pigalle, a sculptor, and by Capitsoldi and Vouers, decorators settled in London. Joseph Wilton superintended the painting; the carving is by Nicholas Collett; the chasing by Colt; the builder was Butler. The harness is of morocco, with silver-gilt mounts, made by Ringstead. It measures twenty-four feet by eight feet three inches; the pole is twelve feet long.

Whatever may have been the skill of the coach-makers of Hungary, France, Italy, and other continental countries during the reign of Louis the Magnificent and his contemporaries, it seems indisputable that from the reign of George III. London builders have held the palm in structures of this kind. They were the first to make carriages—good carriages—of lighter and more convenient shape. Englishmen bred the best horses, and had a passion for travelling fast. The state carriage of the Irish chancellor is, though large, light in comparison with the older carriages we have described. A chariot made for George III. differs from those old-fashioned chariots which have not wholly gone out of use, with C springs and sword cases. The sides are flatter, and the fore and hind parts of the bed are connected by two perches instead of one. During the last century good English carriages were bought by foreigners who wanted the best thing of the kind that was then to be had. There is one in the Hotel de Cluny. Lord Macartney took English carriages as presents to the emperor of China when he made his embassy to that potentate. They were found by our allies, the French, when they looted the summer palace of the reigning emperor during the Chinese war, some few years ago. They were covered with dust, and it was believed that they had never been put into use. —Magazine of Art.

How "Curfew" Was Written.

Of the hundreds of residents of the city of San Antonio, Tex., says the Brooklyn Magazine, only a few who frequently meet a tall, slender lady, with raven brown eyes and hair, and with a singular attractiveness in her face, know that she is Mrs. Rose Hartwick Thorpe, whose famous poem, "Curfew Must Not Ring To-Night," has given her a reputation in both hemispheres. How, at the age of 16 years, the young country girl was led to write the poem, now so widely known, is thus narrated, as furnished by her personally for this publication: "The poem was suggested to me by the reading of a story, 'Love and Loyalty,' in April, 1867. I was then a plain country school-girl, not yet 17, residing with my parents at Litchfield, Mich., and under the pretext of working out mathematical problems, with my arithmetic before me, I wrote the poem roughly on my slate. I was forced to carry on my literary work under these difficulties because of the opinion of my parents that my time could be better employed than in 'idle dreams and useless rhymes.' I wrote the first copy on my slate between 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, but much time has since been spent in correcting and revising it. I had no thought that I would ever be able to write anything worthy of public notice. The poem was first published in the Detroit Commercial Advertiser in the fall of 1870. The editor, upon receipt of my manuscript, at once wrote me a lengthy letter of congratulation and praise, in which he predicted the popularity for the verses which they have since received. I had no literary friends, not even a literary acquaintance at that time, and did not

Non-Intercourse.

The Cape Ann Advertiser directs attention to the different methods of treating the same matter employed by President Grant and President Cleveland, in an article in which it says that "in his message to Congress in December, 1870, Gen. Grant declared in unqualified terms that the United States would not acquiesce in the interpretation then and now placed upon the treaty of 1818 by the Dominion of Canada, and that if any attempt was made to enforce it he should take such steps as might be necessary to protect the rights of the United States. The schooner White Fawn was then under arrest, having been seized in November for buying bait. A few weeks after this forcible declaration an offer was made to release her on the payment of a fine of $20, which was refused. A month later she was released. Who shall say that the decided stand taken by the president was without influence on the government and the court?"

President Grant's remedy was a very simple one. If our vessels were denied commercial privileges in Canadian ports, or harassed while engaged in their legitimate calling, he would put the Canadians to a similar inconvenience and loss. "Anticipating," he said, "that an attempt may be made by the Canadian authorities in the coming season to repeat their unneighborly acts towards our fishermen, I recommend you to confer upon the executive the power to suspend by proclamation the operation of the laws authorizing the transit of goods, wares and merchandise in bond across the territory of the United States from Canada; and further, should such an extreme measure be necessary, to suspend the operation of any laws whereby the vessels of the Dominion of Canada are permitted to enter the waters of the United States."

The time has come for the application of this remedy. President Cleveland has been empowered to refuse to Canadian vessels such privileges as are refused to American vessels in Canadian ports. Pending the slow progress of diplomatic action, let the president issue his proclamation closing our ports to the vessels of Canada. Then there will be something to talk about on both sides, and we may be enabled to get an answer from Great Britain before the snow flies.

Our fishing vessels take a permit to touch and trade. If that means anything it means that they can touch and trade. It is the broad authority of the United States to that effect. Its authority has been recognized in provincial ports in past years. The Dominion government now refuses to recognize this document as of any force whatever. It refuses to our vessels, duly authorized thereto, any commercial privileges whatever. This is a declaration of non-intercourse on her part. The remedy has been placed in the hands of President Cleveland. He can settle the fisheries dispute by a stroke of his pen. President Grant asked for this power, knowing that it would be effective. It has been given to President Cleveland. Let him exercise it.

How the Valued Policy Law Works.

One effect of the valued policy insurance law passed by the legislature of New Hampshire is said to be a marked decrease in the losses by fire. It will be remembered that upon the passage of the law all the foreign insurance companies withdrew from the state, so that all the insurance now possible upon property there is that offered by home companies and irresponsible concerns outside. The Boston Commercial Bulletin states the loss by fire during the first six months of the present year at $284,200. The New York Journal of Commerce, commenting upon this state of facts, calls attention to the falling off of the average from that of previous years, the average for ten years ending with 1885 being $872,628 per annum, against $600,000 for the current, which is the rate thus far shown. Our New York contemporary is unable to determine how much of this saving is due to extra vigilance and care on the part of property holders, and how much to the absence of the "moral hazard" so often referred to in fire insurance reports. But the fact of a distinct saving of more than a quarter of a million dollars a year by reducing the facilities of insuring property, is very significant and worthy the careful study of both insurers and insured.—Providence Journal.

The strongest argument advanced against the passage of the valued policy law, was that it would cause a vast increase of incendiarism; that its provisions offered a direct premium on crime and fraud. "Why, just look at it," said the opponents of the law; "when you provide that the face of a policy shall be paid, regardless of the value of the building destroyed, you offer a direct inducement to every rascal to over-insure his property and then burn it, knowing that the insurers cannot avoid paying the fraudulent excess as well as the honest insurance. It's a most immoral law, and if you pass it we will leave your old state without any insurance at all, and then where'll you be?" And leave it they did, and here it is yet, with no special trouble so far regarding insurance.

On the other hand, the strongest argument advanced by the advocates of the law, in favor of its passage, was that it must cause a vast decrease of incendiarism, and prove a great preventive of crime and fraud in the line of over-insuring buildings and then burning them. "Of course," said they, "no insurance company will allow its agents to take risks to more than the value of the property insured; hence there will be no inducement for the assured to burn his property, as is the case now under the plan of encouraging property owners to put on heavy insurance, the insurers depending on fighting down the payment to a reasonable or even absurdly low sum, when called upon after a loss. When the companies know that they are liable for the face of their policies, big premiums will not tempt them to take risks big enough to tempt the insured to burn the property. It is a wholesome and most praiseworthy law."

The latter was the view taken by the papers of the state, with but very few exceptions, and the logic of events up to the present time seems to confirm its correctness.

Just As Was Expected.

The report of Captain E. E. Potter, commanding the South Atlantic station, who investigated the charges made by United States Consul Siler at Cape Town, against Paymaster Hobbs of the Juniata and Paymaster Thompson of the Lancaster, of fraudulent practice in the purchase of naval supplies at Cape Town, has been made public. He says he made a thorough investigation of all the allegations against the two paymasters, and found them not sustained by the evidence. He says, so far as he could learn, the supplies in question were properly purchased at the lowest prices, after free and fair competition had been allowed all dealers. The report is accompanied by affidavits of reputable residents of Cape Town to the effect that the dealings complained of as fraudulent were honestly conducted in every respect.

A Just View of the Case.

Bro. Foster, who serves out to the faithful the true milk of the democratic word in the columns of the Democrat, of Dover, thus remarks concerning a recent event in the west:

The difficulty of combining the profession of clergyman with that of editor of a secular paper is exemplified by the case of the Rev. Mr. Alderson, of Tomah, Wis. It requires a man of much more patience, forbearance and general strength of moral character to edit a secular paper than to fill a pulpit, because the necessities for resisting evil are so much greater. As a minister, previous to his newspaper enterprise, so far as is recorded, nothing was said against Mr. Alderson's good name. Now he has been tried and convicted by a church committee for using profane language, and whipping his wife. In inexperienced hands there is nothing which is so calculated to cause profanity and fill a man with a desire to whip some one as a secular newspaper. Mr. Alderson has been taken unawares, and should be dealt leniently with. His morality is doubtless equal to all ordinary strains upon it.

The August "Eclectic" begins its bill of fare with a strikingly suggestive paper by James Sully on "Genius and Insanity," which cannot fail to interest the thoughtful reader. Dr. Morell Mackenzie discusses the problem "Is Medicine a Progressive Science?" with a good deal of sense and vigor, and H. D. Traill has a strong article on "International Copyright." Prof Max Muller's discussion of "Goethe and Carlyle" will engage the attention of all interested in literature as a fresh and notable contribution to the lives of two great men. "The Greek Home according to Homer," by E. W. Godwin, is a scholarly piece of work. Mr. Swinburne's criticism of the old Shakespearian dramatist, John Webster, is marked by all the peculiar freshness and strength of the celebrated English poet, who appeals little less strongly to the public as a prose critic than he does as a poet. Other notable papers are those on "Gustave Dore," "In Osman Digna's garden," by Phil Robinson, "The Development of Northwest Canada," by W. Sheilford, and "Theodore Agrippa D'Aubigne," by P. F. Willert. The various short papers are all timely and suggestive. The August issue worthily supports the high reputation of the magazine as a representation of the best periodical literature of the time.

THE BEST

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It is my opinion that this medicine is the best blood of the day." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and unable to obtain relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles, am greatly benefited, and believe it to be the best of blood purifiers." R. Harris, Creel City, Ramsey Co., Dakota, writes: "I have been an intense sufferer, with Dyspepsia, for the past three years. Six months ago I began to use

Blood

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

It has effected an entire cure, and I am now as well as ever."

Sold by all Druggists.

Price $1; Six bottles, $5.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

To-day at noon the Cunningham block, corner of Water and Jefferson streets, comprising six tenements and two stores, will be sold at auction. Immediately after this sale, the stable and lot with three other buildings thereon, on Hancock street, will be sold. See advertisements.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., July 27th.

A little daughter of Joseph Keen, of the Lower Foreside, was badly gored one day last week by a cow belonging to her father. She received quite a bad wound in the neck, and her escape from more serious injury was a miracle. The child is reported as doing well.

The gravel train, with a gang of Frenchmen under the supervision of Mr. Howe of Biddeford, is engaged hauling gravel from the pit in North Kittery to the Dover railroad bridge in Portsmouth.

Dr. Buzzell, who for several years past has been a practitioner at Kittery Point, is to move away, and Dr. Harrold Perkins of Red Bank, N. J., is to succeed him. Dr. Perkins is a nephew of Dr. M. F. Wentworth, and at one time studied with his uncle in his office at the Foreside.

Mr. Geo. Avery and family, of Portland, have been visiting the families of James D. Plaisted and S. Robert Amee of North Kittery, and other relatives in York, the past week.

Miss Bessie M. Griffin of Waterville, Me., is having a very pleasant visit at the home of her cousin, Mrs. James D. Plaisted. This is Miss Bessie's first visit to Kittery, and she expresses herself much pleased with the picturesque scenery in our quaint old town.

Mr. Israel Smith of Kennebunk, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Chase Leavitt, rode in their carriage on Thursday last from their home to North Kittery, for a brief visit at the house of Frank Bartlett, Esq. They returned early Saturday morning.

Willard E. Paul, clerk for the Barstow Stove Co. of No. 56 Union street, Boston, is passing his vacation at his home in West Kittery.

Frank E. Donnell was home from Merrimac, Mass., Sunday last.

A meeting was held in the grove near the residence of Mrs. Eunice Young at the Foreside on Sunday, the 25th inst., and there was an eloquent sermon by a lady from New York. There were also present as speakers Rev. B. F. Maben of York, and Rev. E. E. Colburn and others of Kittery. There was a large attendance.

Capt. Samuel H. Pillsbury is in San Francisco attending the annual encampment of the G. A. R., as a delegate from Edward G. Parker Post, No. 99, of this town. SUB ROSA.

A letter received in this city on the 28th inst. from Capt. John H. Willey, formerly of Portsmouth, reports his ship, the Continental, as loading at Pier 19, East river, New York, for San Francisco, to sail about August 10th.

Commodore Philip C. Johnson, commandant of the navy yard, has gone to Washington upon official business, by direction of the secretary of the navy.

Capt. Charles E. Mills, well known at this port for many years as master of the Philadelphia & Reading company's steam collier Lancaster, died on Monday, July 26th, in Philadelphia, at the age of fifty-four years. About six months ago he was appointed shore captain of the company's coal piers at Port Richmond, Capt. Hand being appointed to the command of the Lancaster.

The Oceanic hotel, at Star island, on Sunday, the 25th inst., had over 200 guests, to 175 for the Appledore; this was the first time in the history of the islands that the Oceanic had more guests then Appledore. About fifty of the cadets and a few of the officers of the practice ships went to the Oceanic on Tuesday evening, the 27th, for supper and a dance, the steamer Oceanic making an extra trip for their accommodation, arriving back about midnight. The "Philadelphia party," so-called, being made up mostly of school teachers from that city and vicinity, arrived here Tuesday evening from the White mountains via the Conway railroad, and were taken to the Shoals by the steamer Oceanic, which delayed starting on its evening trip, according to previous arrangement. The party left the islands Wednesday afternoon for their homes.

On Wednesday of this week, about noon, while Mr. Charles H. Sides was endeavoring to stop Mr. S. K. Batchelder's hack horses, which were leaving the railroad station with no driver, he was run over by his own hack, the wheels passing over his legs, chest and both arms. Mr. Sides was carried home insensible, and Dr. Whittier called; how seriously he was injured we did not learn. The two hacks were stopped near Treat's marble shop, no other harm being done.

The Strafford Guards Veteran association, with officers of the state militia and invited guests, escorted by the Strafford Guards, to the number of 150 in all, and accompanied by the Dover cornet band, arrived in this city early in the morning on the 28th inst. by a special train from Dover, and were taken by the steamer James Sampson to Fort Constitution, Newcastle, where the day was passed and a clambake served. The party returned to this city about five o'clock in the evening, and took the train for home.

The Sawyer Woolen mills company, at Dover, posted notices in the mill yards on the 27th inst., announcing that the petition of the operatives for a reduction of hours of labor from sixty-six to sixty per week had been granted. Five hundred and fifty hands are employed.

"Nattie" Yeaton of Durham made his 18th trip of the season from that town to this city, rowing the entire distance both ways—said to be an honest forty miles, as the river runs—this week. He says his wherry is twenty-nine years old; but she is like the professor's jackknife or the U. S. S. Omaha, having been rebuilt several times. He takes down small parties from the Durham river or the shores of Great bay, for fishing outside the harbor, and the transfer from the placid waters of the bay to the ocean swell often causes a decided overturn in the department of the interior. In this part of the programme, however, the veteran Nattie officiates only as a spectator.

The blacksmith shop close to the United States grounds at Fort McClary, Kittery Point, before mentioned as having been reopened by Francis Raynes, is being carried on successfully. The shop was mainly built by the late Robert F. Gerrish, who sought to bring up the business of the Point. Mr. Raynes, besides being a good schoolmaster, is a good blacksmith, taking as his prototype Elihu Barritt.

The Boston Conservatory of Music and Violin School will open the fall term Sept. 13th. This well known institution needs no further notice than to say it will be under the direction of Mr. Julius Eichberg, as usual.

The accounting officers of the treasury on Tuesday of this week commenced the settlement of the demands made by the Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims, on the basis of 35.2 per cent of the whole amount of the judgments, and the issue of warrants in payment thereof began on Wednesday. Settlements will be made in the order of the judgments made by the court. The amount to be paid out is about $5,750,000.

Mr. George F. Plaisted, of York Corner, was in town on Tuesday, but left in the afternoon, because next day he was going to Biddeford to attend the democratic congressional convention of the first Maine district. George's selection of a candidate is apt to be very good. "But where, and oh! where, is the civil service gone!"

"Union Sunday School Assembly and Chantauqua Work," at the East Epping camp ground from Aug. 2d to the 6th, inclusive of both dates. On the evening of Tuesday, Aug. 5th, a lecture will be delivered by Rev. John A. Goss, formerly of this city.

A correspondent at York writes us as follows: "The schooner Guinare, of York, Capt. James W. Heard, is in York harbor, having a general overhaul, including recaulking. On her last trip she received rather rough usage. She went to Baracoa, and took in 55,000 bananas, 500 boxes lemons, 800 boxes oranges, 2500 pine apples, 3000 cocoa nuts, three monkeys, three cockatoos and fifty poll parrots, to take to Boston. On account of adverse winds, fogs and calms she made a long passage, during which her bananas shrank from 55,000 to 34,000. Mr. George Beal went out as mate and navigator, with Wm. F. Cody as assistant. She will now go into general coasting until about Dec. 15th, when she will take a party to Jacksonville, Fla., and bring back a load of oranges. It is hoped Mr. Beal will continue as navigator. Should the schooner's next venture prove successful, citizens of York will build Capt. Heard a new vessel to be employed in the fruiting business."

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The Republicans of Ward One will hold a caucus at the Ward Room on Elm street, Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock, to nominate candidates to be supported at the Municipal election. PER ORDER.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records. WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests. W. N. ILSLEY, W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers

A Friend in Need.

With what alacrity SANFORD'S GINGER responds to the cry of distress. No cramp or pain has ever made a demand upon it for relief or cure that has not met with instant response.

It is a delicious combination of Imported Ginger, Choice Aromatics, and French Brandy, totally unlike and vastly superior to all other "ginger," pain cures and nauseating nostrums.

Unripe fruit, impure water, unhealthy climate, unwholesome food, Malaria, Epidemic and Contagious diseases, Cholera Morbus, Cramps, Pains, Dysentery, Colds, Chills, Simple Fevers, Exhaustion, Nervousness and Loss of Sleep, that beset the traveller or household at this season, are nothing to those protected by SANFORD'S GINGER.

Avoid cheap and dangerous imitations sold to be "the same," or "as good," or "cheaper" than know the simplest requirements for preparing my manuscript for publication." The poem at once attracted popular attention, and bestowed upon its young author a reputation which each succeeding year has enlarged. Although it has been published in innumerable forms and different books and collections, and has been translated into the French, German, and other languages, the poem has never brought its author any financial remuneration, as is too often the case. "It raised me," writes Mrs. Thorpe, "from a shy, obscure country girl into public notice, and brings to my side yearly hosts of new and delightful friends. Wherever I go my friends are there before me, and the poem, which I gave to the public with no 'right reserved,' while it has made a fortune for others and dropped golden coins in other pockets, has reserved for its author admiring friends." Mrs. Thorpe spends her summers in her native climate of Michigan, where she yearly recuperates from the effects of a Texan winter. The author is 36 years of age, is happily married, and is enabled to quietly enjoy the respect and love of her neighbors and friends, while her literary admirers are legion.

A Valuable Dog Killed.

"I vas valkin dot growd by mit mine dawg ven vone of dem say: 'Barney, you setthem up vonce?' I say: 'I hafe no money.' Den dey say: 'Ach, go het vonce!' Und den mine dawg he bite vone of dem."

This was the explanation of Barney Brehm as to why his dog had bitten Daniel Lasche. Judge Fitzgerald followed out his ironclad ruling in such cases, and ordered the dog killed. A rush of lawyers at once took place to the mercy-seat to implore the leniency of the court.

"What for?" asked the judge.

"Why, I'll give a thousand in cash for him," said a well known Senator. "If I had a dog who would bite every man who tackled me for a drink, I would be $500 richer a year! Can't I have him?"

But the court was inflexible, and the death sentence was unchanged.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

James H. Warder, of Nokesville, Prince William County, Va., contributes the following: "My wife's old turkey hen was sitting beside the garden fence on thirteen eggs. About a week ago a large black snake came along and ate the turkey, curled himself on the eggs and stayed there until they hatched out, and then ate the whole brood at once. I tell you he was some snake."

A Washington letter to the Cleveland Leader says: "The knife is often used as a toothpick by Senators, and a half-hour rarely passes with them at more may not be seen touching their teeth with the cold steel of the penknife."

Milestones on the Road to Health.

The recovery of digestion, and the resumption of activity by the liver, bowels and kidneys, are milestones which mark our progress on the road to health. They speedily become perceptible when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used by the invalid. Nothing so surely and expeditiously consumes the distance to the desired goal. As no bodily function can suffer interruption without imparing the general health of the system, so the system can never acquire perfect vigor, health's synonym, until that function be actively resumed. Take, for instance, digestion, a suspension of which is invariably rectified by the Bitters. If the organs upon which it devolves grow weak, billiousness, constipation, headache, poverty of the blood, and a hundred other symptoms supervene, which indicate unmistakably the baneful general influence of dyspepsia. The disappearance of all these symptoms, through the use of the Bitters, show with what thoroughness it removes their cause.

The Peruvian government has declared the resolution of Dec. 16th, 1884, which gave the Jesuits public property for use as schools, to be null and void; and has further declared that, there being no documents showing that the Jesuits have acquired the right to be recognized as a religious order, the government declines to recognize them as such.

Mayor Grace of New York has brought charges of corruption in office against Rollin M. Squire, commissioner of public works.

Mrs. Chas. Smith of James, Ohio, writes: I have used every remedy for sick headache I could hear of for the past fifteen years, but Carter's Little Liver Pills did me more good than all the rest.

The sea serpent has appeared at Rockport, Mass., to a number of reputable persons.

"100 Doses One Dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy.

The president on July 29th nominated George A. Jenks to be solicitor general.

A Fool and His Money Soon Part.

How true some of those old sayings are. A friend of mine paid a travelling quack $50 to cure him of scrofula, from which he had suffered two years. He gave him a bottle of stuff which only aggravated the disease. When he went to consult him the second time, the quack had left for parts unknown. Upon learning the circumstances I recommended Sulphur Bitters. Five bottles cured him.—Editor Journal and Courier.

The weavers in Durfee mill No. 2 at Fall River, Mass., struck July 28th, on account of hard work and low wages.

Greater benefits may be derived from the vacation season if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. An increase of appetite, vigor, and buoyancy of spirits attend the use of this medicine.

The house passed the Northern Pacific railroad land forfeiture bill, July 27th.

"Facts are stubborn things," and sufferers from chills and fever find this complaint a very stubborn fact until they commence the use of Ayer's Ague Cure. This medicine never fails to cure even the worst cases.

John Pierson, a wealthy Swedish farmer living ten miles from Lawrence, Kansas, killed his wife July 27th, and then blew his own brains out. The pair had quarreled continually for years.

Cholera, dysentery and diarrhœa come with the summer imprudence in fruit diet. Infection and sudden checks of perspiration cause these complaints. On the first symptom take four or five Brandreth Pills and drink plentifully of hot water, and you are safe. If you wish to render the body a fortress against disease, take one or two Brandreth Pills every night for ten days and thus remove from the bowels all irritating substance and purify the blood.

A TEMPTING FEAST.

How Congressmen Enjoyed Themselves in the Good Old Times.

In Fillmore's time there came to Washington, writes Ben: Perley Poore, a certain Col. Rogers, of Tennessee, who was, or had been, an Indian agent, and who had a "claim" upon the government. Of course he had a claim. Nobody came to Washington in those days from the trans-allegheny regions without a claim. They were all citizens of the United States, and had a right to have claims. They had fought, bled and died at New Orleans and the Horseshoe, and had scalped ever so many Creeks and Chickasaws, and been with Sam Houston and at the Alamo—yes, sir! at the Alamo—and "on the Rio Grande with their rifles in hand," and had stood on Buena Vista's bloody heights and scaled the ramparts of the world-famous Chapultepec. Some of these claimants were half horse and half alligator, an "amphibious" sort of character; others were gentlemanly men much given to hospitality of the rough-and-ready kind. Of the latter description was Col. Rogers, who occupied an apartment at Mrs. Schackelford's, on Pennsylvania avenue, opposite Willard's hotel. The colonel employed as his solicitor with congress another military gentleman, Col. Stambaugh, of Lancaster, Pa., a bright-eyed old fellow, a keen cock-fighter, and an adept at poker or any other game of cards, still remembered at Washington as a trusty henchman of James Buchanan. One day Rogers was the recipient of the gratifying news that his claim was going through, had passed one house and been favorably reported in the other. As a testimonial of his joy he determined to give a grand 'possum dinner, to which he invited all his friends, young and old, in congress and out. The apartment of Rogers, which was also his bedroom, had an open fireplace, in which on the evening of the supper, a large fire was blazing, a peck of potatoes roasting in the ashes beneath, and four fat 'possums from the Fairfax hills suspended on wires from the mantel, and slowly turning as they dripped and sizzled before the heat. They who entered the room at an early hour were aware of the presence of a motley crowd, senators and ex-senators, members and ex-members, correspondents and lobbyists. The air was redolent with whisky, roasted potatoes, and 'possum fat. On the bed, in an inebriate condition, lay the lank form of Gen. Eaton, the biographer of Jackson and his secretary of war. The red face of Felix Grundy McConnell shone like a meteor on one side of the fire; on the other side the pale visage of Beau Hickman peered greedily over the anticipated feast. Macrae, Hardeman, Hart, and other jovial representatives of the press were to the fore, and all in high glee, drinking whisky and eating roast potatoes, and waiting impatiently the dishing up of the 'possums. Suddenly Col. Stambaugh entered, and observing with contempt his friend Rogers' primitive style of hospitality, sent down to Butler's restaurant on the corner and ordered an elegant supper of turkey, oysters, and champagne. This agreeable addition to the menu afforded such universal satisfaction that most of the company determined to make a night of it, and poor Mrs. Schackelford's slumbers were, in consequence, often disturbed by the sounds of revelry in the colonel's apartment. There were no policemen in those days in Washington, and when the tired revelers emerged from the Schackelfordian portal in the gray of the morning they made the streets resound with snatches of African minstrelsy in praise of 'possum fat and hominy, coons and cowheel, and other epicurean dishes.

The Governor of Georgia.

The governor's mansion is a prominent feature of Peachtree street. It is more pretentious than some of the houses that demand $10,000 a year. There is a general impression that the governor cannot live on the $3,000 that he gets from the state. A man can live at a very low figure if necessity demands it, but the truth of the whole business is the governor does not, and probably never will, live on the salary alone. Gov. McDaniel came into office with an income of about $3,000 from investments, and that was supplemented by about $3,000 of fees collected for services performed before the election. To that was added the $3,000 paid by the state, and the governor has thus had an income of $9,000. He spends about $6,000 a year, or double the salary, and yet he is regarded by everybody as a man of exceedingly modest and inexpensive habits.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Yankee Hog in Britain.

There is no English farmer so poor that the broad hearth and capacious chimney of his home are not well stocked with sides of bacon and luscious hams. Even smock-frocked Hodge will not work without his cut of swine flesh and his loaf of bread. The vulgar pig is intimately associated with the past history of some of the first families in the land, and there is not a school-boy from Cornwall to York who has not heard of "The Flitch of Dunmow." It was the pride of the English farmer to raise prime bacon, and he certainly did, fifty years ago. The Irish bacon market, owing to the poverty and bad fortunes of the Irish farmers, had dwindled down to almost nothing, and the field was left clear for the English agriculturist. But now a change has come over the scene. The English farmer does not raise bacon to the extent he did, and the native production does not begin to satisfy the demand of the home market. Who supplies the deficiency? Who but the irrepressible, far-seeing Yankee? Every week the screw steamers land at Liverpool and London case

The relief which is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla has caused thousands to be thankful for this great medicine. It dispels the causes of dyspepsia, and tones up the digestive organs. Weaving the Net.

At the anarchists' trial in Chicago, July 29th, H. L. Gilmer, a painter, testified that he arrived at the Haymarket at 9:45 o'clock on the evening of the murders; at the corner of Desplaines and Randolph streets, he saw the wagon occupied by the speakers; Fielden was speaking. The witness saw some one leave the wagon and start toward the alley where four or five persons were conversing. The witness was at the mouth of the alley. At that moment one cried, "Here comes the police." Then the man who had left the wagon and joined the parties in the alley lit a match, and placing it against something held in the hand of one of the persons, a fuse began to sizzle, and immediately thereafter the bomb was thrown. The witness was shown the picture of Schnaubelt, and recognized it as that of the man who threw the bomb. The witness also recognized Spies and Fischer as two of the group reserved to in the alley. This appeared to be crushing evidence against the accused. The witness was subjected to a rigid cross examination, which only resulted in confirming the truth of his testimony. The anarchists, particularly Spies and Fischer, appeared to be completely bowed down by the damaging character of the evidence so coldly delivered against them. A death-like stillness settled over the court room as the witness Gilmer continued his testimony. When he pointed out Spies as the man who lighted the fuse, judge, jury, counsel, prisoners and spectators leaned forward eager to catch every word, and the most intense suppressed excitement prevailed. The faces of the prisoners turned livid with fear. The cross examination in the afternoon failed to shake Gilmer in the least. His testimony is considered by far the most damaging yet recorded.

A New Novel.

Number twenty-three of the Riverside Paper Series, just issued, is entitled "Not in the Prospectus," by Parke Danforth. The heroine, Anstice Mosley, having received a legacy from a wealthy bachelar whom she had pleased in the capacity of an amanuensis, goes abroad as a member of an excursion party and meets with a mishap in one of the mountains of Switzerland. At the hotel where she is left behind the party, she is treated professionally for her injuries by an American doctor who turns out to be a nephew and principal heir of the bachelor testator, and who had at the instance of his sisters, written Miss Mosley a proposition to purchase an old painting which by the terms of the uncle's will, she had the right to select from the Wolsey collection. Dr. Wolsey falls in love with his patient of course, and the patient likewise loves the doctor until she finds that he is the young man who wrote the letter. A moonlight attempt at wooing occurs on the hotel balcony, where the suitor meets the fate which previously had awaited a fussy college professor of fifty summers who sought the hand of the amanuensis. Later on the doctor makes a "visit" to his quondam patient in Stroudport, and is accepted. Result, second trip on family account, sunny Italy, happiness and so on. We have barely outlined the plot of the story. To do more would be to deprive the reader of the enjoyment of much of the tale. The story does not in the outset give promise of interest, but as the author warms to the work it becomes more and more enjoyable. The love-making between the real lovers—the persistency of the hero, and the maiden who at first whispering "I'll ne'er consent," consented—is admirably sketched. The Alpine refusal, in after days supplemented by the New England kiss of acceptance, is portrayed in a manner both natural and artistic. We confess that it was "not in our prospectus" when we took up the new story to be inclined to go through with it. The characters to whom we are first introduced are none of them inviting or to our taste, but we are on the steamer crossing the Atlantic, tickets for the round trip paid for, and we must go through and like the ship that has safely returned us to our native shores; we commend the book for its pleasing and enjoyable outcome.

Published as one of the weekly numbers of their series by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., at fifty cents per volume, $6.50 quarterly subscription, of thirteen numbers; paper covers, 16 mo. The type is clear and of better size than the usual paper-covered novel. Sold in Portsmouth by M. Goodrich.

J. B. Moore was nominated July 28th for third assistant secretary of state. He is a young gentleman from Delaware, who has only been in the department about six months. He was appointed as a $1,200 clerk, but showed such ability that Mr. Bayard recommended his promotion to this $3,500 position. It is the same place to which Walker Blaine was appointed in the first months of the Garfield administration, and which he resigned to take a position in the court of Alabama claims. Mr. Garfield stated then that he did not appoint young Blaine on account of his father, but on account of his marked abilities; and Mr. Bayard states now that young Moore is not appointed because he is from Delaware, but because of his marked abilities.

At Springfield, Mass., six young men named Michael Kelly, Edward Linnehan, Thomas Coulch, John Johnson, Maurice Kavanaugh and Patrick Kavanaugh, have been arrested, charged with committing depredations at the old Roman Catholic cemetery on the night of the Fourth of July. At that time grave-stones were overturned and disfigured and other depredations committed, which caused general indignation at the time among all classes. Four of the young men are Catholics, and Johnson is a colored boy. Arraigned in the police court they all pleaded not guilty, and were placed under bail to appear for trial at a later date.

USE

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

It is a medicinal preparation, and, at the same time, an elegant and cleanly toilet article. Its action upon the scalp is healthful. It nourishes the glands which support the hair, and causes thin, dry hair to become thick, soft, and vigorous. It restores the color of youth to locks which have become faded with age or disease; and relieves and cures itching, caused by humors of the scalp. Dr. George Gray, Nashua, N. H., writes: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the wonderful effects produced by Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, as observed by me in very many cases. IT WILL CERTAINLY RESTORE THE HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR. It cleanses the head of dandruff, and leaves the hair soft, glossy, and beautiful." F. T. Sandhein, 1010 Spruce st., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "After unavailingly trying a number of preparations to prevent my hair from falling out, and, realizing that I was fast becoming bald, I tried, as a last resort, Hall's Hair Renewer. I have used only four bottles of the Renewer, and am perfectly satisfied that it is the best preparation in the market for checking the falling out of hair, invigorating the hair roots, and promoting a new growth."

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records. WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests. W. N. ILSLEY, W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers

[Concluded from 1st page]

The first attempt to introduce American bacon to the English market on a large scale was made twenty-five years ago. It was a failure for several reasons. Almost every part of England has a peculiar way of cutting bacon. In "Cumberland cut" bacon the ribs and shanks are left in the side, while in "Yorkshire cut" the ribs are taken out. "Staffordshire cuts," "Middlesex cuts," and others are equally peculiar in their way. At the outset of the venture our American shippers did not understand these peculiarities, but they were quick to learn. The best curers and pork butchers in the world are those who learned their trade in Ireland. The owners of the mammoth curing and packing houses of Chicago, Cincinnati, and other cities in the west no sooner learned this than they imported from Great Britain a force of Irish curers and butchers who were familiar with the customs and wants of the English trade. These men, masters of their trade, were given charge of the western establishments. American bacon now leads the English market, and is purchased alike by rich and poor. In former years the English shopkeeper who sold American bacon did so surreptitiously, and generally palmed off an unbranded article on the purchaser as being a native product. Now it is distinctive American brands are sought for by the English consumer, who will not be satisfied with anything else. The American bacon is cut to suit the fancy or old-time prejudice of the people of the district in which it is to be sold.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

Some Ladies Pets.

A few ladies (in Washington) have pet saddle horses, but the fad of this season is a long-eared white donkey broken to harness. Mrs. Dr. Baxter has as a pet a young Texas wild-cat, which is very tame, but for which the doctor has had to have a large cage built in the yard, as it would occasionally visit the neighboring kitchens, terribly frightening the Hibernianor African occupants thereof. Senator Edmunds' daughter has a little bull terrier named Grip, on whom much attention is lavished, and who has a covered walk built expressly for him, leading from his room in the stable to the back parlor window, so that he can go and come in stormy weather without getting wet. Mrs. Palmer, of Michigan, owns the smallest specimens of the canine race, and Miss Kate Willard has I believe, the handsomest cat.—Ben: Perley Poore in the Albany Journal.

HABITS.

[From the Buffalo (N. Y.) Times.]

The three greatest habits, or, in fact, we might say the only real habits against which the human system or sense of taste is unable to combat are those of tobacco, whiskey and opium. A peculiar coincidence about these three drugs, and one which has not been generally observed, is that each and every one of them contains some poisonous element. In tobacco we find nicotine, in whiskey fusel oil, and opium is a poison in itself, the same as strychnine and arsenic, and when taken in overdoses proves fatal. Now is it not possible that to these three active poisons is due entirely the habits referred to, by which the system becomes impregnated with them and thus causes an unconquerable craving, which can only be overcome by a long medical treatment, the principal object of which is to eradicate these poisons. This is the treatment in all institutions devoted to the cure of habits of this kind, and it is a divided question among learned writers, as to what is the direct cause in the formation of these habits. But why should there be any division of opinion? If, as they all agree, it is only necessary to eradicate the poison from the system in order to cure these habits, is it not a logical conclusion that the poison itself is the cause of the habits? We never heard of a person having an unconquerable craving for such stimulants as cider, beer, ale, coffee and tea, and yet every one admits that any one of these is more palatable and pleasant to the taste on first trial than tobacco, whiskey or opium. Although the object of writing this is not to advertise Duffy's pure malt whiskey, and while perhaps it has never occurred to its proprietors to make a specialty of their product for this purpose, it seems to us in possessing an article of the kind which they claim and which they evidently have, free from fusel oil (the causative principle), they have actually solved the liquor habit. Certainly, it cannot be the alcohol in whiskey that causes the craving, for if this were the case, in persons drinking several glasses of cider, which contain about the same percentage of alcohol as an ordinary drink o' whiskey, they would be just as likely to fall into the habit of drinking cider—a thing unheard of.

AUGUSTA, MAINE.

A Cold Fact Against a Poetic Legend.

Among the war papers in the Century for June is one by Col. Douglas entitled "Stonewall Jackson in Maryland." The writer denies that the touching poem "Barbara Frietchie," from the loyal brain of Mr. Whittier, had any foundation in fact. He asserts that "an old woman by that now immortal name did live in Frederick, but she was eighty-four years old and bed-ridden; she never saw Gen. Jackson, and Gen. Jackson never saw her." The writer asserts that he "was with the general every minute he was in that city, and nothing like the scene so graphically described by the poet ever happened." The occasion if it happened took place on the 10th of September, 1862, and it seems a trifle late after the lapse of nearly a quarter of a century to contradict a story which Mr. Whittier has said would perhaps live until it got beyond the reach of contradiction. It may be true that Barbara was old and bed-ridden, for the poet sings—

"Up rose old Barbara Frietchie then, Bowed with her forescore years and ten,"

And those were stirring times. It seems too bad to undertake at this late day to push this assertion and destroy the long-cherished picture of the "old gray head," as well as the contemplation of the man rising above the rebel when with the blush of shame—

"'Who harms a hair of yon gray head
Dies like a dog! March on!' he said."

But the man who writes history must be solid in his facts, even if the sweetest poetic delineations are forever thereby banished.

The remains of a man supposed to be Mr. S. S. Conant, the editor of Harper's Weekly, who mysteriously disappeared some time ago, were picked up off Coney island July 29th.

Do not suffer from sick headache a moment longer. It is not necessary. Carter's Little Liver Pills will cure you. Dose, one little pill. All druggists sell them.

Dominion officials deny having sent a vessel with provisions to the starving fishermen of Labrador, and say they have no official knowledge of the suffering.

Mrs. Chas. Smith of James, Ohio, writes: I have used every remedy for sick headache I could hear of for the past fifteen years, but Carter's Little Liver Pills did me more good than all the rest.

The senate on Friday confirmed Mr. Jenks as solicitor general, and John B. Redman as collector of internal revenue for the district of Maine.

The most stubborn and distressing cases of dyspepsia yeild to the regulating and toning influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

A terrible thunder storm raged in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont early Friday morning. In Fall River, Mass., a bed on which a man and two boys were sleeping was torn up and set on fire, but none of the occupants were hurt. At Worcester a hostler and two horses were killed. The lightning and hail did considerable damage in other places.

Greater benefits may be derived from the vacation season if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. An increase of appetite, vigor, and buoyancy of spirits attend the use of this medicine.

Gloucester, Mass., democrats demand the removal of Postmaster Cressy for failure to distribute the offices.

"Facts are stubborn things," and sufferers from chills and fever find this complaint a very stubborn fact until they commence the use of Ayer's Ague Cure. This medicine never fails to cure even the worst cases.

The republican members of the California legislature, in caucus July 29th, resolved to elect, at the present extra session, a United States senator.

Cholera, dysentery and diarrhœa come with the summer imprudence in fruit diet. Infection and sudden checks of perspiration cause these complaints. On the first symptom take four or five Brandreth Pills and drink plentifully of hot water, and you are safe. If you wish to render the body a fortress against disease, take one or two Brandreth Pills every night for ten days and thus remove from the bowels all irritating substance and purify the blood.

Wassif Bey, who has arrived at Cairo from the Soudan, reports that Khartoum has been razed by the rebels. He believes that a force marching to re-establish the khedive's authority would now meet with a welcome rather than a resistance.

A convention between England and China has been signed at Pekin, by the terms of which China acquiesces in the occupation of Burmah by Great Britain, and promises to encourage trade between England and China. A commission is being formed to define the boundary line separating Burmah and China.

A gigantic scheme to corner the whiskey market has been exposed.

A PERILOUS TRIP.

Traveling 550 Miles in Thirteen Hours in a Balloon.

"Tell me something about the most perilous voyage you ever made?" was demanded of Prof. King, the aeronaut.

"Well, let me see. The most perilous voyage, I think, was over the Maine and Canada wilderness from New Hampshire down to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. We ascended from Plymouth and rose into the clouds. A slight rain was falling. Our course was northwest, and soon we found ourselves over one of the White mountains, and we had to throw out ballast to keep from striking it. After passing over Mount Jefferson and Mount Adams, of the White mountains, we plunged into the wilderness, or at least passed over it. About nightfall, as we were crossing Lake Umbagog, we saw a light on one of the shores, and hallooed. We seemed to attract attention, but no response was made. A canoe was put down in the water, and we could see it dodging around in the water as if they were looking for something. They thought the cry probably came from somebody out of the water. We soon left the light behind, and, nearing the mountain shortly afterward, we dropped behind it in shelter and rested for about half an hour. While we were discussing (by the by, I had Luther L. Holden, of the Boston Journal, with me, who had been on some twenty-five voyages before) what course it would be best to pursue, being in the wilderness and poorly provided with provisions, we finally decided to start the balloon afloat and see if we could cross the wilderness to some inhabited region in Canada. Our balloon was only of twenty thousand feet capacity, and not calculated, except under such a stress of circumstances, to remain afloat so long as we would require to cross the wilderness. We had still, however, a bag and a half of ballast left, which we were economically using. Just here there was a natural law to be discovered, which was of itself sufficient to carry us through without the use of ballast. It appears that at night when a balloon reaches the ordinary cloud heights it becomes poised, and neither rises nor falls without any expenditure of sand or ballast, and so will float for hours, provided the balloon is free from leakage. Well, we floated on in the clouds, which were occasionally over our heads, and once or twice during the night we saw the moon through the rifts, and frequently they would break from beneath us, so that we would look into an inky abyss below. The only sounds that came to our ears were the occasional cries of a loon and the sound of falling waters. From our isolated position we could constantly hear the latter.

"As hour after hour dragged tediously away we sat in the car. We could see each other and kept up a conversation, but we could not tell what time it was except by passing our fingers over the hands of our watches. You know it would have been dangerous to strike a match. Pretty soon a new feature among the sounds of the waters struck our ears. We wondered what caused the peculiar noise, and finally concluded it was the breakers. After passing over them, all sounds ceased, and we then knew we were on the briny deep. As it did not seem to be policy to pursue the course we were in, we brought the balloon down slightly and slowly some twenty or thirty miles from where we had heard the surf, and deposited our drag-rope upon the water. This rope is an appendage to the balloon, about 350 feet long, and acts as ballast when it rests upon the water. We kept constant watch, and in the course of an hour we saw in front of us a black line, which was apparently within a few feet of us, and we prepared to grasp it, but it proved an illusion, and as we watched the object it gradually widened, and soon after our drag-rope was caught among the tree-tops. We then found that we had run ashore over a forest, presuming it at the time to be an island, but as it turned out the balloon had met with a counter current of air on the water, which carried it back to the mainland. We again rested behind a hill, where we lay till the break of day, when we threw out the remainder of our ballast and rose again.

After a while we discerned a road and succeeded in landing within a mile and a half of it. We made for the nearest place—Sayebec—which is about 250 miles below Quebec, and learned that the water we had gone out on was the Gulf of St. Lawrence. If we had continued across it we would have reached the coast of Labrador, 150 miles farther on. As it was, we traveled 550 miles in thirteen hours. I have been ballooning for many years."—Richmond (Va.) Dispatch.

American Newspapers.

The wonderful growth of American newspapers is shown by a comparison between the directories published in 1776 and the present year. The one contains in its sixteen small pages a list of 37 newspapers which were published in this country one hundred and ten years ago. The other is almost as large as an unabridged dictionary, and in its two thousand pages contains the names of 14,160 newspapers and periodicals of all classes. Of this large list, only seven were found in the directory of 1776. The net gain of the year has been 666. The daily newspapers number 1,216, a gain of 33. There are about 1,200 periodicals of all kinds which presumably enjoy a circulation of more than 5,000 copies. The increase in the rural weekly press, comprising about two-thirds of the whole list, has been most marked in States like Kansas and Nebraska. Kansas is also accredited with the greatest gain in daily newspapers. In Massachusetts the weekly press is growing, but magazines and monthly publications are losing ground. The tendency of this

An old elm long since shorn of its beauty, which stood on Pleasant street near the corner of State street, and which had thrown about all its limbs upon the Treadwell building, causing decay of the spout and consequent damages, was taken down on Friday by M. J. Griffin, under direction of Sheldon Brothers. The tree, like others about town, had long since caused to be a thing of beauty, and its removal is a benefit to the premises. The ice-storm of last winter made a very good commencement at taking the old wreck down, but left the job to be finished by somebody else.

A despatch of July 29th, from Portland, Me., was as follows: "The United States flagship Tennessee came near sinking yesterday on account of a premature explosion of a torpedo, which injured the vessel, and is said to have wounded several of the sailors."

The following is a sample of the manner in which the irreverent editor of the Dover Democrat refers to the "endorsing" resolution now being passed by the democratic conventions: "The democrats of the 1st congressional district of Maine held a convention at Biddeford on Wednesday, July 28th, and nominated Wm. H. Clifford of Portland for Congress, on the usual papsuckers' platform, stereotyped for all the conventions. It is very well when they neither expect nor hope for anything in the election."

Wednesday afternoon, July 28th as the White Mountain express train on the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway railroad was passing along through Union, a gentleman and lady were noticed driving quite fast, in their endeavor to cross the track before the train reached them, but they did not succeed in doing so, the horse being struck by the engine, and the occupants hurled out of the wagon. The lady was dragged a considerable distance, her clothing being caught by the car steps, receiving injuries from which she died in a few hours. The lady was Mrs. Adam Walker of Middleton, and the man John Brown of Union. The lady was married, and leaves a family.

The trustees of Thornton academy, Saco, an institution which has existed, in name only, for forty years, have finally agreed to purchase several contiguous lots of land on which to erect an academy building.

A novel event occurred in Winslow, Maine, the other week. During a shower a couple were married in the covered bridge by Mr. Carver of Waterville.

Mrs. Arthur Bronson, the lady who is shortly to become Mrs. Robert Browning, as Miss De Kay was one of the belles of New York. The late Sam Ward was in a florist's shop one day, and could not obtain any roses of the kind he wished, the florist remarking that all he had had been ordered by this young lady. "Ah," sighed Ward, as he met a friend at the door, "how fleeting are the things of this world! The florist says that his very last rose has gone to De Kay."

Arrangements are being made for a fitting celebration by the German army of the emperor's ninetieth birthday, upon which occasion it is proposed to unite the officers and corps of the whole army, and also to found a philanthropic military institution at Berlin.

Bartley Campbell, who is confined in Bloomingdale insane asylum, is growing worse.

Labor troubles at brickyards on the Hudson river have been amicably settled.

Over 1500 New York cigar makers quit work rather than submit to the demand of their employers that they should leave the trade unions. They did right. It is as insolent a piece of tyranny for employers to say their employes shall not belong to a trade union, as it is for the trade unions to say that other men shall not be allowed to work unless they do belong to a union. The American laboring man cannot be permanently enslaved either by employers or by other laboring men.

It is said that the New York hop crop has been ruined by rain.

USE

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

It is a medicinal preparation, and, at the same time, an elegant and cleanly toilet article. Its application upon the scalp is healthful. It nourishes the glands which support the hair, and causes thin, dry hair to become thick, soft, and vigorous. It restores the color of youth to locks which have become faded with age or disease; and relieves and cures itching, caused by humors of the scalp. Dr. George Gray, Nashua, N. H., writes: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the wonderful effects produced by Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, as observed by me in very many cases. IT WILL CERTAINLY RESTORE THE HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR. It cleanses the head of dandruff, and leaves the hair soft, glossy, and beautiful." F. T. Sandhein, 1010 Spruce st., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "After unavailingly trying a number of preparations to prevent my hair from falling out, and, realizing that I was fast becoming bald, I tried, as a last resort, Hall's Hair Renewer. I have used only four bottles of the Renewer, and am perfectly satisfied that it is the best preparation in the market for checking the falling out of hair, invigorating the hair roots, and promoting a new growth."

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are only becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less. I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

The republicans of ward one held a large and enthusiastic caucus on Friday evening, and unanimously nominated the following excellent ticket:

Aldermen, Alfred C. Hoyt, Marcus M. Collis, George A. Silsbee;

Councilmen, Charles E. Hatch, James A. Waterhouse, Harry W. W. Jackson, Lorenzo T. Burnham, George L. Hersey, Fred C. Young;

Assessors, Henry M. Clark, George T. Vaughan, William H. Smith;

Overseer of the poor, Charles F. Wells.

DEMOCRATIC MAYORALTY CAUCUS.

The democratic caucus to nominate a candidate for mayor was held at the court house on Friday, from four to eight o'clock P. M., Benjamin M. Parker serving as chairman, with tellers as follows: Michael Crowley and Albion Littlefield, ward one, Samuel W. Emery and Frank T. Rundlett, ward two, Edward D. Coffin and Timothy Cronin, ward three, Henry F. Wendell and Richard I. Walden, ward four. The result of the ballot was declared as follows:

Whole number of votes	614
Necessary for a choice	308
Oliver H. Cook had	203
Marcellus Eldredge	411

And Mr. Eldredge was declared the nominee of the caucus. After the adjournment some of the victorious faction celebrated their victory with cannon crackers and torpedoes.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, July 30th.

Samuel Robinson, a fishermen, charged with an assault on Michael H. Hawley, was bound over in the sum of $200 for his appearance before the supreme court. The parties recently came here from Gloucester, Mass., and Hawley has started some kind of an establishment on Water street, where in a drunken row on the night of July 29th the assault complained of was committed, Hawley receiving an ugly cut on one wrist with a jackknife.

MORE LIGHT.

The Electric Light Co. of Portsmouth have leased the eastern wing of the Portsmouth Machine shop building for a term of years and are now fitting it up to receive the electric machinery and motive power. Mr. Enoch Conner is also now erecting a building 38x40 feet on the ground and with twelve-foot posts, to be used as a boiler house and coal shed, and which will be sufficiently large in accommodate two boilers of seventy-five horse-power each. The works will very shortly be in operation.

The board of mayor and aldermen at their meeting on the evening of July 29th, empowered the committee on street lights to make a contract with the Electric Light Co. of Portsmouth for the placing and maintaining of electric lights to be kept in operation until one o'clock in the morning, at $2500 per year for twenty-five lights—$100 per light.

The Portsmouth Gaslight Co. recently submitted to the city government a proposition to supply with gas, and clean and light, the 106 street gas lights of the city for $2500 per year; and also announced the company's readiness to put in a plant for electric lighting, if desired by the city. This proposition seems not to have been accepted.

The Frenyear & Razee Electrical Goods Co., of Exeter, whose apparatus was first used to display the electric light on our streets, have failed to complete a contract with the Portsmouth company, so their apparatus will not be employed by the latter. But the Frenyear & Razee Co. have made a proposal to the city government to erect and maintain twenty-five of their arc lights, of 2000 candle-power each, at $90 per light by the year, —a reduction of $10 per light from the proposal of the local company.

OLD LADIES' EXCURSION.

The excursion down the river tendered to the inmates of Faith Home and other old ladies by Capt. Trefethen of the steamer Mystic, came off Friday forenoon, and was evidently a source of great pleasure. There were about fifty persons in the party, a number of them being young people accompanying the aged, seven of whom were over seventy years of age. The trip was around Kittery rock buoy and back. On the return a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Capt. Trefethen for the pleasure afforded.

A MISTAKE.

Surprise and regret are expressed by persons interested in the welfare of our schools, at the action of the board of aldermen at their late meeting in dropping from membership in the board of instruction Mrs. A. B. Wilson, who for the past nine years has been one of the most efficient and valuable members of the board. To those who are aware of how much time and intelligent interest she has devoted to school affairs, it is evident that the board made a grave mistake, and one not likely to redound to the benefit of our schools.

TOP HEAVY.

A travelling fish merchant, whose business we shall not in this connection advertise, was so overcome with the heat at high noon on Friday that he toppled out of his cart in Congress street. The vehicle was drawn across his ankles, but the obese vender of the finny kind allowed that he was not hurt. Some spectators suggested that the falling off was due to inebriety on the part of the piscatorial traveller, but Friday was a hot day, selling fish is dry business, and we charitably attribute the mishap to the weather. By the aid of bystanders the merchant was able to resume his seat, but only with difficulty could he hold it.

RUNAWAYS.

On Friday the delivery wagon connected with the Portsmouth Steam Laundry (which is located under the office of the Daily Evening Times, which may be regarded perhaps as the organ of the administration in New Hampshire,) started from the front of the laundry on State street (where as we are informed an extensive business in the renewal of the gloss upon the linen of summer visitors is accomplished,) and ran with a speed entirely out of keeping with the temperature of the day, up Pleasant street into Market square, as if to advertise the concern. The proprietor (who spares no pains to satisfy his numerous patrons) was astonished alike at the new departure and the speed of his animal. Persons sending for their laundry work at this establishment, where there are employed no unchristian Chinese, will be able to extend their congratulations to the proprietor, who as far as we are able to learn, feels confident that by a strict attention to business he will merit and receive a liberal patronage of our residents and visiting cousins "who he reckons up by dozens" in his efforts to supply the community with clean linen. The horse, as it was near his dinner hour, made for his stable on High street, where he arrived, breaking a shaft at his stop.

Later in the day the horse attached to the wagon of Anderson & Junkins, master builders, came down Congress street at a moderate speed, which was increased by the ill-advised shouts of lookers-on. The animal discreetly avoided, by a close shave, a fine buggy in front of John Laighton's on Market square, passed down Daniel street into Mulberry, and then up State into Middle street. The speed on the home stretch was in keeping with the record of the beast, whose experience in this kind of a circus is notable.

CHARLES WALKER.

The funeral services of the late Charles Walker took place on Thursday afternoon last at the house where he had lived so many years, on Richards avenue. During the ship building times Mr. Walker was known among the merchants and ship builders of Portsmouth as a skillful sailmaker; and the sails which he made for ships constructed by Fernald & Pettigrew, Samuel Badger, the Rayneses and many other builders of the Piscataqua, for New York, Boston and Portsmouth merchants, have whitened the seas of every clime. The Walker family to which he belonged came originally from Massachusetts, during the early days of Portsmouth's successful commercial career. They were federalists during the early days of the republic, and were noted for their energy and attention to business affairs, a trait which was shared in by the subject of this brief sketch, who was successful in business for the reason that he gave his best endeavors to the sending out from his loft of only the best and most faithfully done work, and who was justly entitled to the reputation he enjoyed of being thoroughly reliable in all his dealings. As a companion and friend he was pleasant and agreeable, though never demonstrative. Notwithstanding his advanced age he retained his mental faculties until a very recent period, and was in the habit of visiting his former business location almost daily up to within a few months of his decease. Of the many immediate members of the old branch of his family but one, a sister, survives; he leaves one son, Charles E. Walker, the well known coal merchant.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The Republican Caucus for the nomination of a candidate for Mayor to be supported at the coming municipal election, will be held at the Court House on Saturday, July 31st, from four to eight o'clock, P. M. PER ORDER.

The democrats intend to give us a strong city government next year. It really looks as if we should have two mayors in the board of mayor and aldermen.

Hundreds of families in Portsmouth and vicinity attest the value of Preston's Elixir. It is certainly one of the most reliable and efficacious remedies for summer troubles ever known. Have you tried Preston's Jamaica Ginger?

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights to the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records. WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partner-ship under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests. W. N. ILSLEY, W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers latter class seems to be toward New York city, as at least 23 monthly periodicals have been established here during the year.

Among the many newspapers published in this country, almost every social movement and industrial interest finds expression. A glance at the long list reveals many curious facts. There are about 700 religious and denominational newspapers, nearly one-third of which are published in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, and Chicago. New York is far ahead in this respect, while it will be a surprise to many to know that Boston is behind Chicago. Three newspapers are devoted to the silkworm; six to the honey bee; thirty-two to poultry; eighteen to dentistry; and nine to phonography. There are three publications issued in the exclusive interest of postage stamp collectors, and one of dancers. The Prohibitionists have 129 papers, and the liquor dealers 8. The organs of women's suffrage number 7, of candy makers 3, of gastronomy 3, and gas 2. Of the foreign newspapers, there are about 600 in German, and 42 in French. New York, New Orleans, and Worcester, Mass., each has four French publications. Two dailies are in Bohemian. Besides these, there are papers in the Swedish, Finnish, Polish, and Welsh languages. There is one publication in Gaelic, one in Hebrew, one in Chinese, and one in the Cherokee language.—Scientific American.

Coke on Etiquette.

Speaking of Judge Coke to a Congressman from his state this evening drew out the following. The Senator lives down on Sixth street in strict retirement. Nobody is allowed to visit him without first sending up his card. When the recent spell of warm weather was at its height the front door was left open one evening. It happened that two of his political friends from Galveston were in the city and seeking his residence. Seeing Judge Coke through the lighted window, they ascended and knocked at his door. Being asked to enter, the visitors stepped into the room, and were about to greet the Senator joyfully, when he said:

"Gentlemen, I regret to say that it is a rule of this house that the cards of visitors must always be sent up to me. I have to request that you will observe the custom."

"Certainly we will," was the abashed reply as the visitors backed out of the apartment. They rang the bell, gave the servant girl their cards, and waited patiently for her return. They were anxious to humor the old man's eccentricities. The girl reappeared, and the visitors almost fainted when she said:

"Senator Coke is not in."—Washington Gossip.

Milestones on the Road to Health.

The recovery of digestion, and the resumption of activity by the liver, bowels and kidneys, are milestones which mark our progress on the road to health. They speedily become perceptible when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used by the invalid. Nothing so surely and expeditiously consumes the distance to the desired goal. As no bodily function can suffer interruption without impairing the general health of the system, so the system can never acquire perfect vigor, health's synonym, until that function be actively resumed. Take, for instance, digestion, a suspension of which is invariably rectified by the Bitters. If the organs upon which it devolves grow weak, billiousness, constipation, headache, poverty of the blood, and a hundred other symptoms supervene, which indicate unmistakably the baneful general influence of dyspepsia. The disappearance of all these symptoms, through the use of the Bitters, show with what thoroughness it removes their cause.

Mrs. Mary Yoon of Brooklyn, N. Y., after four attempts to drown herself, jumped in front of a locomotive, and was decapitated.

For weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, consumption, night sweats and all lingering coughs, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sovereign remedy. Superior to cod liver oil. By druggists.

Emanuel Chiarez, aged sixteen, of Brownsville, Texas, cut off his stepmother's head with an axe while she was sleeping.

Lake Superior

Covers 32,000 square miles, Lake Michigan 22,400, Lake Huron 21,000, Lake Erie 10,815, but the need of humanity for a medicinal stimulant for many ailments is more than covered in the G. O. Taylor Bourbon and Rye Whiskey, bottled by C. H. Graves & Sons, Boston, and sold by Grocers and Druggists as a blessing to suffering humanity.

For sale by the bottle or case by John Laighton.

A collision in Boston harbor, July 29th, between the steam yacht Annie S. and the ferryboat Hugh O'Brien, resulted in a damage to both boats, and the injury of two passengers on the ferryboat. Both pilots claim that they had the right of way.

A Fool and His Money Soon Part.

How true some of those old sayings are. A friend of mine paid a travelling quack $50 to cure him of scrofula, from which he had suffered two years. He gave him a bottle of stuff which only aggravated the disease. When he went to consult him the second time, the quack had left for parts unknown. Upon learning the circumstances I recommended Sulphur Bitters. Five bottles cured him.—Editor Journal and Courier.

Allentown and Vaughansville, small towns near Lima, Ohio, were destroyed by a cyclone July 30th, and many persons killed and wounded. Many other towns and villages suffered greatly.

The tonic and alterative properties of Ayer's Sarsaparilla are too well known to require the specious aid of any exaggerated or fictitious certificate. Witnesses of the marvelous cures effected by this preparation are to-day living in every city and hamlet of the land.

The Morrison joint resolution regarding the surplus in the treasury was passed by the senate on Friday, but with amendments which insure its defeat in the house.

Many mothers are unable to nurse their children. In such cases the best substitute to be found is Mellin's Food, prepared after Liebig's formula, which has proved to correspond physiologically with mothers' milk.

Turkey is making large additions to her armament. Herr Krupp has received a large order from the government, and a Turkish officer has gone to his works at Essen to oversee the manufacture of the guns. It is proposed to purchase 400,000 American rifles.

Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common cathartic or purgative Pills as they are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

There was a wholesale jail delivery at Wheeling, Penn., while the officials were eating dinner. Twelve of the prisoners, including a number held on serious charges, scaled the walls and escaped. Ten of the twelve were recaptured.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. WIT AND HUMOR.

"Will this street take me to Charles street?' asked a stranger of a Boston Back Bay wit on Beacon street the other day. "Not unless you use your legs!" was the quick reply.

Cora (chewing on the last caramel)—"What makes you always twirl your cane, Mr. Merritt?" Little Johnny (who is always around)—"Because he ain't got any mustache."—Judge.

"Pa," inquired a little boy, "if you can say that 'people run for office,' why can't you say that people walk for office? "Because they are in too big a hurry to walk," explained the intelligent father.

Boston newspapers are quarreling over the question of whether it was a hen or a goose which laid the golden egg. It's a robbin' which has laid the golden egg for some of the richest men in this country, if Wall street tales are not all myths.—Chicago Tribune.

"Don't you want a cyclone cellar?" asked a tramp of the old farmer of whom he was trying to procure work. "A cyclone cellar!" bawled the farmer. "Why, you old beast, are you trying to sell cyclones around here? Here, Beef! catch 'im!" But the misunderstood man had vanished.—Chicago Tribune.

"Going to the circus to-night?" "Don't know; haven't heard my wife say whether she wants to go." "You don't mean you'll take your wife?" "O, no: if she don't want to go I'll come round and go with you, but if she wants to go we'll both stay at home, you know."—Springfield Homestead.

While a London chemist was testing a bottle of milk it exploded with a loud report, scattering the fragments of glass all over the room. Prof. Huxley's theory is that the cow had been eating dynamite, but we think that his hypothesis is wrong. A more plausible explanation is that some fiend has been throwing nitro-glycerine into the well.—Norristown Herald.

Cincinnati Festival echoes: "When can I get the score?" asked a musical young man last evening. "The Cincinnatis didn't play to-day," answered an urchin who overheard the question.—Whitney is a singer from Singville, Warble County, and has a voice that he has to go down cellar for when he wants it do some extra heavy work.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science is doing good, brave work. In its report last week it announces the discovery that "the homologies of the synomosal bone indicate the posterior half of the zygomatic arch." The papers which have insisted that it was developed by the macrodactylic oboe of the periphrastic javel must feel cheap enough.—Washington Post.

Angelina—"Mamma, dear, do you understand anything about the language of flowers?" Mamma—"No, love. Why?" Angelina—"Why, Mr. Snoopkins has just sent me a lovely bunch of Jacqueminots—three dozen, at least; and I wanted to see what the significance of it is." Unfeeling brother—"I can tell you, sis; it means that Snoopkins is around to-day trying to borrow from the other fellows."—Chicago Rambler.

The colporteur had crossed over the line into Kentucky without knowing it, and as he entered the tavern with a handful of tracts, he said: "Gentlemen, may I ask you to ——" and every gentleman then and there present arose from his chair, took his quid from his mouth and cast it behind the stove, and, sauntering briskly toward the carpenter shop, said: "Thanks, don't care if I do." And then, seeing he was in Kentucky, the colporteur "jined the gentlemen.' —Brooklyn Eagle.

A young man had been arrested for kissing a pretty girl, and she was on the witness-stand. "You say," said the attorney for the defendant, "that the young man kissed you against your will?" "Yes, he did; and he did it a dozen times, too." "Well, now, is it not true that you also kissed him during the affray?" Objected to; objection overruled. "Now answer my question," continued the attorney. "Did you not kiss the defendant, also?" "Yes, I did," replied the witness, indignantly, "but it was in self-defense." Case dismissed.—Washington Critic.

The members of a class that had been studying the rudiments of physiology were asked to give their impressions on paper of what they had learned, and one of them gravely wrote: "Our collar-bones are situated under our chins." This idea is certainly capable of very liberal application. All of us have seen boys in positions where their knees were directly under their chins. Another bright pupil put pen to paper to say: "If we did not have any backbones we could not sit down." True enough! Who ever heard of an oyster sitting down?—Boston Budget.

During the terrible thunder-storm that came over Washington one day recently, a little 8-year-old boy living in the north part of the town was awakened, and called his mother, who was sitting in the drawing-room downstairs. She sat with him a little while, and told him he need have no fears, because God took care of little boys, and would not let the lightning hurt them. "But God is way up in heaven," replied the child. "Yes," replied the mother, "but He is here, too; He is staying right in the room with you. He can protect you, but I can not. As long as God is here you need not be afraid." The child was quieted, and the mother left him and went back to the drawing-room. Pretty soon there came another deafening clap of thunder, when the boy, crawling out of bed, came to the head of the stairs, and called again. What do you want, George?" asked his mother. "You come up here and stay

Another Great Lock-Out.

Forty-two shoe manufacturers in Brockton, Mass., whose proprietors are members of the Manufacturers' Association, shut down on Saturday night for an indefinite period, on account of trouble at J. B. & L. M. Reynolds' factories.

The case in a nutshell is that at the factory of J. B. Reynolds there is a man named Bailey employed, who is obnoxious to the Lasters' Union, and for this reason no union lasters will work there. The union has refused to furnish men, and has refused to meet the manufacturers half way unless Bailey is discharged. The committee of the Manufacturers' Association, at a meeting held Thursday, voted to shut down their factories in support of the Messrs. Reynolds unless the lasters were heard from by noon Saturday. Nothing was heard, and the shut down took place accordingly. The only objection the union has against Bailey, who has a wife and six children to support, is that he does not and will not belong to the union; hence they insist that he shall not have a chance to earn a living, no matter how willing employers may be give him work.

Glanders at Ipswich, Mass.

A pair of glandered horses which were recently found in New Hampton by the president of the New Hampshire Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, were last week located by the Massachusetts society in charge of one John Roberts of Ipswich, Mass., who bought them from their former owner. The society at once notified the local health board, who answer that examination has been made; that the horses are glandered, notification of which fact has been sent to the cattle commissioners. Jannis, who first owned them, will be prosecuted by the New Hampshire society.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner in course of construction by Wm. F. Fernald at Freeman's point, to be commanded by Capt. Call, has got the frame all up.

The new brick-carrying schooner Clara B. Kennard, Capt. James B. Freeman commanding, which arrived at this port on Saturday, July 24th, sailed for Boston last Saturday with her first cargo.

The schooner War Eagle, which has been laid up at Kittery Point for a long time, has been purchased by Capt. Philpot and Dover people, and is to go on the railway at Kittery for repairs.

The practice ships Constellation and Jamestown left the navy yard wharves Saturday morning, and went to the lower harbor, the Jamestown bringing up off Hicks' rocks and the Constellation at the mouth of Pepperell's cove. There was not wind enough during the day for them to go to sea, and probably the cadets were glad of it, as it enabled a large number of them to attend the regular Saturday evening hop at the Wentworth.

AROUND HOME.

Alderman Cook took the biggest negative ever seen in a democratic caucus on Friday evening.

During the sickness of Mr. Charles Berry, Mr. Edward Downs has charge of the boiling of lobsters for J. O. Downs & Co.

It is rumored that a large force of men will be taken on at the navy yard immediately—what for, is not stated.

Messrs. Harding & Co. have put down their ocean weirs on the sea front of Pocahontas point.

Mr. Alonzo Smith of this city is expecting to go to the Shoals with his family, to assist Elvin Newton & Co. in their operations on Lunging island.

Fishermen report lobsters very scarce on the eastern shores of this harbor, and along the sea front of Gerrish's island. Mr. Frank W. Hidden is bringing his pots in from the Shoals, not finding it worth while to continue the fishery there.

James Davidson of Newcastle brought in to Edward Jameson on Friday a nice halibut weighing fifty pounds, taken off this harbor. He also caught about 500 lbs. of haddock.

Elvin Newton, at Lunging island, Shoals, was very busy last week baiting Georgesmen; four were baited by him on Thursday.

James Card is assisting Mr. Lewis Holmes in the care of his fleet of letting boats during the brisk season of business.

York is now fast filling up with summer boarders. The Marshall house, at the harbor, was full on Saturday, and every room is engaged through August. Along the beach the cottages are all occupied. One of the most attractive places in town is the Garrison house, kept by Mr. Charles Preble, whose chowders are famous far and wide; his house is rapidly filling up.

Postmaster Varrell of York Harbor was in town on Friday. He proposes to keep aloof from politics, and to conduct his office in good style, according to the orders of the president of the United States and agreeably to the civil service regulations.

The following scandalous item is from the Commercial Advertiser of New York: "If the Brazilian royal mildly is to be scared by a black bottle, he differs strangely in his temperament from the naval officers of this republic."

Special Notice.

BOSTON, July 27, 1886.

Owing to the accident to the Steamship "Gate City," of the Savannah Line, it becomes necessary for us to withdraw the Steamship "Merrimack" from our Eastern Line to fill her place for a few trips.

In consequence thereof, the Steamships "Carroll" and "Worcester" will sail every Saturday, alternately, at 12, noon, for Halifax, Port Hawkesbury, Pictou, N. S., and Charlottetown, P. E. I.

We regret exceedingly to be compelled to make this change at this time, as it is our intention to increase and improve the facilities of the Halifax Line.

NICKERSON'S & CROSBY, Agents.

D. N. Armstrong's team, driven by Edward H. Banks, came into this city Sunday forenoon from John Washburne's cottage at Norwood farm, York harbor, with summer guests to attend the several churches here. Mr. Banks reports a large increase in travel of late; one day last week he made three trips between York harbor and this city.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BLOOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. FRONDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

THE POLICE MAIL STATION.

The number of letters deposited in the box at the police station after the close of business at the post-office, and by the police placed in the box at the railroad station in time to be taken out by the postal clerk on the west-bound train at four o'clock A. M., was for the month of April 964; in May, 888; in June, 1080; in July, 1460.

Besides the letters for Boston and places north, south and west of that city, which are the only ones whose forwarding is expedited by being mailed at the depot, many letters for local mails, and some even for city delivery, are deposited in the police station box. Were these taken to the depot their delivery would be greatly delayed, so they are merely dropped in the post-office by the officers.

Mr. Charles Herbert, formerly of this city, a member of the fire department twenty years ago, was in town last week for the first time in seventeen years, having come into the harbor with a party in a yacht from Boston. He is now engaged in running the elevator engine of a large establishment in Boston.

The Maine Central Railroad pays a dividend of three per cent this week.

USE

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

It is a medicinal preparation, and, at the same time, an elegant and cleanly toilet article. Its action upon the scalp is healthful. It nourishes the glands which support the hair, and causes thin, dry hair to become thick, soft, and vigorous. It restores the color of youth to locks which have become faded with age or disease; and relieves and cures Baldness, caused by humors of the scalp. Dr. George Gray, Nashua, N. H., writes: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the wonderful effects produced by Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, as observed by me in very many cases. IT WILL CERTAINLY RESTORE THE HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR. It cleanses the head of dandruff, and leaves the hair soft, glossy, and beautiful." F. T. Sandbein, 1010 Spruce st., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "After unavailingly trying a number of preparations to prevent my hair from falling out, and, realizing that I was fast becoming bald, I tried, as a last resort, Hall's Hair Renewer. I have used only four bottles of the Renewer, and am perfectly satisfied that it is the best preparation in the market for checking the falling out of hair, invigorating the hair roots, and promoting a new growth."

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

REBUBLICAN MAYORALTY CAUCUS.

The republican caucus for the nomination of a candidate for mayor was held at the court house on Saturday afternoon from four o'clock to eight. As there was but one person named for the position it was supposed there would be but a few votes thrown, but when it came to counting up it was found that there had been deposited 340 ballots, all for John H. Hutchinson as the republican candidate for mayor. There was no drumming up of voters, or racing of horseflesh around town, to accomplish this result; nor was there any contest by dissatisfied members of the party, to call out votes. Notwithstanding this, men who have not taken part in a caucus for years appeared at the court house Saturday evening to vote for Mr. Hutchinson.

The nominee of the caucus is a progressive yet cautious business man, whose interests are identified with those of the city. He was a gallant soldier in the war for the preservation of the union, and is always counted as an ally of all real reforms. The city's interests would be safe in his hands, and he can be elected with very moderate effort on the part of the republicans.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS.

The democratic caucus of ward four was held Saturday evening, and nominations made as follows:

Aldermen, David Urch, Howell C. Russell;

Councilmen, William A. A. Cullen, George W. McCarthy, Charles Grover, Charles Pinder;

Assessors, William P. Bennett, James Jauvrin;

AN IMPOLITIC SUGGESTION.

I notice in another newspaper, what purports to be an extract from an article in the Times upon the election of mayor, (I didn't see the original,) which seeks to connect the building of a soldiers' monument with the election of mayor! I have too much confidence in the good sense of Mr. Eldredge to suppose that he could have desired such a ridiculously inappropriate mention to be made of his intentions. The proposal made by Mr. Eldredge, though not meeting with the approval of many who would prefer to see a memorial building, an arch, or some testimonial of our gratitude to our noble soldiers and sailors, yet does credit to his generous intentions, and as it has always been understood, was an entirely unselfish offer. Well may the mayor, if the Times is to print such ill-advised stuff, exclaim—"Save me from the clumsy friend." CANTEEN.

THE MAJOR CAPTURES ANOTHER SCALP.

The democratic caucus of ward four on Saturday evening last proved to be as lively and unfair as the ward one caucus, held the Monday previous. Altogether it was the largest caucus held in the ward for several years. Major Urch, with the assistance of his republican friends, who were allowed to vote for him, managed to lead his opponent by three votes. Several ballots, not for the major, were refused, before the result was declared, on the ground that the polls were closed!

You may put it down, boys, that the major will not only be an alderman from ward four this year, but also capture the state senatorship next November. Great doings in Sebastopol! ‡

WAS IT A MISTAKE?

Mr. Editor: We are among the number of those who saw with sorrow and indgnation—but not surprise—the late action of the board of aldermen "in dropping from membership in the board of instruction Mrs. A. E. Wilson, who for the past nine years has been one of the most efficient and valuable members of the board." How earnestly she has labored, and how much good she has accomplished, the public in general cannot know. If after this faithful service Mrs. Wilson had resigned her position, feeling that she had done her part, and a noble part, for the regeneration of our schools, one would have supposed that her resolution would have been most earnestly combatted by all with whom the best welfare of our children is a matter of any concern.

But what shall we say of the ingratitude and blindness which so far from valuing such services as they deserve, coolly ignore them, and inform the faithful public servant that her place is wanted for somebody else? We will—we must—say this. It is no "mistake," and so the public will find. It is part of a well-laid plan, of which this action is only a beginning—a plan to introduce politics in our public schools; to dismiss faithful teachers to make way for political favorites; to bring the schools as well as everything else under the control of political bosses. Women have no votes; and earnest care for the general good sometimes interferes with the plans of keen-eyed selfishness. "It is only the first step that costs;" the first step, and a long one, has been made. Now for the second. A FRIEND OF OUR SCHOOLS.

THEY MAY GROWL, BUT THEY ALWAYS VOTE STRAIGHT.

There has been for months a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed by democrats at some of the acts of the municipal government. This dissatisfaction found partial expression in the making "yearlings" of the ward two aldermen, and in the strong—and to the other, or "ring" faction of the party—terrifying attempt to play the same game on his honor the mayor, and substitute for his name that of Alderman Cook as a candidate for mayor. The result of the democratic mayoralty caucus increased the expressions of displeasure on the part of the defeated faction, and on Saturday and Sunday threats to abstain from voting, or to vote the republican ticket even, could be frequently heard.

Were such a bitter feeling existing among republicans, or anything like it, there would be no hope of carrying the city, or even a single ward of it, no matter how great the legitimate republican majority. Witness the result in ward two, with its overwhelming republican majority on a full and square vote, almost carried by the democrats two years ago, and quite carried by them last year, though the republican ward ticket bore good and strong names. But we anticipate a full democratic vote for the ring ticket to-morrow, as the adverse gale will pretty effectually blow itself out before the time for the polls to open, as is usually the case with a democratic head wind.

In the course of an editorial on the "unanimous endorsement" of President Cleveland by the late democratic state convention, after all the growls and mutterings heard beforehand, the Manchester Union,—good democratic authority, surely,—explained as follows the difference between the dissatisfied voters of the two parties:

The republican never growls at his party's conduct, until election, when if he disapproves of it he votes against it. The democrat, on the contrary, growls all the time, but when he votes, votes the straight democratic ticket. This is only too true; and in its independence and intelligence lies the weakness as well as the strength of the republican party.

This is an admission which, though the truth of it is patent to every man who has ever had any extended experience in politics, would hardly be expected from a democratic organ. The average republican, when dissatisfied with the conduct of the party leaders, puts his indignation where it counts for something—in the ballot box; the average democrat may be infuriated way through, but rarely has indignation enough to last until he deposits his vote.

If the present municipal ring is in peril, it is not, we judge, from any danger of its being bursted by internal forces.

NOTICE TO ALL.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 30th, 1886.

John O'Brien, the well known tin peddler and junk dealer, went to Newcastle four days last week and took from that place in four loads of rags 2226 lbs., besides other old junk. This goes to show how John holds his trade for the last ten years; he returns his thanks to all his friends for the large amount of patronage he has received since he came to Portsmouth ten years ago, and hopes to retain the confidence of his customers, by trading squarely with them in the future as he has done in the past. And he wishes it to be understood that if any one has any just claim upon "John O'Brien, cash or trade," all they have to do is to send in their bills and get their money, 100 cents on the dollar.

P. S. Some time ago John bought a very old sword and knee-buckle, supposed of Washington's time, which can be seen at Mr. George Lane's hotel, the "White Hart;" also an old knife which was found on Wallis' sands, and is supposed to be a portion of Capt. Kidd's treasure; also a very ancient old Irish coin, which has puzzled many persons to tell its value—all of which articles can be seen at the White Hart hotel.

It was reported on the streets last week that it was contemplated to locate a steam pump at the foot of Deer street to relieve the new sewer of water which had backed in from the river and wouldn't run out.

Let every voter remember that the three new members of the school board are every one bitter, partisan democrats. Not one of them has any sort of interest in the schools, and one of them has never sent his children to them. If they have any real, vital concern for our schools, let them show it by resigning at once.—Penny Post.

Mr. Charles H. Sides, who was injured by his hack running over him, on Wednesday of last week, was down town on Saturday, looking quite well, though feeling stiff and sore.

The special advantages of the Bryant & Stratton Commercial school are admirably set forth in the announcement of its reopening, which will be found in another column. The principal, Mr. H. E. Hibbard, has been eminently successful in sending out a large number of well equipped, and self-reliant popils, who are filling responsible positions, to which he has introduced them, in all our large cities.

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE.

NEW INSURANCE FIRM!

ILSLEY & MOORE,

No. 3 Pleasant St.,

NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE undersigned gives notice to all whom it may concern, that he has purchased from the senior member of the old firm of Morse & Ilsley, all rights in the Fire Insurance Business heretofore carried on by that firm, and is duly authorized by all the Companies represented by them to have and hold all their Records. WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

WE, the subscribers, having formed a Co-Partnership under the style of ILSLEY & MOORE, for the transaction of a General Insurance Business, respectfully solicit the patronage of our friends and the public generally. To every person who has ever transacted any Fire Insurance Business with the firm of Morse & Ilsley we would say the Original and Only Authentic Record of such business is in our possession, bought from the former senior member of the recently dissolved firm, the purchase money paid, and his receipt therefor in our hands. We have the written consent of every Company to this disposition of its Records, and we hope to retain the goodwill of all former patrons, and gain the confidence of new ones, by strict attention to their interests. W. N. ILSLEY, W. H. MOORE.

INSURANCE CARD.

DENIAL!

I most emphatically deny the statement which appears in a card of the junior member of the late firm of MORSE & ILSLEY, in which he says he purchased of me, all right to the Insurance Business of said firm. At the date of dissolution the firm were not agents for any Fire Insurance Company, the old companies formerly represented by us having withdrawn from the state last September, and discharged us in common with all other agents in this state; since that time we have had no authority to act for said companies in any capacity whatever. Consequently there was no Fire Insurance business or agencies, to be bought or sold, by either member of said firm. When the agencies were taken up, our commissions as agents and all blanks and supplies which the companies considered of value were returned to them; the books having the copies of the old policies not being of any account to the companies who had the authentic record of every policy in their own offices, were left in our hands, and as Mr. Ilsley only had a clerical knowledge of most of the property insured and wished to retain these old policy registers, and I, who was well acquainted with the assured and property insured, sold to him these old books, and the agency business and good will of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. That is all I sold, and he understood perfectly that I had retained and was to carry on the Fire, Life and Accident business, and was to have such share of the former business of the late firm as the good will of our old customers would grant to me, and that I had advertised to that effect before our trade was completed. The fact that I originally paid one-half of the purchase money of the old firm's business, and by fifteen years hard work would seem to entitle me to a favorable consideration, and I shall certainly use my best endeavors to provide good insurance to all old customers with God awhile, and let me go downstairs," was the reply.

An Arizona editor recently sent postal cards to all the prominent citizens of the place requesting them to give an answer to the question, Why are you an honest man? some of the replies which he published are curious. One answers: "It must be because of my durned cussedness; I always did like to be different from other people." Another says he is honest because he has never held any public office. Another indignantly answers, "What d'ye take me for—an angel?" Another sarcastically remarks, "I suppose you're going to start a museum and are lookin' for freaks. Well, count me out; I'm not one." Another, a professional labor agitator, wrote in blood-red ink on a postal card, "What are ye givin' us?" While the editor of the opposition paper volunteered the answer that he scorned to lay bare the palpitating mainstay of a noble and honest soul at the request of a dishonest reptile and political parasite. The editor is so well pleased with the results of his inquiry that he intends soon to ask for answers to the question, What do you take for a cold?

We have one man who drinks 100 glasses per day!" This answer was in reply to a question as to how much beer the employes in the Milwaukee breweries consumed. The speaker was a gentleman engaged in the office of an extensive brewing company. "What is the average consumption per man?" "About one and one-fourth gallons, or forty glasses daily. As a rule, our employes drink fifty one-quarter barrels a day—nearly $100 worth. During warm days this number is increased to sixty quarters and more. Each man generally takes two glasses at one time, which would make the number of visits to the bar about twenty during the day. Allowing three minutes only for each time he knocks off work, there is one hour which he loses in this way. Some of the men have to walk a block and further, and it often takes about five minutes." "Where is the bar generally located?" "Ours is in a corner of the wash-house. We pay a man $60 a month to draw beer for the men, and he earns his money, too. He does nothing else." "Do your employes get as much beer as they can hold since the late strike?" "They receive all they want."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Western newspaper writer says: "A more remarkable sight than the mouth of a great whale recently stranded on the coast can hardly be imagined. The tongue would have been a large load for a dray of the largest size, and several men could have stowed themselves away in the enormous mouth. The tip of the upper jaw formed a curious and shapely bower. Complete drawings of this whale and the only perfect ones that have ever been made can be found in the library of any of the scientific societies of San Francisco."

There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters.

Joseph T. S. Libbey and John Scales, proprietors, and Charles A. Richmond, reporter of the Dover Daily Republican were sued for ten thousand dollars last Friday afternoon by Arthur F. Howes, through his counsel, Henry D. Yeaton, Esq., for an alleged libellous article said to reflect on Howes' character and reputation which was published in the Republican of a recent date, the same one for which Messrs. Scales and Libbey were arrested on a criminal complaint a few days ago. Bail was promptly furnished.

The well known strengthening properties of Iron, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nervine, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

Ayer's Hair Vigor imparts vitality, gloss, and freshness to the hair, and restores its original beauty.

Gen. William F. Rogers, of Buffalo, N. Y., is thought to be the president's choice for public printer.

The remedy which most successfully combats malarial disorders, is Ayer's Ague Cure. It is a purely vegetable compound, and contains neither quinine nor any other dangerous ingredient. Waarrnted to cure chills and fever.

Patrick Flaherty, a workman at the brickyard near Berlin, Conn., was run over by an express train and horribly mutilated. The upper part of his head, both legs, and one arm, were cut off.

James Pyle's Pearline has become recognized as the best washing preparation ever invented. It has relieved washday of the old wear and tear and cleans the dirtiest fabric without injuring it.

The 1,200 men at the Hampton mines near Wilkinsburg, Pa., have struck against a reduction of pay from seventy-one to sixty cents per ton for mining. Similar troubles at other coal mines are feared.

For several years I have suffered greatly from periodical returns of Hay Fever. At the suggestion of Covert & Cheever, Druggists. I obtained Ely's Cream Balm and used a portion of it during a severe attack. I can cheerfully testify as to the immediate and continued relief obtained by its use. I heartily recommend it to those suffering from this or kindred complaints.

Rev. H. A. Smith, Clinton, Wis.

Forepaugh's circus train broke into three sections near Londonderry, Nova Scotia, early in the morning on the 30th ult.; three flat cars were thrown off the track, and several cages filled with wild animals overturned. Mr. Forepaugh's private sleeping car was badly damaged. One man was injured, but not seriously. The accident was due to worn coupling pins.

A Valuable Remedy.

Brandreth's Pills have been used by millions of human beings. Their success is founded upon the theory of reason, and an attentive observation of symptoms of disease. Whatever makes bad digestion breeds disease, and whatever makes good digestion cures disease. Brandreth's Pills make good digestion, purify the blood, and remove all bad humors out of the body by the organs of the stomach and bowels. They act in harmony with vital action and work of nutrition; the strength increases, the skin and the eye become clear, and the symptoms of the malady are surely rendered milder by their use. They are harmless for all ages and conditions.

Signal Service Sergt. Liebmann at Cottage City, Martha's Vineyard, has disappeared, leaving behind a wife and four children in destitute circumstances.

Scrofula diseases manifest themselves in the warm weather, Hood's Sarsaparilla cleanses the blood, and removes every taint of screfula.

Don't Do It,

Said my physician, who for six months had doctored me for dyspepsia without success, when I told him I was going to try Sulphur Bitters, they will only make you worse. I did try them, and now I am a well man and can eat anything. Sulphur Bitters are a great foe to doctors.—George Bastett, N. Y. C. & H. R. Railroad.
